The two passersby, who were traveling together, reported to troopers at the McHemy State Police barracks that they had stopped at 10 p.m. on December 31 to help an older gentleman who was being beaten by a younger man on Glendale Road at the entrance to The Pinnacle. The assailant reportedly made verbal threats to shoot them and made a motion to remove a handgun from his clothing, although none was actually observed. Vincent was stopped a short time later in McHenry and arrested.

In other district court news, a Mtn. Lake Park man received a one-month jail term after pleading guilty to a charge of resisting arrest.

David Wayne Eddington Jr., 19, was arrested in June by deputies of the Garrett County Sheriff's Office after he allegedly assaulted three subjects during a fight at a Loch Lynn apartment building. When deputies arrived, Eddington allegedly threatened them, used continual loud profanity, and attempted to pull away as he was being handcuffed. The report noted that alcohol was a factor.

Judge Ralph Burnett handed Eddington a six-month sentence, with all but one month suspended, and placed him on one year of supervised probation. Two additional charges of resisting arrest, three counts of second-degree assault, and a single count each of disorderly conduct and disturbing the peace were not prosecuted by the State's Attorney's Office.

Robert Lee Gower Sr., 33, Oakland, pleaded guilty to a charge of second-degree assault and was handed a 60-day suspended sentence, placed on one year of supervised probation, and ordered to make a $100 restitution payment to the County's domestic violence shelter.

Gower had been arrested in April by sheriff's deputies following a domestic incident with his wife at their residence. He allegedly picked her up during the course of an argument and threw her to the floor, where she struck the back of her head. She was subsequently transported to the hospital by a deputy.

SMITH FOUNDATION AWARDS FUNDS - Eight local organizations and agencies were named the first beneficiaries of the Stanley P. Smith Family Foundation, a private, non-operating foundation that was established just over one year ago for the benefit of the people of Garrett County. The foundation, created by Stanley P. Smith Jr. in honor and memory of his late parents, Stanley P. and Marion Q. Smith, and his late brother, Warren Q. Smith, awarded a total of $24,000 from its earnings in the first year. A local advisory committee determined the recipients, and the monies awarded will benefit persons all over Garrett County. Stanley P. Smith, who resides in Spain but still maintains a house in Oakland, was present for the distribution, which took place Tuesday at the Oakland municipal building. Pictured here are advisory committee members, trustees of the foundation, and representatives of some of the beneficiaries. Above, from left, are: Kimberly Conroy, trustee; Don Sincell, committee member; Stanley Smith; Dorothy Cathell, representing the Garrett County Historical Society; Asa McCain, committee member; Martha Makosky, director of the Ruth Enlow Library; Mark Stutzman, committee member; and Pat Conroy, trustee. Below, same order, are: Kim Conroy; Sincell; Ann Sherrard, representing the Garrett County Health Department, Smith; Robert Lyons, chairman of the Garrett County Community Action board of directors; and McCain, Stutzman, and Conroy. Photos of the representatives of the four other beneficiaries will be published next week. See front-page story for details.

District Court To Close Office In Grantsville

The District Court office in Grantsville will officially close on July 31. All services of the court will be handled through the Oakland office after this date.

Alan Dougherty, administrative commissioner for District 12 of the District Court of Maryland, explained the reason the decision to close the office on Route 40. "The main reason is to centralize and provide better service for all people of Garrett County," Dougherty said.

In the Oakland office of the district court, a commissioner will be working 40 hours per week, he explained. This full-time position replaces the commissioners who were on call in both Grantsville and Oakland. The Grantsville office had been staffed from noon until 2 p.m. on weekdays. "There was a very low level of activity in the office," Dougherty stated.

With the 40-hour per week availability of a court commissioner, he said service will improve. "We have been able to expand accessibility. We are trying to enhance, not reduce, the level of service in Garrett County," he concluded.

Concert Series Featuring Folk, Celtic Music

The Oakland summer concert series will continue next Wednesday evening at 7 p.m. on the roof terrace of the courthouse with a presentation of Celtic and folk music by artists Wendy Morrison and Lisa Moscatiello.

Vocalist Moscatiello referred to traditional song as her "first love," but acknowledged influences including jazz, opera, bluegrass, and contemporary classical music.

As an individual performer and as former lead singer of the folk-rock band The New St. George, Moscatiello has received movere a dozen Washington area music awards. Last year she became a member of New York-based, Irish-fusion sextet Whirligig. Currently Moscatiello is touring in support of her debut album, Innocent When You Dream.

Performing, recording, and teaching music for more than 20 years, Morrison is accomplished in various instrumental styles. She includes in her repertoire Appalachian Old Time, New England contradance, Irish, Scandinavian, Klezmer, and other European folk dance music.

Morrison has appeared with several Washington, D.C., Irish, old-time, and contra-dance bands. She currently performs with the Klezmer band Klezmos and the contra-dance band Waltz on a Dime.

The summer concert series is sponsored by WKHJ Radio and produced by the Greater Oakland Business Association with the assistance of a grant from the Garrett County Arts Council. Future performances will be July 29, featuring Smoking Joe Fusion, a rock band, and August 5, featuring Jeff Gilbert and Friends, a local pop/rock group.

All concerts are free of charge and begin at 7 p.m.

Bloodmobile To Make Special Visit Friday

To avoid an emergency supply situation, American Red Cross Blood Services, Johnstown Region, is joining Red Cross Blood Centers across the country in encouraging regular donors to bring first-time-donor friends along when they give.

A special summer bloodmobile is scheduled at the Oakland American Legion Post, Memorial Drive, Oakland, this Friday, July 17, from noon to 6 p.m.

"At this time our supplies are dangerously low and we need our regular donors, as well as first-time donors, to come out and give blood. Approxintately 40 percent of the population is eligible to donate, but only about a quarter of that percentage actually do. We need the other three quarters of that population to come out and donate because every two seconds, someone in the United States needs blood and we want to make sure we're able to provide it," David C. Mair, M.D., chief medical officer for the Johnstown Region, said.

Anyone age 17 or older who weighs at least 105 pounds and is generally in good health may donate blood every 56 days. Individuals who donated at the June 12 bloodmobile at the Oakland American Legion would not be eligible to donate at the July 17 visit.

The Red Cross is in urgent need of all blood types, and in critical need of type B negative and type O negative; type O negative may be transfused to any blood type to an emergency.

For more information on donating blood or donor eligibility, persons may call the Western Potomac Chapter of the American Red Cross at 1-800-361-9481 or 301-722-1760.

Oakland Branch Of Terra Alta Bank To Open

TIMOTHY CUNNINGHAM

The Terra Alta Bank has announced it will open its first branch office on Monday, Aug. 3. The full-service banking facility will be located at 12599 Garrett Highway in Oakland, with Timothy P. Cunningham as vice president/branch manager of the new office.

Cunningham, who joins the Terra Alta banking team led by Howard Metheny and Ken Frankhouser, previously held positions with Bruceton Bank, headquartered in Bruceton Mills, W.Va., where he served in a number of financial roles. A summa cum laude graduate in business administration, he is pursuing a master's degree in the same discipline from West Virginia University. He is also a graduate of the W.Va. School of Bank Compliance in Charleston.

Cunningham is an active member in the community. He currently serves as a town councilman in his hometown of Bruceton Mills and has served on the United Way Citizens Review Committee for Monongalia and Preston counties for the past two years. He is also a 4-H volunteer leader.

The Terra Alta Bank has been serving the community since 1892. "Residents of Oakland and Garrett County have often driven to Terra Alta to bank, so it seems only natural to bring the bank here," Cunningham said. "Not only does the TA Bank offer a full-range of banking services, but has always developed strong, long-standing relationships with its customers. This is evident from the moment one is greeted with employees' warm, welcoming smiles, to the quality, efficient service and noteworthy deposit interest rates. It has long been our belief that customers deserve to get the most out of their hard-earned money. That's why we consistently offer the most competitive rates around and lower fees on our banking products. We realize our customers are our most important asset and we want them to feel good about banking with us," Cunningham said.

The new banking facility will feature a 3-lane drive-through, as well as drive-in ATM service. Bank lobby hours will be Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., and Saturdays, 9 a.m. until noon. Drive-through hours will be weekdays, 8 a.m. to 6 p.m., and Saturdays, 8 a.m. to noon.

For the People...

Rarely is there an issue of The Republican that does not contain at least one photograpn of someone donating money to something, and usually there are several such photos in any given issue. If it weren't for the generosity of so many people, most of our community's fine charitable/service organizations simply would not exist.

Today's issue of this newspaper is no different. In fact, there are a couple of photos that depict an incredibly generous gift, not to one particular agency, organization, or cause, but to all of the people of Garrett County. The gift is not from an organization or a business, but from one person — a person who does not even live in the county. In fact, he lives thousands of miles away in Malaga, Spain.

Stanley P. Smith Jr. arrived in Oakland a few weeks ago after being gone for over two decades. But he and his family spent a number of years living in Oakland, during which time they fell in love with Garrett County and its people. As a lasting memorial to his father and other members of his family, Mr. Smith established the Stanley P. Smith Family Foundation, and the first proceeds from that foundation, totaling $24,000, were distributed this week to eight different agencies and organizations "for the benefit of the people of Garrett County." (See story on the front page, photos on page A-3.)

Mr. Smith has not only given money, but he has extended his absolute trust to a local group of citizens, most of whom he had never even met until a couple of weeks ago, to determine the beneficiaries of those funds.

The $24,000 distributed this week is just the beginning. As the principal of the foundation grows, so will the distributions, and there may come a time when not tens of thousands, but hundreds of thousands, of dollars could be yielded by the Smith Foundation, "for the benefit of the people of Garrett County." It's an astounding windfall that few communities in our nation ever experience.

On behalf of all "the people of Garrett County," we extend our utmost appreciation to Stanley P. Smith Jr. for his overwhelming kindness and generosity, which will benefit literally thousands of people over the course of time. And on behalf of those of us entrusted to distribute his gift, we pledge to do so according to the guidelines established, and will make sure that the Stanley P. Smith family is forever remembered and appreciated.

Best wishes to you, sir, and may you have a safe journey back to Spain.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

I must say, only Mr. David Moe, in his own words, could "thoroughly admire" Mr. George Sheffel's "position" for having the properties of five of his family members, including Mr. Scheffel's brother's home, entirely dissected for the [illegible], I think, says it all.

R.C. Speicher

To the Editor:

Tragedy and adversity have a dynamic way of bringing us to a reality check concerning that which we assume and so often take for granted.

Questions prefaced with "why" abound, not only because of the destruction and pain that has been caused, but also because some have been spared the destruction that passed by them and left their possessions intact. The existence of God and/or His judgment on sinful living are often discussed at times like this.

The point is well taken that we can very quickly become utterly helpless and destitute in spite of our focus on being self-sufficient. The comprehension of this fact should stimulate all of us to seek for a greater understanding of the spiritual responsibility that is ours.

Whether I consider myself a perfect, biblical Job or a dweller in the lands of Sodom and Gomorrah, which were destroyed by fire and brimstone, there is a God, and He is alive! Sometimes we need reminders, do we not?

Yours truly,
Sanford Bender

To the Editor:

Something funny is going on, and I'm not snickering.

Regarding the Oakland Bypass citizens' workshop conducted on June 30 (lender) George Falter, Jr., wrote last week that "We were . . . told of a study which ostensibly confirms the need for a bypass. However, despite the advance notice of our meeting and our specific request for this study prior to the meeting, neither the State Highway representative nor the public official who spoke of this study were willing or able to produce a copy of this study."

That's strange, because shortly after I founded Garrett Co. Conservative Action for a Rural Environment Inc. (G.C./CARE) a year ago, an official at Taxpayers for Common Sense in Wash., D.C. which has already condemned the "concept" of an interstate 219, [illegible] to me on condition of anonymity, "At the risk of sounding crass, the truth is, the money for those feasibility studies is used for nothing but brainwashing people into believing they need another road."

Now, ain't that queer?

R.C. Speicher

To the Editor:

Once again, on July 11, several eager Livestock Association members met at the Garrett County Fairgrounds to complete some previously started projects. Those I'd like to thank for donating supplies and services include: gates from Ken and Vivian McDowell of McDowell's Mini-Mart and Dave Thomas of Mettiki Coal Corp., wire fencing from George Scheffel Sr., of Allegheny Welding and Machine Inc.; Ed Lewis for hauling equipment; Darvin Pysell for the use of his tractor; and Lester Loughry for hauling supplies. Volunteers included Darvin, Louise, Arthur, and Sarah Pysell, Darrell, Debbie, and Scott Bolyard; Scott Ringer; Bobby, Sandy, and Bobby Jr. Schmidt; Vonda and Nikki Moreland; Bob, Mary Ann, and Ben Rizer; Louella Friend; Kris DeWitt, Richard McCrobie; Lester Loughry; and Dale and Millie Hutzel. Don Sealing and Dale Glotfelty from the Fair Board also stopped by. Lunch was provided by Louella Friend and Mille Hutzel. Vonda Moreland provided the grill.

So far this year the work crews have completed repairing and painting the bleachers at the show ring, painting the old gates, putting up new fences and gates, installing drainage pipes below the hog barn and above the steer barn, repairing rain spouts and water lines, and replacing and painting boards in the steer barns. We hope to be able to make repairs and paint at the sheep barn and add some new display cases and plaques before the Fair.

As president of the Livestock Association, I want to thank all the volunteers for their time and all those who have donated supplies, equipment, and services. Without your help and support, little or noue of this would have been possible.

Our next monthly meeting will be July 22 at 7:30 p.m. at the Fairgrounds. The next workday will be decided upon at that time. Please come out and join us and bring a friend. You'll be surprised how good you'll feel after you've spent time doing something to make our county a better place for our kids to grow up in!

Respectfully yours,
Dale Hutzel

To the Editor:

Mr. Moe, self-appointed promoter of highway projects, doesn't seem quite sure what he wants to call the abomination sometimes known as Continental One. At various times he refers to it as "an improvement," a north/south interstate highway," the "219 corridor," "an international trade & travel corridor," "Continental One," "any north/south route within the county," "a north/south, four-lane, divided, limited-access highway," etc. Hey, Dave, it's a SUPERHIGHWAY! And the concept is for it to go "through Garrett County" (his words). I don't know about you, Dave, but I just don't like the idea of anyone using my backyard as a shortcut, especially where it concerns my garden. Anyone attempting to do that is looking for trouble.

Mr. Moe needn't remind me. I am keenly aware of the fact that our commissioners solicited the help of Sen. Mikulski to get funding for the construction of this Superhighway. I believe that they may have misled the senator as to the need for this project and more important, the desires of the people. Let me say publicly that I challenge the commissioners to a debate on this issue. And just to give them a sporting chance, I'll debate all three of them at the same time and place.

No question that the National Road was needed in its time. But Dave, you're talking oranges and apples; we already have adequate highways to get people to Garrett County. Jerry Geisler, vice president of the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce, has been quoted: "I-68 makes for easy access to our attractions." Dave, I think you might want to familiarize yourself with the word "overkill."

The "eastern alignment," that old saw again. Who are we trying to fool here? As I have said in the past, I know what magicians do to trick the people, divert their attention from what is really going on. A couple of facts: that alternative route is not included in the County Comprehensive Plan as a possible location for the Superhighway; the five projects which do constitute a Superhighway along 219 are included in the plan.

These "choke points" are very real to me, too. When I am having breakfast and reading some of the things being stated about the necessity for the Superhighway/Bypass, very often I feel the need for a Heimlich maneuver.

The negative effects of I-68? Thanks for asking, Dave. I believe this anecdotal answer may be of interest to anyone asking that question. My son, who lives in Allegany County near Route 220 (the other location which is being promoted for a Superhighway), is contemplating moving. As we (our family) visited some of the sites that he is interested in in western Maryland, some questions of concern consistently came up. Can you hear it (I-68) from here? Can you see it (I-68) from here? We didn't need to ask the other question, because the air just didn't smell as fresh as it does where I live.

I know people who live near I-68 and there is a traffic drone 24,7,52. Now, to me, that would be a very negative effect. That alone might be enough, but if one looks at the stagnant economy in and around the Cumberland area, it doesn't take a rocket scientist to figure out that I-68 has something to do with that. I-68 is somethiag that can be seen, smelled, and heard for miles and unless one is a highway fanatic, I believe that that would be considered negative. To sum it up: the proposed Superhighway will cause our way of life to wither, it'll wreck real estate and it'll be bad for business. To say nothing of the negative effect that it will have on the pockets of the taxpayers who will be asked to pay for this Pork Pie Project.

I admire the DeBerrys, whose farm has been in the family since before the Civil War, because they have resisted the lure of the almighty dollar. They have chosen not to take the money and run; instead they are making a stand, albeit quietly, just as they have done in the past. And I feel bad for the Scheffel family who are being asked to make their "major sacrifice" for the wrongheaded policies being foisted on them by those public servants who are supposed to be working on their behalf. I just find it totally unconscionable that, once again, government tries to beat down the people. I thank God that reason prevailed 20 years ago, just as it will now. Mr. Moe, I believe that you and the commissioners need to take a closer look at that horse lying at your feet.

I happen to think that our real hope for the future lies within our cultural heritage and wherever and whenever, the preservation thereof.

George Falter Jr.
G.C./CARE

P.S. I'd like to remind Mr. Moe that, in addition to having westbound lanes, I-68 also goes east towards all of those highways and overdeveloped metropolitan areas that he seems to be so fond of. I'll pay for his gas.

Donates $24,000

by the organizations selected to receive the first donations."

The money awarded the Garrett County Health Department will be used to sponsor an after-school program at Northern Middle School. The funds awarded to the Oakland Mayor and Town Council will help finance the town's Wednesday evening summer concert series, a recreation program at the Glades West housing development, and a youth swim program at Broadford Park.

The funds donated to the local chapter of the American Red Cross will be used to pay the rent for the chapter's office at Deep Creek Lake for one year. Garrett County Community Action's grant will be used to fund an after-school program at Grantsville Elementary School.

The $3,000 given to the House of Hope will go into that organization's general support budget, while the $3,000 awarded to the Ruth Enlow Library will be used to purchase books for all of the local branches of the library.

The Garrett County Arts Council will use its grant to enhance the awards that agency makes to a variety of local arts programs and organizations, as well as to enhance access to arts programs for residents in outlying areas of the county.

The money donated to the Garrett County Historical Society will be used to fund field trips for fourth grade students in the county to the society's museum in Oakland.

Conroy indicated that the foundation's assets will grow continually, meaning that the number and amount of the grants awarded each year will grow likewise.

"This is an incredibly generous gift from Mr. Smith, which will ultimately result in enormous support for numerous local organizations, programs, and projects for decades to come," Conroy said.

Conroy said that all Garrett County organizations which hold 501c status from the Internal Revenue Service are invited to write to the Stanley P. Family Foundation at P.O. Box 739, Oakland, MD 21550 to receive more information and/or a grant application form.

View From My Window

VACATION BIBLE SCHOOL

..."I'm a C-H-R-I-S-T-I-A-N in my H-E-A-R-T," the children sang in unison and in competition. At the end they shout, "I'm a CHRISTIAN!" There was joy in my heart during the closing exercises of our Vacation Bible School.

The parents had gathered in the sanctuary waiting for the children to troop in. I visited with them, and gladly heard their reports. Children who had not wanted to come in the first place absolutely insisted on coming every night after they had tasted VBS once. Parents said their children had talked of nothing else all week.

We had a few kids who had looked us over all week, and decided to come through the door on the final evening. There was grumbling among church people about that. I reminded them of the parable of the workers in which those who went to work in the twelfth hour received the same pay as those who had worked all day. The idea is no more popular today than it was 2,000 years ago.

The latecomers also enjoyed themselves. One boy soaked up a week's worth of lessons in one evening. He showed strong signs of regret that he had waited so long for his first entry.

Holding VBS was a struggle for us this year. A few months ago we were not sure we would have enough volunteers to make it happen. In the end, people came through. We had the most peaceful VBS since we revived it two years ago. I hope the experience of this year will make it easier to generate enthusiasm for 1999.

At our church we hold VBS primarily as an outreach to neighborhood kids. Some of them attend Sunday School with us or elsewhere throughout the year. For others, however, our Vacation Bible School is their only formal exposure to Christianity.

We have a few kids come each year just because they are hungry. They know a snack is part of the program. I picture the empty shelves and refrigerator at home that would lead a child to sit through one hour and 50 minutes of program to get a 10-minute snack.

VBS is a learning experience for us at our church, more for those of us who help than for the kids who attend. There are two key stresses. The first is that helping with VBS requires us to give rather than to receive. As a pastor I find that people tend to come to church to get rather than to give. Reversing the flow is often painful and sometimes impossible.

The second stress is a conflict of cultures. We used to talk about the generation gap, reckoning a generation to be about 20 years. The culture gaps of today have about five-year intervals. I hear people talk about "Generation X" but I think we are working on "Generation Y" and are headed for "Generation Z."

For example, one boy—a fine young man at that—told me the other day that it was just my opinion to hold that it was wrong that Hitler killed 6,000,000 Jews. I didn't know what to say next. So to hear children shouting at the top of their lungs, "I'm a CHRISTIAN!" gives me hope.

During the five evenings of VBS we watched children develop an understanding of who God is, of what Jesus did for us. Those children showed how comfortable they were sitting reverently in God's house. They had come to a place where they were experiencing love and--this is especially important for kids—where they had fun.

The past two years we have not done very much in the way of follow-up. I think this time we see a path forward, a path which leads from the church to the church. We hope to see some of our VBS kids walk that path and reenter church by way of our Sunday School in September.

Something like a plan begins to shape up. It is a plan to win the minds of young people by winning their hearts first. If we can do that then we have a pretty fair chance of one day winning their hands as well.

Volunteers, Items Needed For Thrift Shop

The Christian Crossing Thrift Shop, founded by the not-for-profit Garrett Cooperative Ministry Inc., is now open to the public and is ready to accept and distribute donated useable household furnishings, appliances, accessories, and other items for local persons in need. However, there is still work to be done at the center, located adjacent to the railroad crossing in Loch Lynn, and volunteers are asked to respond to one or more work sessions that are slated over the next two weeks.

"Helping hands are needed to clean up, fix up, paint, and renovate the Thrift Shop," stated Robert Huebner, chairman of the sponsoring agency. "We are asking persons to donate an hour, a day, or an evening, whatever time they can spare, on Thursdays, July 16, 23, and 30, beginning at 6 p.m., and on Saturdays, July 18 and 25, beginning at 9 a.m." He said that board members would be present to direct activities.

Packets of information for volunteers are available by telephoning 301-334-6339.

The shop is open Tuesdays and Thursdays from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. and the first and third Saturdays of each month from 9 a.m. to noon. The items are available to persons in the community whose needs exceed their means and/or those who have lost their material possessions because of fire, flooding, or other circumstances.

Rubber Duckies Face Time Trials On Little Yough

By Peggy Santamaria

In anticipation of the upcoming first-ever-in-Oakland rubber duckie races on the Little Youghiogheny River, Mayor Asa McCain faced the daunting task of judging time trials for four or five of the fair feathered fowl this week. "He does whatever the job demands," explained town manager Glenn Tolbert as he watched from the shoreline with admiration and concenetration.

As the contestants plunged into the river (like ducks take to water, so to speak), the fast flowing current carried the critters rapidly downstream. "They really move right out," commented a fellow journalist, also bent on breaking this hot news story.

McCain, dressed in the required attire of the sport, scooped the birds from the water at the completion of each trial. The decision was made after each fowl showed his/her stuff: The town would order a gross of the winning specimen for the actual racing event.

Ducks will be available for purchase for $5 each (cheep), and each contestant-duck will "wear" a number. Competitors will approach the starting line under the bridge on Third Street for the 2 p.m. starting "gun."

Cheering crowds are expected to line the banks of the river and wait anxiously for results at the finish line, which will be behind the Mountain Fresh Pavilion.

The Department of Natural Resources has offered to assist with this event by stringing net across the river at the finish line. The photo finish will be recorded. Amazing and as yet unknown prizes will be given to the owners of the winning ducks.

All funds collected will benefit the Save Oakland Station fund and the downtown revitalization project.

Extension Service. Both organizations provide training in developing business plans, assessing and accessing markets, and preparing loan applications.

NBDP funds will be used to assist individuals to start or expand small "micro" businesses through training, technical assistance, credit enhancement, and counseling.

In keeping with Governor Parris N. Glendening's nationally recognized "Smart Growth" initiative to help stimulate Maryland's established, older communities, NBDP provides flexible, gap financing (up to 50 percent of total project cost) for many small businesses starting up or expanding in targeted urban, suburban, or rural revitalization areas throughout the state.

The Maryland Department of Housing and Community Development works with partners to revitalize communities, encourage home ownership, expand affordable housing opportunities, and enhance Maryland's historic sites and traditions.

Local Theatre Slates Auditions And Performances

Our Town Theatre, Oakland, has announced that auditions for Peter Shaffer's hilarious, one-act farce Black Comedy are scheduled for Tuesday, July 21, from 1 to 2:30 p.m. and from 7 to 9 p.m. at the theatre. Roles for eight actors are available; they include four actors in their 20s (two males and two females); and four middle-aged actors (three males and one female).

The performances will be held on the evenings of August 6, 7, and 8. According to Jane Avery, director of the production, the rehearsal period for this play will be "extremely intense."

We're looking at a matter of two weeks, so the pressure will be on," said Avery, "but the play is so funny—such a romp—with its mistaken identities, madcap antics, and cockeyed situations, that more than likely, the cast will be absolutely delighted with it and won't bemoan the heavy schedule."

Tickets for the play will cost $3 per person and will be available beginning July 25.

Next on the OTT agenda, on July 22, the theatre will present An Evening at the Improvs for adults. "Improvisation is a spontaneous type of theatrical experience in which the actors create scenes without using a script," noted Avery. "Usually some sort of circumstances are given to the actors, who then create the scene off the top of their heads. Adrenalin rushes abound in this type of theatrical experience; it's very entertaining, and these exercises build self-confidence and give actors the ability to think fast and land on their feet." Improvs for adults will last from 8 to 10 p.m.; the cost is $2.

Local attorney Bob Watson is sponsoring a fundraiser for OTT on July 24 at 7 p.m., by producing a one-man show titled The Land of Poets' Pride, an evening of recited verse, written by notable poets such as Yeats, Alden, Poe, Donne, Frost, etc. "We are really grateful to Bob for this project," commented Avery. "Not only does it create an interesting and informative evening for Garrett County, but it will help us pay some of the numerous bills for renovations."

Tickets are $10 per person and may be reserved by calling the theatre at 301-334-5640 or contacting Bob or Rita Watson.

At a 2 p.m. matinee on Saturday, July 25, students from Southern High School and Southern Middle School will reprise The Jack Tales, a series of one-act Appalachian plays for children. Starring in the productions are Mikey Virts, Brianne Meyers, Carrie Yommer, Josh Teets, Mika Myers, Suzanne Gilbert, Miriam Sincell, Andy Seib, Jessica Hinebaugh, Annie Neville, Janet Cook, and Rachel Paugh. Avery said that children and their parents will enjoy these plays, which consist of Jack Fear No Man, Wickad John and the Devil, Jack and the Robbers, Jack and the Witch's Tale, and Jack and Ole Greasy Beard. Tickets may be reserved at the theatre starting today; the cost is $3 per person.

In addition to these events, the Summer Play Reading Series is in full swing at OTT. Starting at 7 p.m. on Sunday evenings and costing only a donation, the play scheduled for this week, July 19, is P.J. Barry's The Octet Bridge Club, and on Sunday, July 26, it is the French-Restoration comedy The Misanthrope. "Both plays are wonderful choices," commented Avery. "Bridge Club is a charming production, which features eight sisters who meet for a game of bridge in 1934 and then again a decade later. Moliere's The Misanthrope is a classic play, which holds a mirror to the society of 1666 as well as to that of 1998."

Questions concerning any of the above activities may be directed to the theatre box office at 301-334-5640.

BOE Reviews

Stephens of the Office for Children, Youth, and Families. "It would truly be a collaborative program," Massi said. Further information will be presented to the board at a later date.

Reading/Language Arts

The recently completed programs of studies for reading and language arts were disbursed among the board members to review and discuss. Dr. Brenda McCartney, assistant school superintendent, coordinated the team that had developed the programs for K-5 and 6-8.

Board president Patrick Riley stated his appreciation that the program includes phonics as a language arts tool. "It was a long time getting this into the program," he said.

Health

The health program of studies for grades 6-8 has been displayed for public review and input. Dr. McCartney reviewed the program with board members.

She pointed out that the presentation of the information will differ from previous years, should the board approve this program. "We will be teaching in gender-separate classrooms," she said. In previous years health was taught in mixed-gender classes for students in grade 6-8. "Several parents and teachers had suggested this change," Dr. McCartney said.

Following the board review of parental comment and program of study, Dr. McCartney said she was "very comfortable" with the curriculum. The board will vote on the program of studies and the recommended text, Totally Awesome Health, at next month's meeting.

The course materials are currently on display at the board of education office in Oakland.

Mathematics Text

During the recent months mathematics text series have been reviewed for introduction into grades K-5. Dr. McCartney explained that the committees involved had selected a series from Macmillan Publishing Company that would upgrade the instructional materials currently in use.

"We will recommend the new series for grades K-2 for this year," Dr. McCartney said. She explained that as a result of reductions in the proposed school budget, the new texts cannot be purchased for grades 3-5 this year. "We hope to be able to phase them in next year," she said.

Other Concerns

In other action board members approved the purchase of computer software/hardware that will be used for a wide area network between the central board office and 16 locations throughout the county. The comprehensive package will be used for financial and student applications.

The board voted to accept personnel action, including the resignation of Grantsville Elementary School principal Dale Garlitz.

Mike Sines, supervisor of building maintenance, presented information on several issues including the comprehensive maintenance plan, plans for a food service walk-in cooler/freezer and storage area, and a program for deregulated electricity purchase.

Puzzley Run Barn Dance, Pig Roast To Benefit HPI

Plans are under way for an evening of music, dancing, and dining to raise funds for Heifer Project International (HPI). The event planned is a pig roast, catered by S&S Catering, and an old-time barn dance, to be held at Bietschehof Farm, Grantsville, July 24, hosted by Puzzley Run Folklife Center.

Jean Durst, an active member in HPI and director of the folklife center, described the heifer project, an agricultural aid program for rural areas. HPI teaches environmentally sound farming practices, starting with planting fodder, preparing soils, building animal pens, learning how to raise crops and live-stock, and learning how to work in a group within the community, Durst said.

Besides teaching agriculture skills, HPI, through a system of donations, provides the animals that bring the farm to life. HPI publishes a "gift list" of animals that individuals or groups can donate. The list includes: heifers, llamas, goats, rabbits, chickens, and honeybees.

HPI was developed more than 50 years ago, based on the concepts of midwestern farmer Dan West. Over 115 countries have since participated and have reaped the benefits of improved health and economy.

"The goals of the project are reflective of the proverb: 'If you give a man a fish, he will eat for a day. If you teach him to fish, he will eat for a lifetime,'" she said.

The fund-raising event will begin at 6 p.m. and dinner will be served continuously until 8 p.m. Dancing will follow. There will be displays depicting the work of HPI and an exhibit of farm animals of the kind on the HPI gift list.

Tickets for the pig roast and dance will be $10 per person. "The cost of food is the only expense that will come out of the ticket money. Everyone involved in the event is donating services for HPI. We are hoping for a good turnout," Durst said.

For reservations persons may call 301-895-3742, 301-387-2789, or 334-8311.

GCC Accepting Applications For MLS Curriculum

The Continuing Education and Training Division of Garrett Community College is now accepting applications for those interested in pursuing a career in the medical transcription field. GCC's Medical Language Specialist curriculum is designed for students without experience in the field to become entry level medical transcriptionists.

Tom Kierstead, associate director, explained, "The truly wonderful part of this school-to-work curriculum is the partnership that GCC has developed with The Accuracy Center Inc. (TAC), a Garrett County corporation. Students who successfully complete the curriculum may move into one-year paid apprenticeships, and ultimately into employment with TAC. Of course, there is no requirement that students work for TAC if they wish to pursue other options. We will begin our second core group in September 1998.

The MLS curriculum is approved for financial aid and all applicants are asked to complete the "Free Application for Federal Student Aid." Prerequisites for entry into the curriculum include English and typing skills. Students must demonstrate readiness for, or completion of, college freshman English (ENG-101), and must accurately type a minimum of 45 words-per-minute. In addition, all potential students must complete an application to the program. In the event there are more than 18 qualified applicants to the curriculum, all apphcants will be ranked and the entry process will be selective.

"The MLS curriculum is an intense nine-month, full-time commitment," Kierstead continued, "and dedicated students who wish to improve their work skills will find it challenging and rewarding. Our first core group has 11 dedicated students, all expecting to complete the curriculum at the end of July. We are very pleased that all 11 have demonstrated their will to persevere and complete this course of study."

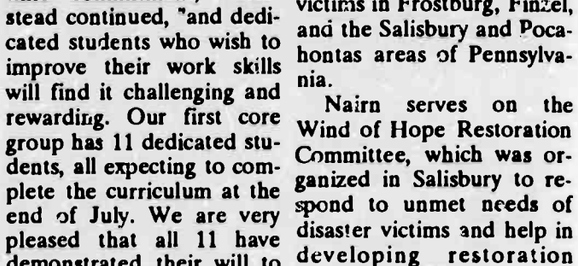
Anyone who desires additional information or wishes to schedule an orientation meeting should call Tom Kierstead at 301-387-3084. The deadline to submit applications is July 20. Potential students are asked to submit their materials well before the deadline.

Concert In Park To Benefit Area Tornado Victims

Accident will host a Concert in the Park to benefit victims of the tornados that swept through the region recently. The event will be held Sunday, July 19, beginning at 5 p.m. at the fire hall near town park east.

The Accident Concert Band will perform, along with fiddler Ellinor Benedict. In addition, Jeanie Ross will lead a karaoke.

Rev. Randy Nairn, who is coordinating the event, explained that there will be no charge to attend the concert, but a free will offering will be accepted. "The Aid Association for Lutherans has offered to match, dollar for dollar, all money donated at the concert," he said.



The funds raised at the concert, combined with the AAL donation, will be distributed among tornado victims in Frostburg, Finzel, and the Salisbury and Pocahontas areas of Pennsylvania.

Nairn serves on the Wind of Hope Restoration Committee, which was organized in Salisbury to respond to unmet needs of disaster victims and help in developing restoration plans, he explained.

The concert in the fire hall pavilion will be held rain or shine. Refreshments will be provided.

He explains why he chose the Early College Admission Program. "I am always looking for a challege, I feel that challenging myself at a higher education institution is just what I need to be successful in the coming years. Kitzmiller Set For Homecoming, School Reunion

The 10th annual Kitzmiller Homecoming is slated for the weekend of Friday, July 24, through Sunday, July 26. The town's homecoming festivities will coincide with the 75th anniversary celebration of the Kitzmiller School and a reunion of all former students of the school, which was founded in 1923.

The weekend kicks off on Friday with a family fun night from 6 to 10 p.m. at the school. The evening's Hawaiian luau theme will feature a costume and a dance contest, music, food, and games. Admission is $2 per person, $3 per couple, and $5 for a family of four. For further information on the family fun night, sponsored by the Kitzmiller Empowerment Group, interested persons may call 301-453-3193 or 301-453-3280.

The festivities continue on Saturday as the Kitzmiller Lions Club begins serving chicken dinners in the town park at noon. To reserve a dinner in advance interested persons may call 301-453-3433. Live music will be provided from 1 to 4 p.m. by Arnold Smith of Pennsylvania. In addition, there will be the annual horseshoe pitching tournament, police K-9 and bloodhound demonstrations, food, games, and other entertainment and activities.

THE HALLS OF THE KITZMILLER SCHOOL WILL ECHO ONCE AGAIN this weekend with the now-grown voices of former students dating back to the school's founding in 1923. The 75th anniversary Kitzmiller School Reunion, which coincides with the 10th anniversary Kitzmiller Homecoming celebration, will be held the weekend of July 25. Taken from the 1927 school yearbook, this photo shows the school at a time when Calvin Coolidge was in the White House, the exploits of Charles Lindbergh and Babe Ruth were being celebrated by millions of Americans, and coal was king in Kitzmiller.

As part of the Kitzmiller reunion activities, the Kitzmiller School will be open for tours that afternoon, with copies of old yearbooks and other memorabilia on display of school days and the town's history. The 18th Kitzmiller School reunion dinner will be held at 6 p.m. Saturday evening. Dinner reservations are required and may be made by calling Joy Rae Brown at 301-724-3411.

The weekend's activities come to a close on Sunday afternoon with social time and reception, complete with refreshments, at the school from 1 to 4 p.m. Tours of the school will once again be available as well.

"The Kitzmiller Civic Association would like to thank everyone who has participated in the past years, and who are making it possible to make it to our 10th year" of the Kitzmiller Homecoming, a spokesperson said.

For further information on any of the weekend's activities interested persons may call the individuals listed above or Barbara McKenney at 301-453-3433.

Notes from Bittinger

by Joan Sussman

The Central Garrett Little League All-Stars, ages 9-10, won second place in the Lonaconing Tournament. Playing on the team were Max Beitzel, Charlie Smith, and Scott Bass from Bittinger area.

The All-Stars, ages 11-12, didn't fare quite as well, as they lost their first two games in a tournament in Barton. Playing for Central Garrett were Matthew Bass, Brent Housely, and Torrey Poholsky.

Rodney and Marci Glotfelty and family attended the Pittsburgh Pirates game on Sunday. Unfortunately, the Pirates lost to the Phillies, 11-4, but it was a perfect day for a baseball game and the Glotfelty kids had a great time, especially the "big kid," Daddy Rodney.

Last Saturday the chicken barbecue at the Bittinger Fire Department was, like always, a big success. Over 300 dinners were served. It was great to be able to serve the "hay crew" with those delicious chicken dinners. The next barbecue will be part of the Bittinger Picnic to be held August 15 at the picnic's new location at the Bittinger fire hall.

Torrey Poholsky is participating this week at a soccer camp in Oakland. The coaches are from Ireland and England.

Henry Bowser and wife Bonnie and son William, from Harrisonburg, Va., spent the weekend with his mother, Katherine Bowser.

Lillian Harvey and niece, Ruth Chloros, Hyattsville, visited Martha and Hamill Glotfelty from July 8 through July 12. While in Garrett County, Lillian visited her brother, Earle Harvey, and Raymond and Wesley Klotz, and also attended the Rodeheaver reunion at the Broadford Recreation Area, where she also visited with her other brother, Carl Harvey, and wife Naomi, and great nephew, Harvey Glotfelty, and family. They made several car trips to Aurora and on many of the beautiful back roads of Garrett County, even visiting the home of her grandfather, Josephus Harvey, and her mother, on the Sand Flat Road.

Keith Brenneman's two children, Kasey, 13, and Kris, 11, of New Market, spent this week with Ralph and Marie Brenneman. The hay fields kept them entertained.

Weekend visitors of the Bill Southerly family over the 4th of July were Mr. and Mrs. Brooke Greer and children Lindsey, Lauren, and Brent, and Kristen and Bill Bogus and children Billy and Blake of Laurel.

Wednesday evening visitors of the Southerlys were Vanessa and Michael Beaumont and daughter Chelsea of Tavares, Fla. They also visited their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Resh.

Friday afternoon birthday guests of Landon and Tyler Southerly were Matt Younkin, Robbie, Darryl, and Elliott Glotfelty, Scott and Matthew Bass, and Torrey Poholsky.

Last week, Claire Sussman and Blakely Glotfelty held a "Barbie Camp" for little girls ages 5 and 6. Claire and Blakely did a lot of planned activities and crafts for their little campers. Attending the camp as campers were Kelsey Morrison, Emma Bass, Grace Herpel, and Meredith Sussman. Also joining in the fun were Caitlin Sussman and Kelsey's cousins from Massachusetts, Whitney and Courtney. The last day was celebrated with the traditional campfire, featuring songs, skits, stunts, and a picnic attended by their parents and siblings. Marci Glotfelty was the most gracious adult supervisor for the camp. I was very impressed with Claire's and Blakely's work on the camp with their many meetings, phone calls, and plans. It really paid off since a great time was had by everyone.

Cindy and Lea Stanton and Pam Cutler spent the weekend with Mary Ellen and Steve Preseraves at Fenwick Island, Del. Lea Stanton visited earlier in the week with Alison Searles and her family in Ocean City and spent time with Kandi and Leslie Buckel, who are working in Ocean City this summer.

Sixty descendants of the late Silas and Mary Alice Beachy family and Cornelius Bowser attended the Beachy-Bowser Reunion at the Bittinger fire hall on Sunday. Alice May Bookout, Phillipi, W.Va., served as master of ceremonies and Donna Lee Fronck, Ocean City, gave her secretary-treasurer report. Persons attended from Ohio, Pa., W.Va., and Md. The group will meet again next year, same time, same place.

Kathryn (Yaste) Glotfelty, Pittsburgh, was a weekend guest of Leora Yaste.

It's hay-making season in Bittinger, which means broken-down tractors and flat tires on wagons. We pulled all the stops, to find enough help. Fortunately the weather and extended family and friends enabled our "farmers" to succeed in making some excellent hay by Saturday evening. It is a good thing that there was no hay-making on Sunday since the Barn Soul Band rehearsal was in full swing in the barn. The band was helped along with an excellent new addition, Ann Hershberger McLister, who joined in the fun as a background singer. Ann can sing and dance, and she always wanted to sing in a band. It's good to see a little dream come true.

Ann and Pat McLister spent the week at her mother's, Margaret Hershberger Wagner. The week was filled with activity in keeping the kids happy. They took a trip to Swallow Falls, many boat rides, swimming in the lake, and playing with their local friends, Emma Bass and the Sussman girls. Especially attractive for Colleen were the three pigs of the Sussman girls, which are their 4-H projects. In all the world what Colleen wants most is a pig of her own. I do know a lot of little girls who want a pony of their own, but a pig? Many years ago my sister-in-law, Marci, wanted one when she was a little girl and believe it or not, she got one that lived close by at a farm in the Baltimore area and when real little, stayed a while in her backyard.

Sadly, we lost a rare treasure, a little pony who was completely trustworthy, cute, and sweet as sugar as only a little fat white pony can be. Just about any little girl would have loved "Small Change." He ended a long happy life in our pasture after serving many little riders as their first pony. He was owned by Allison Evans and used by her children and then passed down to my kids. Allison and I, for many years, switched ponies between us to be used as best for their size or talents. My pony "Gamekeeper" lived a long time at Allison's farm and was ridden by Carolyn. They were a successful team in local horse shows until Carolyn outgrew him and my girls were ready for him. "Gamekeeper" came home. So now everything good must come to an end and "Small Change," being well over 20 years old, was not able to return to the Evans farm. But he had a good death on a beautiful summer afternoon surrounded by his old friends, like "Gamekeeper" and "Great Gataby." He was mourned by people who loved him. Claire and I shed buckets full of tears for him. An overnight camp-out visit by Darvey, friend of Claire's, and Aber Branthover, friend of Meredith's, was marred by the pony's death.

Caitlin spent Saturday evening with Dana Hannibal, McHenry. Dana Hannibal, another horse mother and lover, took me and my three girls to visit her new foal, son of Tara. Little Willow was adorable and helped remind me that the endless cycle of birth and death continues to go on. Willow will someday be another sweet adorable grey pony to be loved by lots of little kids.

The descendants of the Buckel-Buckle family will hold their family reunion at the Bittinger fire hall this Sunday, July 19, beginning at noon.

Attending the funeral of Dorothy M. Beachy at Huntingdon, Pa., on Monday, July 6, were relatives, Bill and Thelma Emory, Gary and Kathleen Fratz, Jean Wright, and Ferne and Dave Beachy. Dorothy was the widow of Homer Beachy, who was a resident of the area for many years. (Note her obituary in this week's Republican.)

Weekend visitors of Ferne Beachy and the Sam Stanton family were Emma Bowser, Waynesboro, Pa., and Ruth Beachy, Hesston, Pa. Other guests were Sam J. Bowser and Dorothy Kump from near Gettysburg, Pa.

Bittinger 4-H Club was well represented at the recent Garrett/Allegany 4-H Camp held at the Western Maryland 4-H Center, with nine members in attendance. Two of the Bittinger 4-H group members received special recognition. Robbie Glotfelty's tribe was first place in the tribe competition. Derek Buckel obtained the highest score in marksmanship on the rifle range for the entire camp. He also received an honor camper award.

Ken and Harriett Buckel treated the Bill Buckel family to Sunday lunch out at a local restaurant in honor of Karla's birthday.

Barnes Decides To Withdraw; Swann Appointed

Michael D. Barnes, the Montgomery County businessman appointed by Governor Parris Glendening as the interim comptroller, decided to withdraw from the post last week, according to reports. Barnes had been named as the replacement for the late Louis Goldstein, the state's comptroller for nearly 40 years.

The governor has since appointed Robert Swann as the interim comptroller; Swann was already serving as deputy comptroller.

Patients Risk Factors To Periodontal Disease

Periodontal disease most often presents itself as a painless, chronic infection that starts in the gum tissues and spreads to the root and bone surrounding the tooth. As the bone and supporting tissues are lost, teeth loosen and are eventually lost.

Risk factors associated with periodontal disease are tobacco use (including smoking and smokeless tobacco), diabetes mellitus, calculus, osteoporosis, genetics and a low frequency of professional dental visits.

Eliminating and controlling risk factors are essential to preventing and minimizing the effects of periodontal disease. Good personal habits, including regular dental visits, is the key to a beautiful, healthy smile.

Garrett 3-1 For Second Half Of Legion Season After Week's Split

Garrett County's American Legion baseball team holds a 3-1 record for the second half of its season after beating Frostburg and losing to Fort Cumberland this week.

Rallying to overcome a rough start in its contest with Frostburg this past Thursday at Garrett Community College, Garrett came back to take a 6-5 win on a game-clinching run in the bottom of the ninth inning.

With the score knotted at five runs apiece in the deciding stanza, Garrett's Matt Fritz drew a one-out walk, and aggressive baserunning put him atop second base after a steal on Frostburg catcher Dave Ziler. With the winning run in scoring position, Chris Bittinger cracked a single to right field to bring Fritz around the horn to give Garrett the victory.

Host Garrett had gotten off to a shaky start as Frostburg opened the game by scoring three runs in the first inning. Down 3-0, Garrett came back with a single run in the fourth inning, then broke loose for five runs in the fifth to go up by two.

In the top of the ninth inning Frostburg mounted a two-run rally to pull even with Garrett. A single by Josh Broadwater with one out was followed by a Brian DeHaven double that sent Broadwater to third. Seth Glass drew a walk, Kevin Drew laid down a bases-loaded walk to score Broadwater, then Kevin Filer lifted a sacrifice fly to push DeHaven across the plate with the tying run and set the stage for the heroics of Fritz and Bittinger.

On the day, Garrett's Jason Beaver doubled once and singled twice, Josh Bosley doubled and singled, and Jordan Uphold tallied a pair of singles. Frostburg's DeHaven homered and doubled, and Broadwater belted a two-run homer and later added a single.

Starting Garrett pitcher Scott Sisler was lifted during the course of Frostburg's three-run first inning in favor of reliever Jeff Carr, who held sway on the mound until Uphold was called in from the bullpen in the seventh inning. Uphold himself was relieved on the mound by Bosley in the eighth inning. Shawn Opel, who had relieved starter Broadwater in the sixth inning, took the pitching loss for Frostburg.

Combined totals of 28 runs on 28 hits, six home runs, and nine fielding errors left pitchers for both Garrett and Fort Cumberland Post #13 reeling after Saturday's matchup, won by Cumberland 17-11. Garrett jumped out to an early lead with a four-run second inning and a two-run third stanza in response to Cumberland's one-run leadoff inning score.

Undaunted by a third-inning grand slam by Cumberland's Sam Long, which cut a big Garrett lead to one run, Garrett's offense roared back and scored three times in the top of the fifth inning. Cumberland answered with four runs in the bottom half of the inning to take a one-run lead, which it padded with another run in the bottom of the sixth. Garrett fought back to tie the score in the top of the seventh inning, but a two-run homer by Angelo Bascelli anchored the four-run bottom of the inning to put Cumberland on top for good. Two insurance runs in the eighth inning iced the game for good.

Showing a powerful offense even in the losing effort, Garrett's Bosley and Chad Warnick each belted a two-run homer and Bittinger added a solo shot. Uphold and Mike Shahan each singled and doubled, while Keith Parks singled twice. Brian Powell added a solo shot to round out Cumberland's trio of homers, and Long added a double and a single to his hitting total. Jeremy Boyer singled twice and scored four times, and Matt Wright punched out four singles of his own.

Cumberland's Gabe Schaidt took the win on the mound, staving off any further Garrett comebacks over the final three innings.

Garrett is scheduled to take on Frostburg Faraday in Frostburg this evening at 5:30 p.m.

Salisbury Lions Slate Tri-State Ball Tournament

The Salisbury (Pa.) Lions Club will host the 25th Annual Little League Tournament for teams in the tri-state area. The event will take place from July 25 through August 1.

A parade is planned as a kickoff event Friday evening, July 24. It will begin at 6:45 p.m. and will be followed with a fireworks display at the Little League field. Refreshment stands will be placed at several locations in the area.

Teams from Grantsville, Oakland, Salisbury, Cumberland, and Keyser, W.Va., will be among the participants in the competition.

"Even though the tornado of May 31 caused a need for rebuilding and restoration, the tournament is scheduled as originally planned," said club president Raymond L. Brown.

The public is invited to attend the tournament and "to help our youth return to a more normal summer season," Brown concluded.

Grantsville Days Tennis Tourney Results Released

Results of the Grantsville Days tennis tournament are not yet complete. Rain delayed some of the matches scheduled for the weekend, and a couple of playoffs leading to the championship remain to be slated.

In the men's competition, Justin Stephens waits to play the winner of the match between David Butler and Scott Streisel to determine the men's singles champion.

Information is available on the women's and mixed doubles contests. Melissa Burkhart was named women's singles champion. Helen Nickles and Linda Wengerd teamed up to take the title of women's doubles champions.

The winners of the mixed doubles competition were Melissa Burkhart and Scott Streisel.

All participants in the tournament received T-shirts. The event was sponsored by the Meshack Browning dining room of the Holiday Inn, Grantsville.

Hot Stove League Action

Western Garrett Wins, TCI Splits As Hot Stove Season Winds Down

Western Garrett crushed the Kiwanis yesterday to boost its record to 11-5 in the Hot Stove League, while TCI Computers split a pair in overwhelming Fort Ashby before being trampled by the Cumberland Moose and drop back to where it started the week, with an even .500 record, now 8-8.

Keith Artice and Greg Speicher led the way on the mound and at the plate in Western Garrett's 14-8 romp over the Kiwanis at Al Martin Field in Cumberland. Artice pitched until seventh inning, when Speicher came in to close. The only close call for the Garrett pitchers came in the third inning when the Kiwanis put together a five-run tally to go up 7-1, but Artice settled down after that scare and only allowed one run until being lifted.

On offense, Garrett's eight-run fourth inning and four-run fifth inning hammered the nails in the Kiwanis' coffin. Speicher drove in three runs in the fourth inning and Artice drove in two as each player collected a double on the day. Jeremy Frazee doubled and singled, and Bryan Lenhart and Denny Thorp each punched out a pair of singles.

Kevin Johnston belted a two-run homer in the lead-off inning for the Kiwanis, and Robbie Grogg added a pair of doubles and a single.

It was a week of ups and downs for TCI Computers, for after crushing Fort Ashby 14-3 to open its week, the team did a complete 180-degree turn and was annihilated by Cumberland Moose 15-6.

TCI took Fort Ashby by scoring in scoring seven runs in both the first and the third innings during the Monday contest at Garrett Community College. Complete-game winner Adam Breneman struck out 10 batters and held the visitors to five hits, helped along by some sterling fielding gems by his teammates.

Breneman led the way at the plate as well, amassing a triple and two singles, while Greg Whittemore doubled and singled, and Alan King and Guy Beitzel each tallied a pair of angles. Lorna Nasl doubled and singled for Fort Ashby, and his teammate Justin Llewellyn duplicated Breneman's batting statistics by hitting a triple and two singles.

TCI's bubble burst the next day as the Moose came out snorting fire at Allegany High School. A pair of grand slams from winning pitcher Bobby Parker and Nathan Dillon helped give Moose its first win of the season and drop TCI to an even 8-8 record.

Breneman collected a triple and a single in the losing effort, while Matt Logsdon tripled, Eric Newcomer doubled and singled, and Hanson Gross doubled for the victors. Beitzel took the loss on the mound.

The Hot Stove League schedule published at the start of the season indicated yesterday to be the final day of the regular season. A schedule of make-up games required because of the soggy weather this spring has not been submitted to The Republican, but reports indicate that TCI will be traveling to Allegany High School tonight to take on the Cumberland Lions.

Oaks Split With Morgantown; Poised For Hyndman Showdown

After splitting a pair of doubleheaders against Morgantown this week, the Oakland Oaks remain atop the Pen-Mar League with a 14-6 record as a showdown with second-place Hyndman looms ahead this weekend. Oaks' pitcher Justin Foutz, fresh from being honored as the league's co-pitcher of the week for an outstanding performance against Morgantown on Sunday, will be among the rested starters ready to take on the hard-hitting Hyndman lineup.

In the opening doubleheader of the week's twin-bill stands, Foutz fired a complete-game two hitter to deliver a 3-1 victory over visiting Morgantown. The nightcap saw the Oaks rally from a nine-run deficit by scoring nine times in the fourth inning to spark an 11-10 win.

Foutz's fourth win against no losses was not a surprise to Oaks' coach Terry Helbig, who says his 6'2", 220-pound fastballer comes by his success through an outstanding work ethic. "Justin is one of the hardest working kids I've ever seen," Helbig commented. "He earns what he gets by running, lifting weights, putting in extra practice time, and going to tryouts. He's got all the tools, including a 91-mile-an-hour fastball, but it's his determination and willingness to work that makes him a 4-0 pitcher." The Keyser, W.Va., native will start his freshman year at Potomac State this fall.

Foutz's victory on Sunday was paced by a solo home run by Matt Lupis in the second inning, a pair of doubles and a single by Ernie Galusky, and an RBI double by Alan Sebold and an RBI single by Jeremy Fitzwater. Lance Hoover started for Morgantown and pitched until giving way to Paul Miller in the fourth inning. Miller shut out the Oaks for the rest of the contest.

In Sunday's second game, Morgantown jumped out to an early lead by scoring eight times in the second inning, sparked by a three-run Phil Petko homer. The visitors added two more runs in the third to a single Oakland run to go up by a 10-1 margin and set the stage for the Oaks' explosion in the bottom of the fourth.

Ryan Folk doubled once and singled twice for the game, tallying two RBI, while Galusky singled twice and drove in a run, Fitzwater tripled and doubled for three RBI, and Jimmy Pamepinto singled twice and doubled for two RBI. Sebold and Joey DiSimone each doubled and singled, and Chris Peters doubled.

Morgantown's Miller hit a single and a solo home run to add to Petko's round-tripper, Josh McMillan doubled, J.G. Louden singled twice and drove in a run, and David Maust drove in two runs on a pair of singles.

The Oaks put four pitch-

By Robert Yonke

With the recent spate of hot weather, summer has jumped into high gear. And, generally, this means that the fishing should be slowing, particularly in the lakes. However, recent pan fish action on Deep Creek Lake has been very good. Some very large crappie have been hitting in spots that typically don't support a lot of them at this time of year.

One theory is that the weed growth has offered habitat in new places and attracted the fish. Look for these large crappie in about 10 to 12 feet of water on the edge of weed growth. If you are picking weeds up on your rig, you are probably fishing the right spots. There should be big perch in the same areas along with Deep Creek's monster bluegills.

RIVER FISHING BONUS

Trout fishermen had a tough spring because of the rains and resultant high river flows. But, this early impediment has left a lot of fish in the delayed harvest areas and merely postponed the action in the catch and release projects.

So, don't put that fly rod away. There are still fish in the delayed harvest section of the Casselman (Route 68 to the Pennsylvania line). Drift nymphs along the bottom of the deeper holes if the resident trout aren't responding to either tan caddis or terrestrials.

The lower stretch of the Savage has turned on with caddis and, as is always true of the Savage, midge action. This is also a good terrestrial stream. Black ants seem to produce well here, particularly in the long flat stretch above the old white water competition area.

At normal flow, the Yough will be fishing well. There are a tremendous number of fish in the catch and release section between the Deep Creak power plant and Sang Run Park at the bottom of Hoyes Run and walk in. It is about a quarter mile to the river where you can pick up a trail that parallels the stream downstream. A nice way to fish this is to walk the trail for a mile or so below the island and then wade back up. Caddis patterns and terrestrials along with Blue Wing Olives should bring fish to the surface. If not, try big nymphs in the deep holes.

The North Branch of the Potomac offers real big fish opportunities. Fishing here is subject to water flow from the Jennings Randolph Dam; but, if the flow is right, this is the place to be. Best access is through Barnum, W.Va.

Current water flow information is available from Spring Creek Outfitters at 301-387-2034.

HUNTING SEASON PREP

Though hunting season is a few months down the road, local bow hunters have been working hard at D & B Sport Shop's 3-D Course in Deer Park. Practice now makes for better results in season. Also, you have probably noticed that the outdoor TV shows have begun to feature hunting subjects. There is a lot of good information offered here for both novice and experienced hunters of all species.

PERSONAL WATERCRAFT SAFETY

Maryland's Personal Watercraft (PWC) Safety Campaign has received the Boating Education Advancement Award from the National Safe Boating Council. Apparently, the program is paying off with more than just awards in that there has been an improvement in safety statistics state wide. There have been no PWC fatalities here since 1995.

Over the last six years, the number of PWC registered in Maryland has tripled. And, according to DNR statistics, while they make up only 7 percent of Maryland's registered boats, they were involved in 40 percent of last year's boating accidents that resulted in personal injury. PWCs account for one of every three citations issued by NRP officers. The most frequent PWC violations cited by officers are distance violations. The law requires PWC operators to slow to six knots when within 100 feet of another boat, person, pier, piling, or anything else in the water. PWCs do not have brakes and cannot be steered once the throttle is released. As a result, the failure to slow when coming near another boat or person in the water is the largest contributing factor to PWC accidents.

BIG WALLEYES ARE SMARTER

If you suspect that big walleyes are tougher to catch, science supports you. Scuba divers observing walleyes confirm that the bigger the fish, the smarter and more wary it is. Walleyes of a pound or two often came to within 12 or 16 inches of divers. Fish of three or four pounds stayed three to five feet from divers. Very large walleye of 10 pounds or more stayed at least seven feet away from divers.

Earn a Bachelor's Degree at Potomac State College ?????

Potomac State Needs Your Help!!

As Interim Dean of Academic Affairs, I've been asked to determine whether Potomac State College should be a site for a West Virginia University Regents Bachelor of Arts Degree.

A WVU Regents Bachelor of Arts Degree is a legitimate 4-year degree designed to allow people to earn a portion of the college credit based on the learning experiences they have received in the process of living their day-to-day lives. Job training, hobbies, special projects, and other life experiences can translate into college credit.

Students do need to take some college courses, but not all of the courses need to be taken from WVU or even Potomac State.

I need to know who within the boundaries of Potomac State's service area would be interested in pursuing a Regents Bachelor of Arts Degree through Potomac State if Potomac State were granted permission to become a WVU-RBA Site.

If you would be interested in pursuing a WVU-RBA Degree through Potomac State College, please fill out the coupon below and mail it to:

Dr. Walter J. Asonevich

Thank you.

Sailboat Racing
On Deep Creek Lake

SUMMERTIME, LIVIN' IS EASY, BUT THE WINDS ARE LIGHT

By Dan Muss

As my wife and I headed out to rig our Flying Scot for the first race the air looked dead. We let go of our mooring and headed for the committee boat slowly, very slowly. It took us over a half an hour to get there and discover a postponement flag flying; there were still many sails bobbing about going nowhere. But at 12:20 p.m. the Laser 10-minute horn sounded and just it did a little breeze came up. By the time the Scots A were starting we had a nice 3-5 knot breeze for the first race. It turned out to be a perfect day for sailboat racing.

We got a good start and finished in the middle. As we picked up the mooring again, my wife announced that she was too tired to race the second race, and so we unrigged and headed up to have lunch.

At lunch I was chatting with the Workmeisters, who have only been out racing a few times this year, and we decided that I would go along and see if I could help them do better in the Scots B Fleet. That I did and on the water I worked with them on sail trim.

The things that make a sailboat go are the sails; the things that make them go fast are the correct setting of the sheets and the correct shape of the sail. So we worked on those. The way we determine the correct shape of a sail is by looking at the orientation of the upper batten in each of the sails. (Battens are the slats that are inserted into pockets on the trailing edge of the sails that help give the

SMALL SOLDIERS

Rated PG-13 - Running time: 1:48

For the life of me, I do not understand the point of making a movie that is obviously intended for children and yet is so violent that it requires a PG-13 rating. This film is about toys, for Pete's sake. It's designed to introduce a new line of action figures that will surely appear in stores soon. But the purpose of the toys in this story, written by Ted Elliott, Zak Penn, Adam Rifkin, Terry Rossio, and Gavin Scott, and directed by Joe Dante, is not remotely wholesome or creatively instructive. It is all about killing.

Alan Abernathy (Gregory Smith) works at his dad's toy store. The place gets next to no business, because Alan's father insists on stocking only non-violent merchandise. The place looks like an antique shop, or a toy museum, and Alan hardly has anything to do when he's there. But one day, while his dad's away, he orders some soldiers from a new line being promoted by the Globotech company.

The company is owned by business cutthroat Gil Mars (Denis Leary), and his plan is to offer toys that actually do something. He and his two top staffmen, Larry Benson (Jay Mohr) and Irwin Wayfair (David Cross), come up with a new set of action figures that contain munitions computer chips obtained illegally from the U.S. defense department. There are two factions: the Gorgonites, a group of non-violent, Tolkein-esque misfits from the planet Gorgon, and their mortal enemies, the Commando Elite force, who are obviously patterned after U.S. Marines or special forces soldiers. Though the Gorgonites, headed by Archer (voice of Frank Langella) are harmless and only want to be left alone, the commandos, whose Patton-like leader is Major Chip Hazard (voice of Tommy Lee Jones), insist on wiping them out, apparently only because they are different.

As the war between the toys escalates, Alan and his girlfriend Christy (Kirsten Dunst) get involved, and what follows is a full-throttle romp through the world of pointless violence. While the "smart" toys ruthlessly battle against anyone who stands in their way, employing homemade guns, bombs and flamethrowers, the humans are no less viscous, running over the small plastic soldiers with lawn mowers and setting them on fire, while the little victims scream and groan realistically as in a real war. And we are supposed to cheer. Even the Gorgonites, who claim to be non-violent, only succeed in the end by adopting a warlike stance, finally joining in the combat with considerable zeal.

Stan Winston's special effects are admittedly quite impressive in this film. And there are quite a few humorous references to old war movies like Patton (1970) and Apocalype Now (1979). Also clever is director Dante's choice to employ actors from the original Dirty Dozen to play the commando characters, including Ernest Borgnine, Jim Brown, Clint Walker, and George Kennedy.

But I was surprised at how boring it is, considering the potential of such an interesting idea. What lessons do we learn here? That what American military forces do best is destroy peace-loving cultures? That violence is the only way to deal with adversity? Or that the best way to succeed in the toy industry is to abandon taste and morality? You decide; I'm not ever going to watch this film again. ★★½

MADELINE

Rated PG - Running time: 1:35

As I approached the theatre to see Madeline, I had little idea what to expect, not being familiar with the popular 1952 children's book by Ludwig Bemelmans. The film's story, penned by Malia Scotch Marmo, Mark Levin, and Jennifer Flackett, is adequately simple for children, though perhaps a bit pedestrian for adults. But what stands out by far is the fact that the film is absolutely plagued with technical faults.

Madeline (nine-year-old Hatty Jones, making her debut performance) is basically a normal little girl, surrounded by other normal little girls, living in a Paris boarding school. Their only parental figure is Miss Clavel (Frances McDormand), a kindly but strict nun. The natural curiosity and wonder of being pre-teen leads them to all sorts of mischief, usually spearheaded by Madeline. But it's all in fun, and mostly harmless, and by the end of the day they are absolved at the conclusion of their bedtime prayers.

Things begin to go awry, however, when a new family moves in next door: the ambassador to Spain, his wife, and their young son Pepito (Kristian de la Osa). Pepito is a spirited lad with no love for little girls, and the lack of any parental presence in his life has caused him to be rather willful. His parents rarely spend time with him, which disturbs Miss Clavel, but he does have a none-too-trustworthy tutor, Leopold (Ben Daniels). There soon develops a sort of war of pranks between Pepito and Madeline, causing dismay among the adults and a strange bond between the two.

When Lord Covington (Nigel Hawthorne), the stodgy owner of the school, announces his intention to dismantle it and sell the property, Madeline must find a way to dissuade any prospective buyers from being interested. She confers with Pepito, and the two come up with a plan. Though Lord Covington has several ambassadors who seem thrilled with the old house, something always goes wrong during their visits. Meanwhile, Leopold is hatching a little plan of his own, and soon Madeline and Pepito must work together to rectify the situation.

This film is cute enough, and the acting is adequate. Jones is charming and quite believable. I was surprised, however, at how shoddily it was produced. Between director Daisy von Scherler Mayer, cinematographer Pierre Alm, and film editor Jeffrey Wolf, I'm not sure who should get the lion's share of the blame. The boom microphone is visible at the top of the screen during probably a third of the film, the framing is bad (people's faces are cut off at the mouth), there are numerous bad cuts, etc. This type of thing is seen once or twice in many movies, but this was like a bloopers festival. I can't imagine why so many errors were either missed or ignored by Mayer, who, in truth, is the one responsible for the final product.

I fear that this is an example of an all-too-common trend in children's filmmaking. Kids won't notice, or care, that the microphone is visible, so don't worry about it. Get the movie out at the lowest possible expense, and if it's a technical disaster, no matter. But the result is a generation of people who don't have any concept of quality. It's the same problem as the rampant bad spelling noticeable on the Internet. It's the mainstreaming of mediocrity. What are kids' movies going to look like in 30 years, when today's children are producing them? For that matter, what are any movies going to look like? ★★★ sails the desired shape.) We try to keep the upper battens of both the main and jibsails parallel to the bottom of the sail (called the foot). This is easier said than done because the only way to sight these upper battens is to look up from the leeward side of the boat which puts ones weight on the wrong side if there is a breeze blowing. I had a good time with the Workmeisters; they did better but still did not place.

On Sunday the air looked dead again, but this time it stayed that way; the race was canceled.

Saturday, Race 1

In the Flying Scot A Fleet Dave and Jane Mahan finished first, Bruce Spinnenweber with Brian Schubert second, and Charles Buffington with Ashley Dodd third. For the Flying Scot B Fleet it was Karl Rath and Dave Bertsch first, Meredith Dodd and Barbara Meredith second, and Jack and Lonnie Seelig third.

In the Laser A Fleet it was Keith Spinnenweber first and Steve Wilson second; in the Laser B Fleet it was Rachael Schubert first and Loren Spinnenweber second.

Saturday, Race 2

Flying Scots A Fleet had Jack and Rebecca Carpenter first, Bruce Spinnenweber with Brian Schubert second, and Al and Marlene Riebel third. In the Flying Scots B Fleet it was Meredith Dodd with John Meredith first, Susan Meehan and Ken Gibbs second, and Ted and Ryan Kemp third.

In the Laser A Fleet it was Keith Spinnenweber first, Steve Wilson second, and Gordie Clefton third. Laser B Fleet had Loren Spinnenweber first and Rachael Schubert second.

Oaks Split

ers on the mound during the course of the contest. Starter Howie Lewis was lifted as Joe Uphold came to the mound in the second, Galusky took over in the third, and Fitzwater assumed pitching duties in the fifth inning, striking out seven over the rest of the way. John Hayes started for Morgantown, with Maust entering in the fourth inning.

A pair of close games Tuesday, marked by the crack of bat on ball as Oakland cranked out 24 hits and Morgantown answered with 23 hits, resulted in the second split of the week for the two closely-matched rivals. Oakland took the first contest 11-10, while Morgantown topped the Oaks 9-7 in the nightcap.

The first game's seesaw battle was a hard-fought contest that brought out the best in the hitters and baserunners for both teams. Oakland jumped out to a 4-0 lead in the top of the first inning, and Morgantown answered with a pair of runs in the bottom of the inning. Oakland scored three runs in the second; Morgantown scored three of its own in the bottom of that inning. Oakland scored four times in the top of the fourth; Morgantown scored four times in the bottom half of that inning.

An additional run by Morgantown in the bottom of the fifth inning cut the score to 11-10, and Lewis, the Oaks' fourth pitcher to take the mound, held Morgantown scoreless for the remainder of the contest.

Matt Lupis belted a pair of doubles and a single in driving in five runs for Oakland, Aaron Taylor punched out four singles in four plate appearances and added two RBI, Folk singled and whacked an RBI double, Fitzwater had an RBI double and drove in a second run on a sacrifice fly, and Galusky added a double.

Morgantown's big weapon, hard-hitting Petko, lived up to his reputation once again as he hammered a two-run homer that witnesses said traveled well over 400 feet. Petko also added a single, Lance Hoover singled and doubled, Steve Nickolow drove in two runs as he singled three times, and David Maust doubled, singled, and drove in a run.

Mark Kenuer started for Oakland, Joey DiSimone came on in the second inning and pitched until the fifth inning, and Seth Tressler was on the mound when Lewis came in to take the save. Morgantown's Miller took the loss.

Morgantown jumped out to an early lead in the nightcap with three runs in the first inning and three runs in the second, which Oakland answered by scoring two in the second and one in the third. Single Morgantown scores in the fourth, fifth, and sixth innings left a three-run Oakland fifth inning for naught as the contest ended with Morgantown up 9-7.

Although the scorecard shows a loss for Oaks' starting pitcher Jason Finch, the Southern High School junior, one of the younger players in the league, had a performance to be proud of. He struck out four batters in three innings. At the plate, Fitzwater had two singles and an RBI, Sebold had a pair of singles and an RBI, and Galusky punched out a pair of singles.

Maust tallied two singles for Morgantown and drove in three runs, J.G. Louden had a trio of singles, Petko whacked an RBI double and a single, and Nickolow hit two singles. Starting pitcher Shawn Wiles took the win, coming off the mound in favor of reliever Josh McMillan in the sixth inning. McMillan was pulled for closer Hayes in the seventh inning.

The Oaks' coming big weekend with Hyndman promises to display some of the finest semi-pro talent in the area as the two teams battle for first place. The Saturday doubleheader will begin at 2:30 p.m. at GCC, and the Sunday twinbill at Hyndman gets underway at 2 p.m.

ble has maintained fruitful collaborations with many living composers, resulting in the emergence of new works for violin and cello.

The Duo served as "Artistic Ambassadors" for the U.S. in Thailand and Laos, and has performed at the Kennedy Center, the Phillips Collection, and the Smithsonian. Currently, Fadial is professor of violin at WVU and Vanderborgh teaches at Alderson-Broaddus College, W.Va.

In 1996, the Duo began collaborating with the Stanislas Quartet bringing together talents from five countries on four continents, and speaking three different languages. Although this could present challenges, the results, according to Washington Post critic Mark Carrington, are "excellent." Performing together at Mount Vernon College, the review headline simply stated, "Wow!"

The Stanlislas Quartet, four members of the Nancy, France, Symphony Orchestra, has risen to prominence as a French ensemble, noted for the originality of their interpretations. Nationally acclaimed, they have performed in numerous festivals and concerts in France and abroad. In addition, the quartet of Laurent Causse, violin, Gee Lee, violin, Paul Fenton, viola, and Jean de Spengler, cello, have recorded five CDs, all of which have received positive response from international critics.

The ensemble will perform Richard Strauss's String Sextet for Capriccio, Opus 85; Michael Ravel's String Quartet in F Major, and Nikolai Rimsky-Korsakov's String Sextet in A Major. The evening's concert is sponsored by Spruce Forest Artisan Village.

All performances take place in the Great Hall of Penn Alps, adjacent to the Spruce Forest Artisan Village on Old Route 40, Grantsville.

ton, and her live-in finance Harold L. Douglas, 22. Tina Bonney's brother, Shawn Bonney, who lives with the couple, reportedly saw Douglas punch her with a closed fist, and saw her attempt to escape down the stairs. She was allegedly then pushed by Douglas, but caught herself.

The arguing continued downstairs, and Douglas is reported to have thrown an iron at Shawn and then to have pushed an ironing board at him. Douglas allegedly said he was going to get his knife and kill both Shawn and his father.

Police arrested Douglas and transported him to the Garrett County Jail. He was later released on his own recognizance.

On His Birthday, July 18

Peaceful be thy sleep, dear son
It is sweet to breathe thy name
In life we loved you dearly
In death wa do the same
Oft we think of you, dear son
And our hearts are sad with pain

Duckworth To Run For House Of Delegates

Lawson L. "Buddy" Duckworth, Frostburg (GC), has announced his candidacy for the Maryland House of Delegates. He submitted the following statement to The Republican.

"Why have I decided to run for office again? For years the elected offices in Garrett and Allegany have given the elected officials free rides, and the only choice voters have is in the primary elections. So who wins? When I ran for county commissioner four years ago, three others announced to run, which was good for the voters in Garrett County.

"I have decided to brake up this monopoly of primary elections deciding who represents all of the citizens in our areas. As long as I am here, there will be no 'free rides.' As you all know I have changed parties, and I have done it for a reason. I want all voters to have a choice in the general election. I am a strong Conservative, and I care for the citizens of Allegany and Garrett counties passionately. I want the voters and taxpayers to be involved in all decisions being made, instead of our representatives doing what they want, at our expense.

"A few years ago, the state of Maryland decided to go to a long range plan of 'Public, Private Partnerships with the State.' That is where we have gone totally wrong, and we are allowing our representatives to go along with this. Most of the deals made with the state have been with private partnerships at the exclusion of the people of Maryland. We have been bombarded with special deals that no one can seem to stop. Where were our elected representatives? Well, they are at the meetings of these deals, and after the elections are over, they are at the signings of those deals.

"Most of these deals are to benefit certain individuals and companies, and they are the contributors to our elected representatives' campaigns. I, as a candidate for House of Delegates, cannot compete with their money, but I have a free announcement in this newspaper, so I must make the most of it. I will not attend political functions, as I do not have the means to do so, but I hope you'll remember me in the general election.

"Maryland operates on 10-year plans and 20-year plans. We, as taxpayers, only try to live one year at a time. When I hear that Western Maryland is going to 'Smoke Stack Free Western Maryland,' what does that say about Westvaco's employees ano the economic impact on the citizens? I would expose all these long-range plans for the people to decide. No company in this state has done as much for clean water and air and cleaning up of the Potomac as Westvaco. I heard the mill manager state: 'We will not work one day out of compliance with the Maryland regulations,' and I believe the man, Mr. Roger Dandridge.

"Forestry is our only renewable resource in Western Maryland. Trees in our area are growing faster than we are harvesting them. We have more and better timber than we had 30 years ago. What of all the jobs that the loss of Westvaco would do to the timber industry and to all those who farm and make a living off their forest? Most people from other areas know nothing of forestry and good forestry practices and do not want any trees cut, so who is winning? The coal industry is important but, once coal is gone it does not grow back. If this resource has to come out of the ground, then let only Maryland operators do it. That way the jobs are Maryland jobs and the paychecks are used in Maryland.

"We have to 'vote' all of these representatives out of office in the general election, and put into office all new people. The only thing I ask is you put into office someone who is passionate about you as a taxpayer. If elected I will only vote the way the citizens in my area want me to vote. I will involve you in every aspect of my representing you. There will never be a meeting held behind closed doors if I am elected. There will never be any more special deals for contributors.

"Remember me on election day and give me the opportunity and I'll remember what I owe to the citizens for the next four years."

co-worker, through a field where he dropped an armful of stolen property.

While the employees were gathering up the items, Yutzy allegedly doubled back to enter the meat packing plant through a rear service door. Once inside, he reportedly pulled wires from the ceiling, overturned several metal carts, damaged a sink, and took a toolbox filled with tools.

Yutzy remained at large until his March arrest by the Maryland State Police, when he returned to western Maryland from Florida, where he had reportedly fled after the January incident.

As part of his sentence, Yutzy was ordered to pay restitution amounts of $300 to Yoder's Meat Packers for the damage incurred, and $400 to the owner of the stolen toolbox and tools. Additional charges of second-degree burglary and misdemeanor malicious destruction of property were dismissed by the State's Attorney's Office.

In a second circuit court case, an Oakland woman failed to appear for a violation of probation hearing, resulting in the filing of additional charges and issuance of a bench warrant for her arrest.

Michelle Dawn Dunkle, 30, who had been granted home detention after her conviction for altering a medical prescription, will face additional charges of felony theft, felony theft scheme, misdemeanor theft, and nine counts of uttering a false document upon her apprehension.

Sheriff's deputies who went to Dunkle's residence to serve the bench warrant on Friday were not able to locate her there. A second warrant was then issued for Dunkle's arrest, charging her with the theft of the electronic transmitting unit strapped to her ankle to monitor her home detention. The unit is valued at $350.

State Jobless Rate Increases, County's Falls

The number of Maryland residents holding jobs rose in May for the third consecutive month. A seasonal increase in the number of job seekers, however, caused Maryland's unemployment rate to inch up slightly from 4.2 percent in April to 4.4 percent in May.

Following seasonal adjustment, the statewide unemployment rate also advanced, rising from 4.5 percent to 4.6 percent.

Meanwhile, the jobless rate in Garrett County decreased from 9.7 percent in April to 8.9 percent in May, three full points below the May 1997 rate.

"Unemployment increases are not uncommon in May," said Secretary Eugene A. Conti Jr. "While seasonal hiring, particularly in trade and services, picks up, the increase in the number of temporary job seekers in search of summer employment normally exceeds job availability."

As schools began their summer recesses in May, students and other seasonal job seekers entered the labor market to begin their work search. Just over 15,250 persons entered the labor market, 8,745 of whom found employment, raising employment to 2,654,950. The remaining job seekers who continued their search caused the unemployment count to rise to 121,497.

Nationally, the number of unemployed also was higher in May, causing the rate to rise marginally from 4.1 percent to 4.2 percent.

A number of businesses added workers to their payrolls in May, with expansion in agricultural services, restaurants, amusements, hotels, and business services leading the advance.

Employment in the western Maryland region grew by more than 2,200 persons, lowering the unemployment rate from 5.6 percent to 5.3 percent.

During May, 13 local jurisdictions reported unemployment rates below the statewide average.

Perrin Declares Candidacy For School Board

Ken Perrin has announced his candidacy to become a member of the Garrett County Board of Education. A native of Virginia, he is currently the postmaster in Oakland.

Prior to coming to Oakland, he was general manager of real estate of the U.S. Postal Service. He attended Mars Hill College in North Carolina and graduated from the University of Richmond Robbins School of Business with a bachelor of science degree in business administration. He completed post graduate work at the University of Virginia, Duke University, and Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Perrin lives in Swanton with Nancy, his wife of 29 years, and their son Lee. They have two daughters, Kristin and Amy, who live in Baltimore and Asheville, N.C., respectively.

Perrin teaches a class in negotiation skills at Garrett Community College and is active in the community. He is a member of the vestry of St. Matthew's Episcopal Church, vice-president elect and chairman of community service in the Oakland Rotary Club, chairman of the Downtown Revitalization Committee of the Greater Oakland Business Association, a member of the Main Street board of directors in Oakland, treasurer of Pinnacle Homeowners' Association, a member of the Save Oakland Station Committee, and a member of the Garrett County Economic Development Corporation.

The biggest challenge facing members of the board of education as the next century approaches, Perrin said, is to continue to prepare youth to be able to compete for jobs, scholarships, and colleges when they leave the Garrett County school system.

By working with the school system as a board member, he said he hopes to "help prepare students for this ever-changing technological world as well as work with the county to attract those types of businesses to locate here." By concentrating on these principles, he said, "we can have excellent employment opportunities in Garrett County for our young children."

Four Strings

Only four strings! But these four strings offer endless possibilities of tone and harmony. They open us up to new horizons of beauty and happiness. And yet, improperly played, these four strings can bring forth unbelievable discord!

There are four strings in life with similar possibilities. They are mind, character, courage and faith.

The truths that fill our minds, the ideals that mold our character, the purposes to which our courage is given, the realities in which we believe: these can fill our lives with rich beauty and happiness or drab ugliness and sorrow.

For centuries our churches and synagogues have been the maestro of these strings of life—helping people bring forth the harmony and beauty God has put in their souls.

You can find music in everyday living through regular worship and prayer.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

YOUR NEIGHBOR
July 19, 1998

Background Scripture:
Proverbs 3:27-35, 14:21
Devotional Reading:
James 2:1-13

Christians sometimes make the mistake of assuming that Jesus' admonition to "love your neighbor as yourself" was something new to his religious contemporaries. It was not. There are many texts in the Old Testament that urge right just and compassionate treatment of one's neighbor. What was new in what Jesus said was the simple way in which he compressed all those teachings into one simple statement.

Jesus also expanded the believer's understanding of who our neighbors are. In the Parable of the Good Samaritan, he helped his followers see that anyone whom we can help is our neighbor. The derivation of the word neighbor comes from the word "nigh" meaning near and "gebur," a dweller—so the neighbor is one who dwells near us. In this day and age we live in a potentially much bigger neighborhood than ever before. Actually, if we know of someone's need and we can minister to it, they are our neighbor.

The sage of the Book of Proverbs does not use the word "love" in connection with one's neighbor, but he does the next best thing: he speaks of doing good to and for our neighbor. And that's what love really is, not just a warm and fuzzy feeling about someone.

INCOGNITO CHRISTIANS

What we do not do can often be as important as what we do. "Do not withhold good from those to whom it is due, when it is your power to do it." Sometimes we can hurt our neighbor by withholding the help we can give. Just because we don't refer to our neighbor does not mean we are a good neighbor.

A man once told me that when a neighbor died, he was surprised to find that he was a "pillar" of a church in the community. "I never knew he went to church," he said, "or that he was even a Christian." If our Christian discipleship does not show in our neighborhood will it show anywhere?

As I sit at my computer, I can look out the window and see most of the houses in our block. I wonder whether all my neighbors in those houses know I am a Christian? Some, of course, know that I am a retired clergyman, but that's not the same thing is it? One can be a clergyman and not a Christian. The first is a profession, the second a way of living.

WHAT WE WITHHOLD

Can my neighbors tell that I am a Christian by the way that I treat them? If you don't count telling one of my neighbors to please turn down his boom-box, I haven't quarreled with my neighbors nor trespassed against their property. But have I withheld anything from them that I could have given them? I hope not, but you would have to ask them—as I would have to ask yours.

The sage also says, "Do not envy a man of violence and do not choose any of his ways" (3:31). I'd like to put that on large banners outside every cinema in the city of Dallas, for these are too often temples dedicated to the worship of violence and the violent person. Come to think of it, it needs to be emblazoned upon thousands of television screens where violence is also displayed and admired

Summer Jobs Program Puts Youth To Work

The Summer Youth Employment & Training Program (SYETP), a summer jobs program created by the Jobs Training Partnership Act, is providing employment and training designed to help Garrett County youth enter the working world and learn skills that will make them more employable in the future.

This summer the SYETP program began the first of this month and will continue until mid-August. Last week SYETP staff placed nearly 130 participants in public sector jobs throughout Garrett County. Of those enrollees, 65 were placed on the regular work experience at 30 individual sites in various state and local agencies. The remainder were placed on six work crews that work at various state and local parks located in the county, as well as other facilities.

There are literally hundreds of worksite supervisors that work with SYETP students throughout the summer. "The strength of our program is definitely the community support, as well as the hard working young people we have here in Garrett County", commented Elmer Redinger, SYETP coordinator.

Supervising the 60 enrollees who make up the six work crews are crew chiefs Barbara Nelson, Deep Creek State Park; Beth Fousek, Herrington Manor State Park; Chris Bittner, New Germany State Park; Mike Friend, Northern School Complex; Matt Stieringer, Broadford Lake Recreation Area; and Barry Stephens, Maryland State Highway Administration Roads Garage.

In addition to providing summer work with a financial reward, the SYETP also trains enrollees in basic job skills through its training component. The crew chiefs will provide on-site training in specific job skills designed to make enrollees more employable in their future job search. Each of these 60 participants will receive up to 12 hours designed to support the applied "hands-on" job experience. Crew leaders and other resource people will be responsible for this training component.

A number of enrollees will also receive tutoring to help them pass their Maryland Functional Test, which is a Maryland High School Diploma requirement.

The local SYETP program operates under the direction of M. Sue Shockey, supervisor of "The Training Place," the Western Maryland Consortium's Garrett County office. SYETP welcomes questions and comments as well as work requests and ideas concerning future job sites, which may be directed to the Western Maryland Consortium at 301-334-8136.

WORKING TODAY, TRAINING FOR THE FUTURE - These Summer Youth Employment & Training Program (SYETP) participants will be hard at work until the middle of next month learning about the world of work as they perform important tasks around the community. Shown in the above left photo are members of the work crew who have been making new picnic pads at Herrington Manor State Park; from the left are Jennifer Mayne, SYETP coordinator Butch Redinger, April Collins, crew leader Beth Pousak, Davon Mayne, and Ronnie Carlisle. Maryland Sells $250 Million In Triple A Bonds

The Maryland Board of Public Works, consisting of governor Parris N. Glendening and state treasurer Richard N. Dixon, sold $250,000,000 in General Obligation bonds for a low interest bid of 4.5678% on Wednesday, July 8.

A syndicate headed by Goldman Sachs submitted the winning bid, as the board reviewed four bids. The bonds had been rated Triple A, the best possible rating, by Moody's Investors Service Inc., Standard & Poor's Corporation, and Fitch Investors Service Inc., the three major bond rating agencies. The Triple A rating means the state pays lower interest costs. Thanks to the Triple A rating, the state has saved more than $147 million in interest costs since 1971, compared to a Double A rating, the next highest rating.

Proceeds from the $250 million bond sale will be used to fund a variety of loan authorizations, including general state construction, water quality projects, and a variety of museums and cultural attractions throughout Maryland.

Governor Glendening and Treasurer Dixon both said the results of the sale were a tribute to the professionalism of the state's financial management team and noted that the sale was the first in 40 years without the late Louis L. Goldstein casting his vote as state comptroller.

"This is a tremendous reflection on the health of the state," Gov. Glendening said.

Maryland is one of only eight states in the nation to retain the coveted Triple A rating from all of the major bond rating agencies. These 15-year bonds, backed by the full faith and credit of the state, are sold in denominations of $5,000. They are available to the public from brokers and bond dealers.

Maryland last sold General Obligation bonds in February 1998, when $250 million in bonds were sold for a low interest bid of 4.4297%.

GCC Exhibiting Ceramic Art Of FSU Teacher

The art gallery at Garrett Community College is currently presenting works of pottery and sculpture by Ceramic artist Patrick Faville in an exhibition that will continue through the end of July. The public is invited to an artist's reception tomorrow night, Friday, July 17, from 7 to 9 p.m. at the gallery.

Faville, a member of the visual arts faculty at both Frostburg State University and Frederick Community College, holds degrees in both Ceramics and philosophy. He is an award-winning artist and writer who has exhibited his artwork locally, regionally, and internationally, and his written articles have appeared in various national publications.

Wood-fired and raku-fired vessel forms make up the main body of the GCC exhibition. For Faville, "this work stems from a certain outlook or frame of mind. It is much like a loose interpretation of Zen Buddhism. To me, pots come from a more tranquil, meditative place. To that extent, they make themselves. The trick is letting them do that," he commented.

The art exhibit is open during regular college hours and on weekends and evenings during special events, and is made possible in part by a grant from the Garrett County Arts Council and the Maryland State Arts Council. For further information interested persons may call GCC's art department at 301-387-3024.

COVER STORY

Goodwill Games anchored in New York

By Mark Costello
©TVData Features Syndicate

Gilligan's Island has been a longtime staple of TBS. Now the cable channel would like to keep you stranded on Giuliani's island – Manhattan – for the next two weeks.

Beginning Sunday, July 19, TBS broadcasts the Goodwill Games from New York

"The city has hosted a number of major, internationally recognized sport events," says New York Mayor Rudolph Giuliani, "but the Goodwill Games will be the first international, world-class, multisport event held here."

Jim Lampley will host the TBS coverage from a yacht to be moored at various locations in New York Harbor.

The games, which end August 2, will air at various times on TBS, HBO and CBS (check local listings). They are the brainchild of Ted Turner, founder of TBS and CNN and vice chairman of Time Warner Inc.

Turner launched his games to provide a politics-free competitive stage for the United States and the former Soviet Union after the U.S. boycott of the 1980 Summer Olympics in Moscow and the USSR's retaliatory boycott of the 1984 Olympics in Los Angeles.

Turner planned the Goodwill Games to be held alternately in the United States and the USSR.

The first three Goodwill Games lost more than $100 million. And since the breakup of the Soviet Union, Turner's games have been "goodwill" hunting for a post-Cold War mission.

"The fact the games now benefit children makes the purpose of these games even more meaningful," Turner says, in reference to newly formed charitable partnerships with the Boys & Girls Clubs of America, as well as UNICEF.

In addition to benefiting worthy causes, the 1998 Goodwill Games will feature two age-old missions: winning and acquiring riches.

Previous Goodwill Games – St. Petersburg, Russia, in 1994, Seattle in 1990 and Moscow in 1986 – abided by the Olympic spirit of not offering money

For New York's Goodwill Games, there will be a $5 million purse for prizes, as well as incentives for records and performance.

Two-time 1996 Olympic gold medalist Michael Johnson headlines this year's field of approximately 1,500 athletes from more than 60 countries competing in 15 sports.

"It is great to compete against the top runners in the world while having the home-court advantage," says Johnson, a Dallas native who is scheduled to run in the 200m and 400m. "A special energy that comes from the crowd spurs you on ... and the addition of prize money will ensure (the runners) turning in top-level performances."

As for Lampley, his mission may be to get through his telecasts without incident.

In 1996, he was ringside when a riot broke out at a Riddick Bowe-Andrew Golota bout, and he was on the air when the bomb exploded in Atlanta's Centennial Olympic Park.

The Goodwill Games, however, should be smooth sailing for Lampley – as long as his floating anchor desk off Giuliani's island doesn't sink.

TRIVIA

The brainchild of media mogul Ted Turner, the Goodwill Games are a quadrennial event. The inaugural Games were held in Moscow in 1986.

TRIVIA

Most weeks, the voice of TV's talking horse, Mr. Ed, was supplied by Allen "Rocky" Lane. At least once, George Burns did the honors.

TV-PIPELINE

By Taylor Michaels
©TVData Features Syndicate

Q: What can you tell me about Catherine Bell of JAG? I think she has beautiful eyes. –Phillip Snoot, Lynchburg, Va.

A: The 20-something actress was born in London on Aug. 14, although the year is undisclosed. A former model, Bell made her film debut in 1992 working as Isabella Rossellini's body double in Death Becomes Her, then landed small parts in a few TV movies, as well as guest roles on Hercules: The Legendary Journeys, Friends and Dream On.

She gained starred as a murder victim on JAG in 1996, making an impression on series creator Donald Bellisario. He hired her when he recast the female lead for the show's move to CBS.

Q: Please settle an argument. I say Jean Stapleton played Katey Segal's mother in the TV movie Chance of a Lifetime. My husband says Stapleton is dead and that the role was played by the actress who used to play Roseanne's mother. Who is right? –Stephanie O'Madigan, Charlotte, N.C.

A: You are right, Stephanie. Stapleton, still alive and well at this writing, played Mrs. Duncan in that TV movie. Your husband is thinking of Estelle Parsons, who co-starred on Roseanne.

Q: My dad says John Travolta's first movie was Grease. My mom says he had a small part in a movie called The Devil's Rain. Who's right? –Kiera via e-mail.

A: Your mom is right. By the time Travolta made Grease, he had been in such high-profile hits as Carrie, The Boy in the Plastic Bubble and Saturday Night Fever, and had gained TV stardom as Vinnie Barbarino in Welcome Back, Kotter.

Q: My husband is driving me crazy. He swears that Titanic director James Cameron used to play the father on Family Ties. I know he is wrong, but he won't believe me. –L.M.R., Erie, Pa.

A: Boy, this is turning into a bad week for husbands. I suppose there is a mild (and bearded) resemblance, but that was Michael Gross as Steven Keaton on Family Ties.

Q: Whatever happened to David Ogden Stiers? We graduated from the same high school, so I have followed his career with interest. –Claudia Douglass, Baker City, Ore.

A: Best known for his work as Maj. Winchester on *M*A*S*H*, Stiers is now a regular on ABC's Two Guys, a Girl and a Pizza Place.

TRIVIA

Hal Holbrook has 27 features and five TV series to his credit, but he's best-known for his one-man stage show, Mark Twain Tonight!, now in its 44th year.

Bill Campbell (The Rocketeer, More Tales of the City) was studying illustration at the American Academy of Art when he took up acting instead.

Sarah Jessica Parker's Square Pegs co-stars included Tracy Nelson and Jami Gertz. The high-school sitcom lasted just one season.

Actor Bill Brochtrup has played administrative aides in three Steven Bochco series: NYPD Blue, Public Morals and Total Security.

Boating Safety Test Given Each Friday In McHenry

Throughout the summer boating season the Boating Safety Equivalency Test will be given at 9 a.m. each Friday at the McHenry Public Safety Building on Friendsville Road. The free testing sessions are administered by the Maryland Department of Natural Resources Police (NRP), and will conclude on Friday, Sept. 4.

Maryland law specifies that anyone born after July 1, 1972, must successfully complete a boating safety course before operating any motorized vessel in the state of Maryland. This includes all motorized boats, jet skis, Wave Runners, and all other powered vessels and personal watercraft (PWC).

Those who pass the equivalency test will receive a Maryland Certificate of Boating Safety Education card. Anyone who fails the first time may retake the test one more time at a later date; however, anyone who fails a second time must take the Boating Safety Course to receive the card.

Persons interested in more information about this test may call the NRP office at 301-777-7771. For information about scheduled Maryland Boating Safety courses, contact Garrett Community College at 301-387-3070.

THE TOURIST
by Jo Donaldson

I am only a tourist here.
I can't stay long,
but I want to see the mountains, valleys, lakes, and rivers.
I want to enjoy good food, music, and art,
to meet interesting people with whom to share this beauty.
Forgive me if I rush.
There is so much to see.
God gives us such a short time to visit his creation.
I am only a tourist here on earth,
who will soon go home.

Q. We have a 1921 advertising calender for Chero-Cola. It pictures a young woman holding a bottle of the drink. All of the calendar's monthly pages are intact. What can you tell me about Chero-Cola and the value of this calendar?

A. The Union Bottling Works began making Chero-Cola in 1905 in Columbus, Ga.

The company became the Cherry-Cola Co. in 1912. It became the Nehi Corp. in 1928.

Chero-Cola lost favor by 1933.

Chero-Cola advertising pieces are hard to find. If your calendar is in good condition, it could sell for as much as $500.

Q. My mother saved dozens of hats from the 1930s, '40s and '50s. Are they worth anything?

A. Clothing and accessories from that era are becoming more popular with collectors – and with people who like to wear them.

The value depends on the hat's design. A mink hat from the '50s would sell for about $35. Feather hats sell for $25 to $50. Wool hats with ribbon and netting sell for $15 to $45.

Home Tips

ICE CUBE TRAYS – I use cracked plastic ice cube trays to store spools of thread. They stay in place, don't unroll and tangle and you can see colors at a glance. Chris P., Bakersfield, Calif.

SMART MOVE – When moving to a new city, be sure to find the closest emergency medical clinic to your house – for you and your pet. Drive to both locations, so you are familiar with the route BEFORE an emergency happens.

Tape emergency numbers to the phone and be sure to place your address sticker on the phone as well – in emergencies some people can forget their own names and addresses. Edna K., Jacksonville, Fla.

FOAM EGG CARTONS – Those plastic foam egg cartons (the stores in my area are using them again) are great for packing fragile items when moving.

Just line the bottom of the box with the open side down. It makes a great cushion that can be used on the sides and top also, if necessary. Tracy L., Garland, Texas

ROSIE O'DONNELL: EVERYTHING'S COMING UP ROSIE

Entering Radio City Music Hall to host the 1997 Tony Awards, Rosie O'Donnell spied Christopher Plummer and froze. It's "The Sound of Music's" Captain von Trapp, her fantasy parent (along with Julie Andrews) when she was growing up motherless. Rosie is awed. That's what we love about her. No matter how big she gets, she's still starstruck meeting one of her childhood idols.

The middle child of five, 11-year-old Rosie was devastated when her mother died of cancer. Unable to cope, her father told the children their mother passed away and never spoke of it again. He started drinking, ignoring the kids, who were looked after by concerned neighbors and teachers.

The August cover story of Biography magazine, Rosie continued to do well at school and was popular: homecoming queen, class president, student council, Drama Society – and class clown. She attributed her popularity to being "good at making people laugh." Senior year, she got an offer to play a comedy club and brought the house down. After, she was confronted by a group of angry comics who realized she'd "borrowed" her material from a then-unknown comic named Jerry Seinfeld she'd seen on TV.

After briefly trying college, she hit the comedy circuit, sleeping in run-down communal condos, surrounded by drugs and alcohol, making $50 a night. A few bit parts on sitcoms led to movies and plays. In 1995, she adopted Parker and decided movie star and Mommy don't mix. She signed as a talk show host, declaring she'd be like Merv Griffin, not Jerry Springer. Audiences loved her. Rosie was one of them.

Rosie also adopted Chelsea. She's searching for meaningful films to star in or perhaps direct and has agreed to pen her autobiography. Yet the motherless child feels her "greatest success story" is "being able to give my children the life I never had."

Southern Middle, High School Students Learn Ropes Of Free Enterprise In Stock Market Game

Competitors had high praise for the Stock Market Game overall and the Internet version specifically. Junior Lacy Timmerman stated "I believe that playing the Stock Market Game was an educational experience. I had never used the Internet until we played the game and I learned a great deal." Harasztia, a senior foreign exchange student from Hungary, commented, "The Stock Market Game on the Internet is a great thing, because it seems like a real investment. There are huge resources available on the Internet that helps to research companies, and analyze the transactions in depth. It's a great experience and a big help in future investments."

Several students added that they felt that the Internet version was a great time saver, especially compared to the paper version when players had to wait patiently for weeks to get results.

Other SHS teams from Wilson's accounting class included players Timmerman, Heather Winebrenner, and Jessica Moore, who finished the competition with equity of $112,289, placing them in 25th place for final rankings. A third team, composed of Amanda Hinebaugh, Amanda McDonald, Tara Lucas, and Kristin Warnick, ranked 252 out of 287 at the close of the game. "I think the Internet version of the Stock Market Game was a wonderful learning experience," Hinebaugh concluded.

The Stock Market Game requires student teams to formulate daily or weekly decisions about the direction of the stock market, make choices about buying or selling corporate stocks, and then mail or

Investment Of Time And Effort Pays Off For SMS State Champs

For the second time in four years, a team from Southern Middle School has captured the state championship in the Maryland Regional Stock Market Game competition.

Playing the market against hundreds of other middle school teams, sixth graders Justin Baylor, Laura Hinebaugh, and Amanda King researched, studied, and shrewdly rode the market to create a 34½ percent return on their initial $100,000 worth of investments over the game's 10-week period. For their speculative efforts, the team was honored at the Economic Education Awards ceremony in Towson recently.

A total number of 1,490 teams, representing elementary schools, middle schools, high schools and adult teams, participated in this year's competition. In Garrett County, First United National Bank & Trust sponsored seven SMS teams in the 10-week stock market simulation, and Robert Sharps, local PrimeVest Financial broker, worked with the students to explain the basics of owning stocks, such as the risk and reward relationship, how to select stocks, and how to develop a portfolio strategy.

At the beginning of the game, each team was allotted a hypothetical sum of $100,000 to buy and sell stocks. In the final standings in this spring's competition, Southern Middle's winning team ranked first in the middle school division and ninth place overall with a total of $134,497 in its portfolio at the game's close.

At the Towson ceremony, Dr. Allen Cox, coordinator for the state game, presented Baylor, Hinebaugh, and King with a plaque for the school, commemorating their outstanding performance. Each student of the winning team received a certificate and framed commemorative stamp of the New York Stock Exchange.

Four of the seven SMS teams ended the competition by managing their portfolios to a profitable return of more than the original $100,000, and a team composed of members Natalie Domenick, Roxann Hoalcraft, Billy Reams and Alexis Storey ended the competition with a total of $119,403 in their portfolio.

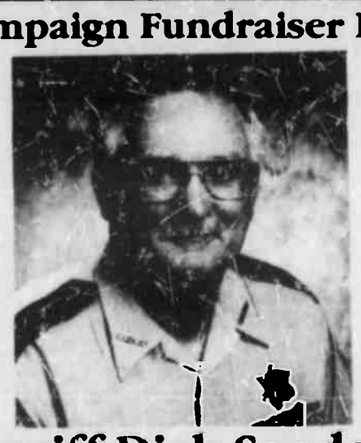
Classroom teacher and team advisor Mary Jane Fike stated that the game enriched her classroom curriculum by providing the students with an opportunity to practice their listening, research, computation and communication skills. Fike stated that the game was "highly motivational" for the students and that it provided a practical, real-world application for math skills as well as economic concepts. Sharps added that strategies for competing in a 10-week competition are different from those for investing for long-term goals in real life.

The Maryland Regional Stock Market Game was developed by the Joint Council on Economic Education and funded by the Securities Industry Association. Its purpose is to encourage a broader understanding of the American free enterprise system in general and the roles of the securities industries in particular.

This is the fourth year Garrett County students have participated in the Maryland Stock Market Game through the annual support of team sponsors First United and PrimeVest Financial.

SHS Stock Market Team Finishes Fourth In State

The Maryland Stock Market Game was played this spring, and a team from Southern High School placed fourth in a field of over 280 high school teams from across the state. Ferenc Harasztia, Robert Paugh, and Justin Wilson turned their initial investment of $100,000 into a sum of $124,225 in just 10 weeks. The strategies for increasing their portfolio included buying technology stock, which performed very well in the spring, and also buying on margin.



SHS teacher Athena Wilson and her Accounting II classroom served as the brokerage headquarters for the SHS teams. Appropriately enough for a team that capitalized on emerging technologies, the fourth-place SHS team, and its competitors, played the Stock Market Game on the Internet for the first time this year.

According to Wilson, "Being the guinea pig for the Internet version in Garrett County was exciting and educational. The students were able to search the Internet for historical information on the companies they chose, as well as get up-to-date stock prices. It enabled us to receive feedback from Washington College (in Chestertown) on a daily basis, unlike the paper version, which took at least two weeks to receive results."

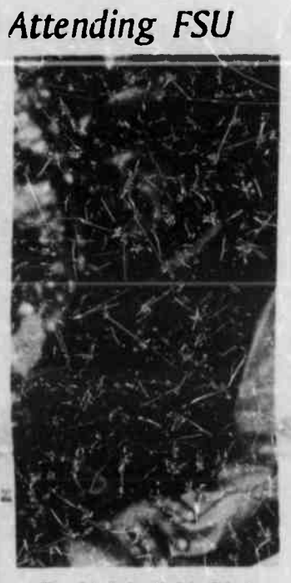
Parenting Advice Tapes Available At Reel Video

The Parent Network and Reel Video are cooperating to make a video series on successful parenting available to the public free of charge.

The seven-part series includes titles such as "School Success Takes Teamwork," "Discipline Makes the Difference," and "Communication is Crucial," among others. "These 'free rentals' will allow parents the opportunity to improve their parenting skills in the comfort of their homes," said Bob Stephens, executive director of the Garrett County Office for Children, Youth and Families (OCYF).

The Parent Network has developed the "free rental" strategy to support parents whose work and parenting schedules do not afford the flexibility of attending parenting support groups offered in the community. Reel Video has donated display space, which will offer a convenient outlet for busy families. The video series is currently available at the Oakland Reel Video location, and will be rotating to other stores at future dates.



REEL VIDEO TEAMS WITH PARENT NETWORK TO ASSIST PARENTS - Reel Video is providing space for "free rentals" of auccaaaful parenting videos, which may be borrowed free of charge. The aovan-part aarlaa offers practical advice and guidance for parents aeeking to improve skills in working with their children. Shown above from left, are Reel Video manager Courtney Colaw and Bob Stephens, executive director of the Garrett County Office for Children, Youth and Families.

An online video library is another offering of the Parent Network. This library lists the titles of videos on topics such as first aid, meal preparation, and homework. All videos are located at public agencies that have agreed to lend them out to the general public. The address of the Online Parenting Network Video Library is www.gcnet.net/garrettinfo/penvideos.htm. Videos are also available through the Ruth Enlow Library.

For more information about the Parent Network, interested persons may contact Crystal Stewart at the Garrett County OCYF, located at 12424 Garrett Highway in Oakland, or by calling 301-334-1189.

State Awarded High Marks For Economic Efforts

Maryland has been awarded high marks from a national nonprofit economic development research and policy group for its technology resources and infrastructure. Maryland was one of only seven states to receive an honorable mention in the group's 1998 Development Report Card for the States.

The "report card" from the Corporation for Enterprise Development (CFED) compares state economies, assigning states grades from A to F in economic performance, business vitality, and development capacity. In each category, Maryland either met national standards or exceeded them. The state received an A in the category of development capacity.

"Maryland's top-notch technology resources puts it at the head of the class for development capacity," said Governor Parris N. Glendening. "Our state offers an excellent transportation system, a high rate of college graduates, and some of the best research and development institutions in the nation."

Maryland ranked first in the nation for university research and development and federal research, and had the third highest rate of doctoral scientists in the nation. Additionally, Maryland had a high rate of people with access to primary health care and was among the leaders for mass transit and solid highways.

The state's scores for business vitality leaped from grade D to B over the last year. It had the smallest number of business closings in the country and was one of the top achievers in the creation of new businesses.

Maryland did not fare as well in overall economic performance this year because of a drop in short-term employment growth and the unemployment rate. However, the state's strong earnings, coupled with higher salaries and excellent health coverage, show Maryland is on par with its closest competitors in the region.

"With strong technology resources, an excellent transportation system, and a highly educated workforce in place, Maryland is positioned to help businesses succeed as we move toward the 21st century," said Governor Glendening.

The governor's sentiments were echoed by Brian Dabson, president of CFED.

"Although the [nation's] overall economy is very strong, it is those states with the best development resources that consistently outperform their peers."

The Corporation for Enterprise Development began in 1979. The group's offices are located in Washington, D.C., San Francisco, Calif., and Durham, N.C.

Garrett County Receives 7" Of Rain In June

The Maryland Ag Statistics Service reported this week that Garrett County received 7 inches of precipitation during the month of June. That was 3.2 inches above normal, giving the county 9.7 inches of accumulated departure from normal this year so far.

No other area of the state received that much rain in June, with Charles County next highest, receiving 5.8 inches. Garrett County Extension Agent Jim Simms said this morning that Garrett County received at least 7 inches in June, maybe more. He indicated the extensive amount of rain has put the corn crop at least 2½ weeks behind schedule, which he said is serious because of the potential of an early frost.

Simms noted that probably 50% of small grains (oats and barley) have been held back because of wet soil, and the yields will be low. Some field conditions are still very poor, he added.

The first cutting of hay was not good, according to Simms. "A lot of the first cutting was very poor quality, and a lot of it was completely lost. The rain has slowed the vegetable production because the soil is waterlogged and contains no oxygen. The plants just sat still. Much of the bean crop rotted, and you can still see waterlogged conditions in a lot of the fields," he said.

Simms said it is ironic that at the same time we were getting so much rain, the Eastern Shore was becoming very dry and facing drought.

Garrett's farmers will try to get a second cutting of hay made without it getting wet. Simms said it will definitely be a lot better than first cutting, but is still behind schedule. "Farmers like to get a second cutting in before the dog days of summer," he added. This delay and the wet soil conditions farmers still face may completely eliminate a third cutting of hay this year, Simms concluded, making good quality hay very scarce locally.

West. Md. Bear Damage Reported In Spotlight

The July/August 1998 issue of Spotlight, the Maryland Farm Bureau publication featured an article by Emily Wilson, environmental resources reported for Maryland Farm Bureau, on the increasing bear damage in Western Maryland.

Wilson reported that her research shows farmers in this area are seeing an increase in the black bear population, as well as the damage they cause, which has increased over the past five or six years. In an interview with Garrett County Farm Bureau President Paul Miller, who has experienced no exception to the effects of black bear damage himself, he said it is a maddening feeling that he cannot legally do anything about it. The reason is that Maryland does not have a black bear hunting season and crop damage permits are not even an option.

Wilson explained in her article that although Maryland does not have a hunting season for black bear, both Pennsylvania and West Virginia counties bordering Western Maryland do have hunting seasons, forcing black bear into this protected area. She went on to say that trapping and relocating black bear is an option that has been discussed. But the problem with relocating—besides the time, expense, and manpower needed—is that there must be approval from the receiving end before any black bear is moved. Residents in other areas of Maryland who wish to keep the black bear population in the western end of the state protected are not anxious to import the animals into their home area, so their approval is not forthcoming.

The reporter recalled a threat of legislation during this past General Assembly session from Senator John Hafer and Delegate George Edwards, both of whom represent Garrett and Allegany counties, that would have required the state to take action, such as relocating, to relieve their area from the increasing nuisance of the black bear. Although no bill was actually introduced last session, both Sen. Hafer and Del. Edwards have said that they expect to introduce legislation for next session to open a controlled black bear hunting season.

Wilson said the Maryland Farm Bureau would be supportive of such legislation, and explained Farm Bureau policy under Hunting & Trapping. It states: "We recommend that the Department of Natural Resources continue in its effort toward resolving the problem with black bear and request the Maryland Department of Natural Resources' Wildlife Division to seriously consider having a limited black bear season in areas where bears are a problem."

Legislation is not even necessary, however, she said, as the Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR) has the ability to open a black bear season by regulation. But this has not yet been done, and many are becoming frustrated with the ever-increasing black bear population and the havoc they wreak.

In the article, Wilson quoted Mike Slattery, director of the DNR's Wildlife and Heritage Division, who said not to expect to see the opening of any black bear season in the immediate future. Slattery said the DNR "understands there is a need to do something in addition to what is already being done," and that they are "considering ways to liberalize the killing of problem bears." Many have argued that opening a black bear season is just too politically controversial.

Instead, the DNR is entertaining the possibility of issuing crop damage permits. However, Steve Bittner, Forest Game Project manager for DNR's Wildlife Division, explained to Wilson that guidelines for such permits would need to be worked out. And considering the DNR is looking into revamping the current deer crop damage permit system, and an ad hoc Deer Damage Committee, etc., those guidelines could be a long time coming. In the meantime, Wilson wrote, Maryland farmers' hands are tied when it comes to managing black bears, with no legal alternative like killing a bear, because a first offense, according to Bittner, carries an automatic $1,500 fine and up to six months in jail. Only if it is a life-threatening situation to a human or livestock can one legally kill a black bear.

The article confirmed that bear damage includes, but is not limited to, destruction of corn crops and other small grains, as well as the buildings in which they are stored, bee hives, and even some livestock such as sheep. Paul Miller has lost up to 25% of a field of corn due to black bear damage. Jim Simms, Garrett County Cooperative Extension agent, pointed out that bears like to go more into the middle of a field for shelter as opposed to just staying on the edges. Once they're in the middle, they not only have a feast on the crop, but they also like to play and roll around, creating much more extensive damage. Wilson did not explain what farmers in this area know as a "bear swirl," made when the bear sits on its rump, swiveling around in a circle pulling corn stocks into the center to get the ears.

Her report stated that this is particularly troublesome for this area because, as Simms explained, it is a,

Guest Editorial:

Close Perception Gap: Farmers Have Good Public Image

by Mace Thornton
AFBF director of news services

Everywhere you look, companies are using farmers or a perceived image of farmers to sell products. Farmers like the ads that portray them as educated, hardworking business people who care for the environment. Ads, however, that portray them as grasschewing, straw-hat-wearing bumpkins don't get many "thumbs up" in farm country.

Advertisers could care less. They know a winner when they see one. And they know a secret that has become almost psychologically impossible for farmers to accept. Americans like and trust farmers—regardless of stereotypes--and believe they contribute a great deal to society, according to public opinion research (focus groups and nationwide polls) coordinated by the American Farm Bureau Federation's public relations division.

Many farmers don't believe it. According to AFBF's nationwide survey of farmers, only 47 percent thought the general population felt positively toward them. However, AFBF's nationwide survey of consumers showed that 85 percent of Americans said farmers contribute a great deal to society. That mark was slightly lower than firefighters (89 percent) and teachers (87 percent), but was higher than members of the clergy (71 percent), business people (50 percent), bankers (32 percent) and politicians (13 percent).

On a separate question, 89 percent of respondents to the consumer poll said they would believe a farmer talking in an advertisement about the challenges he or she faces.

Even when braced by those numbers, most farmers still have a hard time swallowing the notion that the public thinks highly of them. Why? Farmers take very seriously their mission of producing the world's most affordable and safe food supply. Producing the goods that feed, clothe and shelter fellow humans is a matter of deep commitment and pride. But, if someone attacks the process, or worse, makes light of it, farmers will likely take it as a personal affront.

Public's Static Filter

In this day of information overload, hardly a day goes by when some journalist or politician or spokesperson for a special interest group doesn't have something critical to say about America's food, land or water—matters as personal to a farmer as his or her choice of tractor color.

After long-term exposure, farmers have become jaded by this daily static. Farmers have convinced themselves that members of the general public—removed from the farm by several generations—can't possibly filter out all the negative noise and still view them as upstanding citizens. Feeling good about your job performance (which farmers do), but thinking your customers dislike your work leads to conflict. By looking at the real numbers, however, this perception gap and any conflicts it might be causing farmers can be overcome.

Even on issues related to farmers and the environment, AFBF's polls show that the reality of public opinion differs greatly from farmers' perception of it. The public's static filter seems to be working just fine.

The public ranked farmers (92 percent) slightly ahead of environmentalists (86 percent) and scientists (87 percent) when asked to rate who's more effective in conserving natural resources and caring for the environment. In fact, more than two out of every three people (71 percent) agreed—strongly or somewhat—that the use of land for agriculture is actually good for the environment. Only 32 percent of the farmers surveyed thought the public would agree to that statement.

The trend of farmers underestimating their public perception ran through a number of specific topics:

- While 67 percent of the general population thought farmers were doing an excellent or good job in taking care of the land, only 36 percent of farmers surveyed thought the public would respond so positively.
- Seventy-eight percent of the public thought farmers were doing an excellent or good job taking care of their farm animals, but just 42 percent of farmers surveyed thought the public would extend such high marks.
- More than three out of every four (77 percent) members of the public thought farmers were doing a good or excellent job at producing a safe food supply, but just 47 percent of farmers surveyed thought they would receive that nod.

"Mushy Middle"

Even in the "mushy middle"—where "average" was most often used by the public to describe farmers' job performance—the public's opinion of farmers was higher than farmers predicted.

- While 33 percent of the general population thought farmers were doing an excellent or good job using crop protection chemicals, only 20 percent of the farmers surveyed thought they would be graded that highly by the public.
- Forty-two percent of the public thought farmers were doing an excellent or good job taking care of the nation's water, but just 21 percent of farmers surveyed thought their performance would be judged that favorably.
- While 38 percent of the general population thought farmers were doing a good or excellent job in treating their workers fairly, only 26 percent of farmers surveyed thought the public would give them those marks.

Although other variations relate to farm size and ownership, overall the public appreciates the jobs farmers and ranchers are doing and they like hearing from them. It's time to close the perception gap by spreading the word of these survey results.

It only stands to reason that some might be a little gun-shy about speaking up if they believe they have a poor image with their audience. AFBF's research, however, shows that farmers have nothing to fear.

Research still hasn't answered the question of what visual image people see when they hear the word "farmer," or how farmers can better tell their side of the story. By confidently standing up and speaking up, however, America's farmers and ranchers can help shape the message and mold the public image of their profession in their own likenesses, rather than having it molded for them by Madison Avenue's stereotypical overalls and pitchforks.

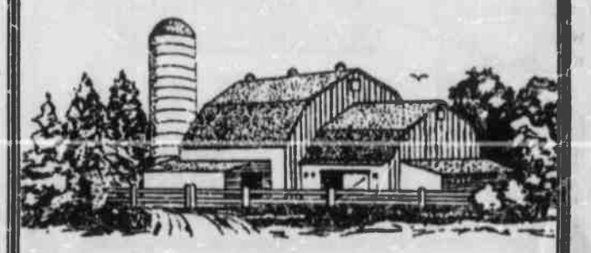
Do You Want to Learn More About Using Poultry Litter as Fertilizer?

Can the Moorefield and Petersburg poultry litter reduce the fertilizer costs in Garrett County? On Tuesday, July 28, from 9:30 a.m. to noon at the Pleasant Valley Community Center, you will have the opportunity to learn more about utilizing poultry litter and the availability of it. Some of the program topic includes: 1) Economics of using poultry litter — when it pays and when it doesn't; 2) Analysis of different types of poultry litter; 3) Availability of the litter; 4) Cost of the different types of litter; 5) What crops from which to expect a positive economic return; 6) How to calibrate a spreader; and 7) Availability of custom spreaders throughout the area. A free lunch will be provided by the Potomac Interagency Water Quality Office. Lunch reservations are needed by Thursday, July 23, by calling the Garrett County Extension office at 301-334-6960. The program is sponsored by the Preston County Soil Conservation Service, Potomac Interagency Water Quality Office and the Garrett County Extension Service.



Armyworms on Late Planted Corn

Bill Knepp, nutrient management consultant, found some corn fields infested with armyworms. I would recommend that you scout your fields, particularly the late planted corn, for the presence of armyworms. I have seen corn fields completely wiped out by them. They prefer to feed on the leaves at night. During the daytime they will feed down in the whorl of the corn plant. There are several insecticides for armyworm control such as: Lorsban 4E, Asana XL, Warrior, Pounce 3.2EC, Ambush 2E and Sevin XLR Plus. Be sure to read and follow label directions.

The car, owned by the Dunson family, was in fact driven by Bud Dunson in the parade. But in the derby, it was driven by Bud's wife Kathy, who is shown above on the back of the vehicle with the couple's daughter Katie. Kathy not only drove the derby car, but won her particular heat, and received a trophy for her efforts.

Damage Reported

"grain deficient area." This means that there is not enough grain grown in the local area to support the local livestock; therefore, farmers must rely on more costly imported grain as well.

Wilson's economic figures are impressive. She wrote that the Maryland legislature approved the Black Bear Conservation Program two years ago. This program was started with $10,000 in seed money from DNR and is funded through the sale of Black Bear Conservation Stamps. People can purchase a stamp or sticker for $5 each, a lucite block containing a stamp for $20, or a certificate for $25. The revenue from the sales of these items goes to fund compensation paid to farmers for crop damage. But the revenue from the stamp sales is not nearly enough to cover losses due to black bear crop damage, she added.

Documented crop damage for 1997, according to DNR figures, came to almost $50,000. Of that figure, $41,445 was eligible for compensation to farmers. In order to be eligible for compensation, said Bittner of DNR's Wildlife Division, the damage must be greater than $200 but less than $3,000. The DNR's Black Bear Conservation Program was only able to pay about $17,407 of the $41,445 in eligible damages. That is only 42 cents on the dollar.

In her conclusion Wilson stated that Maryland farmers continually face the problems of damage from wildlife, whether it be from black bear, geese, deer, or other animals. "It is an ongoing struggle to try and deal with wildlife damage in the safest and most effective manner without offending or excluding any particular group of people. Farmers must be afforded the flexibility to be able to control crop damage that is occurring as a result of wildlife intrusion."

Technology Camps Offer Kids Creative, Hands-On Learning

by Peggy Santamaria

For several weeks this summer students from fourth, fifth, and sixth grades have the opportunity to learn new skills, as they participate in technology camp activities. Offered by the Garrett County Board of Education, these technology camps were scheduled at two schools: Grantsville Elementary, June 15-19, and Dennett Road Elementary, July 13-17.

Math resource teachers and the county's computer resource teacher, Chuck Trautwein, provide the supervision and assistance for camp projects. These projects, designed to entertain while educating, involve using a high-tech set of those brightly colored plastic interlocking Lego blocks, called Lego Dactas, to build computer controlled robots.

At the technology camp, students are presented with Lego Dacta kits to construct machines that perform specific tasks. These creations are linked to computers, and through this interface the students are able to control and direct their machines by moving an arrow about on a computer screen and selecting the appropriate command.

While some of these ideas and activities may boggle the minds of their parents, the youngsters seem to be completely at home with the technological activities.

At the summer camps students work in small groups to create their plastic robots. It appears that no one needs to tell young scientists to "pay attention" to the lesson, or to "stop talking and get to work." They are paying attention and they are working. But they are also doing a lot of talking as they work out details of the building plans and discuss options for their procedures. The challenges of the task at hand seem to capture the imaginations of the children and pique their interest.

"This is our inch worm," explained one young man as he demonstrated the forward movements of his red and blue plastic "critter." It "scrunched" and extended in order to propel itself across the table top.

At another work station three youngsters gathered excitedly to activate their machine for a visitor. The devise, suspended from a string like a cubist circus tight rope walker, moved back and forth with a tiny whirring sound.

How did they make the computer know what to do? "Oh, we just programmed it," one youngster responded breezily. "Come see the video we put together. It shows how we did all this," another student offered.

The video he was referring to was the multimedia presentation that each group produces outlining the project developed during the weeklong camp experience. The video the children showed was a compilation of sounds and images that explained the genesis of their project.

There would seem to be little doubt that the camp participants really knew their stuff. They said they enjoyed the "hands-on" way of learning. They said it let them "do a lot more."

These students who provided the guided tour and competently offered explanations of the technology camp were no more than 11 years old. Their easy manner seemed to stem from their comfort with and enthusiasm for the subject matter.

Trautwein, who coordinated the summer technology camps, said he would like to provide the opportunity for parents to be involved in these activities with the children. Would they exhibit the same ease with the subject matter, one might wonder.

So perhaps next summer, if Mr. Trautwein gets his way, there will be a technology camp, not only for young, promising students, but also for the older, technically challenged members of the community-at-large.

Faville Works Now On Exhibit; Reception Slated

The Art Gallery of Garrett Community College, McHenry, will be presenting recent works by ceramic artist Patrick Faville from July 10 through July 31. An opening reception for the artist will be held this Friday, July 17, from 7 to 9 p.m. The public is invited.

Patrick Faville is an award-winning artist and writer who exhibits his artworks locally, regionally, and internationally. He holds degrees in both ceramics and philosophy. His written articles have appeared in various national publications. He is a member of the visual arts faculty at both Frostburg State University and Frederick Community College.

The body of work that is being presented mainly consists of wood-fired and raku-fired vessel forms. "This work stems from a certain outlook or frame of mind. It is much like a loose interpretation of Zen Buddhism. To me, pots come from a more tranquil, meditative place. To that extent, they make themselves. The trick is letting them do that," Faville said.

The exhibit is open during regular college hours and on weekends and evenings during special events. This exhibition is made possible in part by a grant from the Garrett County Arts Council and the Maryland State Arts Council. For more information, persons may contact the Art Department of GCC at 301-387-3024.

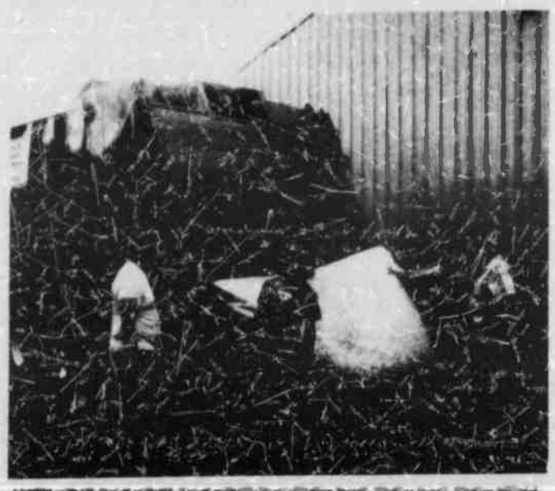
GOP Women Meet Candidates At Patio Party

The Southern Garrett County Republican Women's Club members had the opportunity to meet political candidates at their annual patio party recently.

The event was held at the home of Ann and Carl Rebele on Pine Point Road. Following a covered dish dinner, the candidates in attendance were introduced and asked to speak.

The candidates for county commissioner present were Wendell Beitzel, and Charlotte Sebold, District III, Larry Tichnell and David Beard, District I; and Fred Holliday, District II. Other candidates present were Del. George Edwards, Bill Ferry Sr. for sheriff; and Judge Jim Sherbin, for judge of the Circuit Court.

Sen. John Hafer and commissioners Wayne Wilt and Wayne Johnson sent their regrets. They were attending a meeting sponsored by Westvaco.



Club members attending the patio party were Joanne Giottelty, Nita Roberts, Bea Crosco, Ann Rebele, Mary Alice Fries, Judy Wilt, Cosette Harman, Sue Shockey, Pat White, and Leona Beckman.

IT MIGHT LOOK LIKE A YARD SALE but the pnotos above and below were taken by Mayor Spencer R . Schloanegle during the recent Friendaville town clean-up deya. Onca again the realdents of the town took advantage of the opportunity to apruce up their homes and neighborhooda. Large household itama were removed, lawns and hedgea were clipped and trimmed, and flowers were planted. The meyor said he waa very happy with the aucceaa of the event and the involvement of the people of Friendaville. "Community pride wae evident in the responae of the citizens," he aald.

A joint meeting with the Northern and Southern Republican women's clubs will be held at the Accident town park on Thursday, July 23, at 6 p.m. All Republican candidates and anyone interested in joining either club are welcome to attend.

Schedule Planned For Friendsville Days Celebration

The schedule of activities has been released for the 19th annual Friendsville Days celebration. Beginning Friday, July 31, the festivities will continue through Saturday.

A community cookout will be the opening weekend activity. Sponsored by the Friendsville Volunteer Fire and Rescue Department, the barbecued chicken and ribs with all the trimmings will be served beginning at 6 p.m. Donations will be accepted to offset the cost of the meal, but this annual picnic dinner is given by the fire and rescue workers to thank the community for its support.

Following the meal, entertainment will be provided by the group Time Flies. Names will be drawn for door prizes and refreshments will be available throughout the evening. The event is open to the public and everyone is welcome to attend.

On Saturday, activities will get under way at noon with the start of the parade down Maple Street. The floats and marching units will follow the parade route to the Town Park. Booths will be set up in the park for vendors, who will provide a variety of foods throughout the afternoon.

Entertainment is scheduled on the park stage. A talent show will be followed by the music of Jeannie Ross and by gospel music. The concluding musical performance of the day will be presented by Windfall.

Activities scheduled include horseshoe pitching, a softball tournament, a dunking booth, and drawings for door prizes and raffles.

Fireworks at 10:30 p.m. and the music of Windfall will cap off the Friendsville Days celebration of 1998. All events and activities are open to the public, and everyone is welcome to attend. Bringing lawn chairs is recommended, although some seating will be provided. The events will be held regardless of the weather.

For further information, persons may contact Craig Umbel at 301-746-5107.

A CRAWDAD OR A TOE? Only this tyke knows for sure. She also knows the best way to beat the heat — taking a dip in a cool lake, pond, or pool. The local beaches were alive with folks all week, as temperatures rose higher than normal for the area. Mountaintop residents are fortunate, however, compared to much of the United States, especially the south and southwest, where scorching temperatures and dry conditions have been the apparent cause of well over 100 deaths. While locals may grumble about having to sleep without the sheet, the weather has been far more tolerable here than elsewhere. In fact, with this morning's needed rain, a front is passing through that is predicted to bring down the mercury for several days. Truly a pleasant summer, so far. Photo by John McEwen

Convicted Thief Ordered To 22 Years In Jail

An Oakland man was sentenced last week to 22 years in jail, by order of Garrett County Circuit Court Judge James Sherbin. Shawn M. Blackwell, 21, had previously pleaded guilty to four first degree burglary charges, one count of second degree burglary, and one count of felony theft.

Sherbin ordered the defendant to serve five years in prison for each of the four first degree burglary convictions. He handed down a concurrent five-year term for the second degree burglary charge, and then two consecutive years for felony theft, according to the court report.

Blackwell and another local man were charged with the crimes in November 1997 by deputies of the Garrett County Sheriff's Office and troopers of the Maryland State Police. The two men allegedly broke

Agency On Aging Services Update Given By Yoder

The services and help offered to Garrett County's elderly population was reviewed this week by the Garrett County commissioners, who listened to Duane Yoder's report on the activities of the Area Agency on Aging. The agency is part of Community Action, which is under the direction of Yoder. Also present at the Tuesday meeting was Adina Brode, director of the Area Agency on Aging.

To be in accordance with state regulations, the commissioners are to be apprised each year of the agency's annual plan, Yoder explained.

Currently, the agency hosts four nutrition sites and three senior centers. They serve over 22,000 meals per year to about 360 seniors, and nearly 26,000 meals per year to 245 frail seniors. The agency is currently seeking to maintain the Meals on Wheels program.

The support services offered by the agency include, but are not limited to, recreation and socialization, continuing education, physical fitness activities, information and assistance, legal services, and telephone reassurance. Over the next year, the agency personnel expects to serve about 525 seniors (not including nutrition program

Chamber Calls For Renewed Efforts On Rt. 219 North

Maryland Governor Parris Glendening's signing of a bill that will fund the relocation of Route 220 north from Cumberland to the Pennsylvania state line is seen as welcome news by Garrett County Chamber of Commerce, according to Chamber president David Moe.

Pointing to the governor's action as an important step for western Maryland, Moe then called for the state to examine funding options for Route 219 north from Grantsville in Garrett County.

"Now that the state is committed to Route 220's realignment, together with the funding of Canal Parkway (in Cumberland) at a cost of $42 million each, it can turn its attention to Garrett County with funding for the Oakland bypass and development of Route 219 north of I-68 as an interstate highway," said Moe.

Referring to the Route 219 north project as "a regional economic development/transportation project," Moe commented,

Commission Reaffirms GCC Accreditation

At its meeting in June, the Commission on Higher Education acted to reaffirm the accreditation of Garrett Community College, according to a letter received recently by college president Dr. Steve Herman. This action followed the visit in March by a team of educators from the Middle States Association of Colleges and Schools, Philadelphia, and the submission of a self study report by the college.

The letter also asked the college to submit a report by April 1, 2000, on progress made in the implementation of its outcomes assessment plan and the utilization of assessment results to improve programs and services. A periodic review report will be due again in June 2003.

Dr. Herman thanked all GCC employees and community members who participated in the self study process. "Virtually every full time employee of the college participated in the self study, and many part time faculty and community citizens also participated," he wrote. "I am very grateful to each and every one of you. I also want to give special recognition to each committee co-chair and very special recognition to Jim Allen, who did an outstanding job in writing the self study report on behalf of the college. GCC's success is the product of hard work and dedication of all its employees and supporters. To each of you, thanks and congratulations."

Dr. Herman also stated that if the five-year periodic review report is accepted, the next accreditation team visit will likely not occur for 10 years.

EMS, Fire, Rescue Association Hope To Recruit More Volunteers

"EMS and fire service is all about friends and neighbors helping each other," said Rayma Weeks, president of the Region I Emergency Medical Services Advisory Council.

"Seeing the community work together in the recovery efforts from the tornadoes, we know the volunteer spirit is alive in Western Maryland," Weeks said. "Volunteering with the EMS or fire companies is a way to continue helping the community in a vital way."

The EMS Council and the Allegany-Garrett Counties Volunteer Fire and Rescue Association are interested in increasing the numbers of volunteers in both EMS and fire companies. In a statement adopted at a recent meeting, the EMS Council recognized the interdepeudence of volunteer EMS and fire services, and the shortage of volunteers which currently exists in both fields.

"We have an outstanding group of volunteers in the region who work hard at maintaining constant coverage," said Ken May, who is a member of both the EMS Council and the Allegany County Fire Rescue Board. "We want to reward their tireless efforts by taking a little of the burden off of them and spreading the load over more people."

In an attempt to help companies increase their membership, the EMS Council was given $5,000 by Allegany County commissioners and $2,000 by Garrett County commissioners to be used specifically for volunteer recruitment and retention.

"This special emphasis is necessary because of a combination of decline in volunteers and increase in frequency of calls," said Terry King, chairman of the Public Education Committee of the EMS Council, which has been charged with the task of developing a plan to use the allocations for recruitment and retention.

In an attempt to involve companies in the recruitment effort, all volunteer fire and rescue companies have been invited to send a representative to a meeting in the Frostburg area on Wednesday, Aug. 5, at 7 p.m.

"This meeting is designed to gather ideas and generate local input on how the money could be utilized for the greatest benefit to individual companies," King said.

"It is important to get the information out now because the Maryland Fire and Rescue Institute (MFRI) is currently taking registration for entry level fire and EMS classes to start in August," Weeks added.

Persons interested in more information or to register should call one of the following: from Allegany County, MFRI's Western Maryland Regional Training Center at 301-729-0431; from Southern Garrett County, Phil Rook at 301-334-4623; and from Northern Garrett County, Mike Simmons at 301-746-8955. Persons may also call the Region I office of the Maryland Institute for Emergency Medical Services Systems for more information at 301-895-5934 or 301 746-8636.

County Native Honored By NASA For Work With Mars Satellite

A Garrett County native has been awarded the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's (NASA's) Public Service Medal for his contribution to the development of the Mars Global Surveyor interplanetary spacecraft, which is presently orbiting the planet Mars.

Jeffry F. Sincell, son of Robert and Hannah Sincell, Mtn. Lake Park, was awarded his medal during a special ceremony June 30 at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory (JPL), California Institute of Technology, in Pasadena, Calif. Sincell was one of 10 persons to receive the medal, which is presented annually to individuals in the private sector who have made exceptional contributions to NASA space missions.

Presenting the medals and certificates were Wesley T. Huntress, associate administrator of NASA, and Dr. Edward C. Stone, director of JPL. Sincell's certificate read that he received the honor "for outstanding contributions to the Mars Global Surveyor spacecraft's reliability and systems engineering."

Sincell is a graduate of Southern High School and a 1974 magna cum laude graduate of West Virginia University with degrees in electrical engineering and psychology, having finished second in his class in engineering. Following his graduation from WVU, he accepted employment with the General Electric Company in Philadelphia and refined his engineering skills supporting the design and development of re-entry vehicle command and control systems. He joined a small reliability engineering firm in 1980 and engaged in worst-case analysis, failure modes and effect analysis, reliability predictions, and safety and hazards analysis (all rigorous engineering techniques for assuring the success of an engineering endeavor) on over 50 military, industrial, and commercial electronic systems.

He formed his company, Worst Case Associates Inc., in 1985 and continues to work with his wife, the former Linda Hess of Martinsburg, W.Va., in aerospace electronics mission assurance. His company joined a team of engineers at General Electric in East Windsor, N.J., in 1989 to build the Mars Observer interplanetary spacecraft, which, although successfully

Md. Children's Initiative Reviews Poll, Asks For Candidates' Pledges

Vincent DeMarco, director of Marylaud Children's Initiative, was iu Garrett County this week to review the outcome of the recent polls on efforts to limit teen smoking and to present the Initiative's "General Assembly Candidate Pledge." See related story.

A project of the Smoke Free Maryland Coalition, Maryland State Teachers Association, the Safe and Sound Campaign, and supported by nearly 300 organizations, the Children's Initiative has authored a pledge on health and chiidren's issues, and presented this pledge to candidates for the Maryland General Assembly.

In signing the pledge the candidate commits to pri-oritizing enactment of a pohcy including the following points. The first commitment is to increase cigarette taxes by $1.50 and to extend that tax to other tobacco products. The state cigarette tax increase would be reduced by the amount of any new federal tax on cigarettes, down to a minimum of 50 cents per pack.

Secondly, the signer pledges to provide money to fund a campaign to discourage alcohol, tobacco and other drug abuse, snd to provide treatment for citizens already addicted, and to increase women's access to mammography.

The third commitment is to a campaign to improve reading among Maryland's public school students, particularly in the elementary grades, by methods such as significantly reducing class sizes.

Point four on the pledge requires support for high quality and affordable after-school and day care programs for children throughout Maryland.

The concluding issue on the Children's Initiative is a commitment to community-wide plans that focuses on measurable results and increased opportunity for children.

DeMarco explained that organizations and groups that support the initiative will undertake the dis-semination of information to voters on how the candidates stand. "We will educate the voters. We will tell them about the pledge. Voters in Western Maryland demand to know where candidates stand on these issues," he said.

The cigarette tax to limit teen smoking has won strong support in the western part of the state, DeMarco pointed out. "The recent poll in Western Maryland shows 71% support the effort," he said.

The pledge forms sent to candidates for the General Assembly are to be completed and signed by August 21, and returned to the Maryland Children's Initiative.

The results of the request for candidate pledges will be released by the Children's Initiative once the responses are received, DeMarco concluded.

Included on the plaque are the names of individuals, organizations, and businesses that donated funds to Our Town in varying amounts up to December 31 of last year. Also included is a dedication to Jane Avery, which reads as follows: "For Jane B. Yough Glades School Scene Of Vandalism

Yough Glades Elementary School, Garrett County's newest school building, was the scene of a rock throwing incident this past Friday night when unknown suspect(s) threw rocks through three large glass windows. Several other incidents of property damage and vandalism occurred that same night, according to the Garrett County Sheriff's Office.

The rocks thrown through the school's windows also destroyed the accompanying window screens and blinds, and damaged a section of downspout and facia board as well. School personnel also discovered that a park bench had been removed from the basketball court area and left in the parking lot, and a stop sign had been damaged, apparently also by thrown rocks.

No damage figure is available at this point, and leads are being sought by the Garrett County Sheriff's Office. Deputy Corley is the investigating deputy, and information concerning this incident may be relayed to him through the sheriff's office at 301-334-1911.

In other sheriff's news, a computer hard drive worth $1,500 was taken from a Mayhew Inn Road residence early Wednesday morning. The complainant reported that he had gone to bed at 1:30 a.m. after working at the computer and awoke six hours later to find it missing. The Pentium 2000 model hard drive had apparently been unplugged from its work station and stolen. Deputy Nolan is the investigating deputy.

A Zenith brand VCR was taken early this month from a Crestview Drive residence near Oakland, according to a report received at the sheriff's office this week. Entry was gained during the July 7 burglary via window that the suspect(s) broke and entered through. The value of the VCR, which bears a serial number of VRA421, was not available.

A car parked on E Street in Mtn. Lake Park sustained $1,000 worth of damage in a vandalism incident the night of July 13. The Chrysler bore heavy scratch marks to its hood, trunk, doors and glass.

A suspected theft of construction tools is under investigation, and a subject is wanted for questioning in the incident. The subject, Roger Strawser, was performing construction work for the complainant at a George Washington Highway residence when he reportedly asked if he could borrow some tools to do work at another site. When the agreed-upon time for the return of the items passed, the homeowner learned that Strawser had allegedly sold the tools and may have moved to Florida. The suspected stolen items are a black air compressor worth $650, a Homelite brand power saw worth $250, and an air-driven nail gun worth $50.

Several roadside mailboxes were destroyed this past weekend, apparently by subject(s) driving by and smashing them with a club-type instrument during early-morniug hours. Two of the incidents occurred on Steyer Mine Road early Sunday morning, one in the 1500 block and the other in the 2100 block, and another incident occurred the same morning iu the 1100 block of Garrett Road. Another mailbox had been destroyed early Saturday morning in the 400 block of D Street in Mtn. Lake Park. Citizens with information about these incidents are encouraged to call the sheriff's office at 301-334-1911.

Report Shows W.Md. Supports Cigarette Tax

A recent poll of "likely voters" in Western Maryland shows support in favor of increasing cigarette taxes in order to limit smoking by teenagers. The survey was sponsored by the Maryland Children's Initiative and executed by Penn, Schoen & Berland Associates (PSB) in conjunction with QEV Analytics.

The summary of the poll results based on 1,500 interviews states that likely voters in Western Maryland "remain fully committed to limiting teen smoking by raising cigarette taxes a $1.50 per pack."

There was a 71% agreement among those polled favoring such a tax with proceeds going to fun pro-child programs. "This support is evident across many different groups of likely voters," according to the report.

Political party affiliation was not found by pollsters to be a basis for differing opinions on the teen smoking issue. High percentages of each party polled agreed that tobacco companies have targeted youth. "In fact, 67% of Republicans and 66% of Democrats say the tobacco companies deliberately market to teens," the report said.

The researchers conducting the poll concluded that candidates for political offices may feel the impact of the cigarette tax issue. "Support for specific Assembly candidates may be greatly influenced by their stand on the effort to limit teen smoking," the summary stated.

Findings indicated that voters would be likely to cross party lines to vote for a candidates who supported efforts to limit smoking among teenagers. Western Maryland voters polled registered a preference for Republican candidates by a margin of 41%-21%. The margin, however, switched in favor of Democratic candidates, who supported efforts to reduce teen smoking, over Republican candidates who did not support such measures.

"Our findings demonstrate that rank-and-file GOP voters see the anti-teen-smoking tax a necessary step under the circumstances — despite the well known opposition of GOP leaders such as Newt Gingrich and Trent Lott to anti-teen-smoking efforts at the national level," the report concluded.

PSB, a Washington-based firm, provides strategic research for political candidates, trade associations, interest groups, and corporations. Mark Penn, president of the firm, is a top advisor to President Clinton.

QEV Analytics, a public opinion research and communications strategy firm, specializes in international political research, telecommunications, Internet, and Republican politics. Theft Of Ladders Results In $1,130 Loss To Beitzel's Leads are sought by the Garrett County Sheriff's Office regarding a theft of ladders and scaffolding equipment from a Beitzel Construction Company job site south of Oakland. The theft, which occurred during the night of Wednesday, July 15, is classified as a felony because of the value of the taken items.

Beitzel workers who had erected the scaffolding in place in preparation for a roofing job at 20 Lumber City Road arrived Thursday morning to find the equipment missing. Taken was a 32-foot orange fiberglass extension ladder and a 32-foot aluminum extension ladder, valued at $350 each; two aluminum standoffs for the ladders worth $20 each; two ladder jacks worth $20 each; and one aluminum walkboard valued at $350. The workers pointed out that some of the equipment was painted with day-glo orange paint.

Persons with information concerning this theft are asked to contact the Garrett County Sheriff's Office at 301-334-1911.

Grantsville Votes For Ordinance To Control Loitering

The mayor and town council of Grantsville have signed an ordinance geared to control loitering by regulating the hours that minors can be in public streets and other places.

The ordinance refers to problems that have resulted from gatherings of unsupervised minors in streets, alleys, and parks within the town. The regulation states that activities of an "offensive and destructive nature have increased to such an extent as to become a menace to the preservation of public peace, safety, health, morals, and welfare...."

To reduce these problems, the ordinance prohibits unsupervised persons under the age of 18 to loiter or play in public places between 11 p.m. and 6 a.m. Exceptions to this restriction include instances in which a minor is on an emergency errand or on legitimate business.

Parents are to be held responsible for actions in violation of this ordinance by their minor children. Penalties for such infractions are designated within the ordinance for both minors and parents. Minors will be dealt with in accordance with Juvenile Court law and procedure.

Any parent or guardian violating the ordinance will be fined between $25 and $250, or confined iu jail for not more than 10 days, or both.

The full text of this ordinance is published in this edition of The Republican.

Leads Sought In Corn Field Vandalism

A local farmer suffered a $1,000 loss this past weekend when a vehicle drove off into his Swallow Falls area corn field and spun through the plants, according to the Garrett County Sheriff's Office. Tire tracks from what appeared to be a four-wheel drive vehicle reportedly indicate that a single vehicle left Mellott Road near Swallow Falls Road and entered the field, spun around in a 360-degree turn, and exited the field approximately where it had entered it.

Persons with information concerning this incident are asked to contact the Garrett County Sheriff's Office at 301-334-1911.

GCSO To Host Public With Open House

Garrett County Sheriff P.R. (Dick) Sanders and the personnel of the Garrett County Sheriff's Office will be conducting an open house early next month at the sheriff's office complex and the Garrett County Detention Center. The sheriff's office recently moved to a new location at 202 South Third Street in Oakland.

Slated for Friday, August 7, from 4 to 8 p.m., and Saturday, August 8, from noon to 4 p.m., the open house will include displays of various equipment utilized law enforcement officers and informative presentations concerning investigative techniques and procedures. Demonstrations by the department's K-9 corps and public tours of the detention center are planned as part of the event, as well as fingerprinting for children.

Sheriff Sanders extended an invitation to all residents to be a part of the open house, which he described as a "learning experience." He added, "It is important that the citizens of this county are familiar with the deputies and correctional staff, and the services they provide."

For further information on the sheriff's office and detention center open house, interested persons may call the sheriff's office at 301-334-1911.

MLP Man Faces Several Charges After Traffic Stop

A Mtn. Lake Park man stopped by sheriff's deputies for a stop sign violation early this morning was subsequently arrested for driving while intoxicated (DWI), underage drinking, and a variety of other charges resulting from a search of his vehicle that uncovered suspected marijuana.

Aaron Patrick Glotfelty, 19, was stopped on Weber Road at Oakland Drive at 2:30 a.m after he was observed running a stop sign. The odor of alcohol was detected and he was arrested for DWI after failing a field sobriety test. The vehicle search uncovered a quantity of suspected marijuana and a smoking pipe of the type commonly used to smoke marijuana.

In addition to the DWI and possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia charges, Glotfelty was also charged with violation of a court-ordered imposed alcohol restriction and underage possession of alcohol.

Results of Glotfelty's appearance for a bond hearing before the district court commissioner were still pending this morning.

Accident Injuries Require Transport By Helicopter

An accident involving a 4-wheeler resulted in one person being transported by Trooper 5, medical helicopter, to Cumberland Memorial Hospital.

Maryland State Police at the McHenry barrack reported that on Saturday, around 5 p.m., Rebecca D. DeWitt, 24, Kitzmiller, was operating a Polaris 4-wheeler on private property when she lost control of the vehicle, which then overturned.

Police said that passenger Jim Junior Lipscomb, 31, Kitzmiller, was thrown free from the vehicle. DeWitt was caught in the wheel and rolled with the vehicle, the report said. She was flown to Cumberland Memorial Hospital, where she was admitted for treatment of her injuries.

Investigation continues.

Multiple Charges Filed

Police filed multiple charges against the driver of a Dodge pickup truck after he rear-ended another vehicle Saturday morning on I-68 at Lower New Germany Road.

The police report said Terry R. Engle, 40, Grantsville, was traveling westbound on the Interstate at 5 a.m. He failed to slow his vehicle as he approached the vehicle driven by Robert E. Scott III, 39, Hopwood, Pa.

Engle's pickup struck the rear end of Scott's vehicle. Scott was later transported by Northern Rescue Squad to Sacred Heart Hospital.

Police charged Engle with driving while intoxicated, failure to reduce speed to avoid a collision, and negligent driving.

Fails To Reduce Speed

One driver was charged with failure to reduce speed to avoid a collision following an accident on Route 219 at Will O' the Wisp on Saturday at 5 p.m.

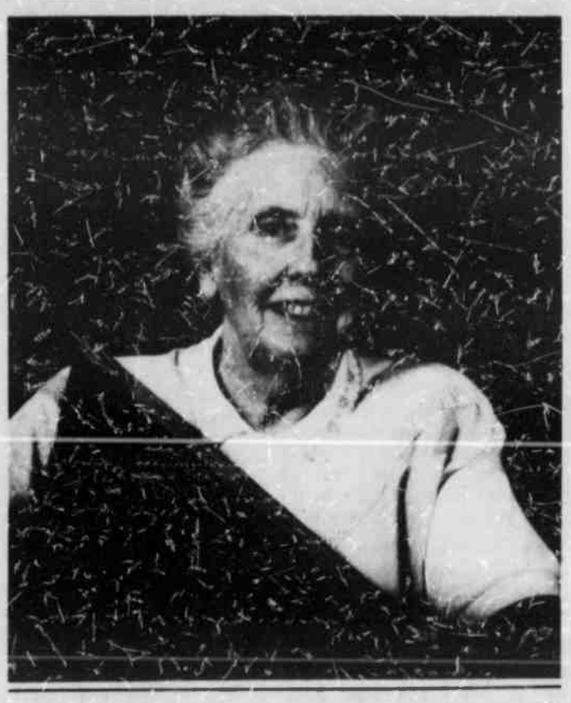
Police said Nicole M. Schab, 23, Havre DeGrace, was southbound on Route 219 at the time of the incident. Christopher L. Sherren, who was also southbound on Route 219, was in the process of making a left turn when Schab, approaching from behind, looked away from the road, and drove into the rear end of Sherren's vehicle, the report said.

Schab, who was injured in the collision, was taken by Southern Rescue Squad to Garrett Memorial Hospital, where she was treated and released. Schab was charged by police.

Strikes Ditch

A driver was injured Sunday morning in a one-vehicle accident, when he ran off the road and struck a ditch.

Police reported that Joshua D. Shaw, 20, Shinston, W.Va., was westbound on National Freeway at 7:45 a.m. when he fell asleep at the wheel, drove off the roadway, and subsequently struck a ditch.



Shaw was taken by Northern Rescue Squad to Sacred Heart Hospital for treatment of minor injuries. He was charged by police with negligent driving.

CDS/DWI

Maryland State Police, Barrack C, LaVale, reported the arrest of Jason J. Shingler, 20, Grantsville, on charges of possession of a controlled dangerous substance (marijuana) and paraphernalia, and driving while intoxicated.

Details Noted On Duck Race, Sidewalk Sale

Oakland mayor Asa McCain and town manager Glenn Tolbert have released information on the upcoming rubber ducky race and expanded sidewalk sale event scheduled for July 31 and August 1.

Slated as a town celebration and a fund-raising event, the two-day Oakland Sidewalk Sale and Outdoor Festival will include demonstrations of flyfishing and recreations of early Garrett County mountain life.

The rubber ducky race scheduled for Saturday at 2 p.m. on the Little Yough is planned as a fund-raiser for the Save Oakland Station and the Main Street programs. Anyone wishing to participate in the event may do so by visiting an Oakland business and donating $5 to "adopt/sponsor" a duck. Prizes will be awarded to winners, and a sponsor need not be present to collect prize money.

The following businesses have "Official" entry forms for the rubber duck racing event: Marvin's Men's Wear, Rudy's, Little Expressions, Englander's, Proudfoot's, and The Book Mark et.

Food to suit many palates will be also be available at the festival, including "summertime favorites" such as ice cream and hot dogs, Tolbert said. "Demonstrations on how to prepare one of Garrett County's newest and healthiest commodities — rabbits — will also be taking place downtown," he added.

Local artisans have been invited to take part in the event, which will also feature live music.

For more information, persons may contact Glenn Tolbert at 301-533 4470 or 301-387-9337.

Allen Paugh Road Honors Impetus In GCC Founding

The late Allen S. Paugh Sr., a former Garrett County farmer, philanthropist, and a member of the Board of the Garrett County Commissioners, was remembered last week as a new county road named in his honor was opened. The road opening was announced at a regular public session of the board of the county commissioners.

Allen S. Paugh Sr. Road is located in McHenry, adjoining a new parking lot on the west side of Garrett Community College, and serves as a connector road between Mosser and Bumble Bee roads.

The road naming is in recognition of Paugh's leadership in securing a community college for Garrett County in the mid 1960s. "I knew Allen for many years," current county commissioner Wayne Wilt commented last week, "and he was a leader in getting the college here. A lot of people helped get the college started, but Allen went the extra mile." Wilt went on to recount his understanding that Paugh had mortgaged his farm on Spring Glade Road to help secure funds for the college.

"The naming of the road is a wonderful gesture on the county's part," GCC president Steve Herman added. "He was instrumental in bringing the college to the county, and we're pleased that Allen S. Paugh Sr. Road is located in such proximity to GCC."

Our Town Theatre Show Schedule Updates Noted

A variety of events are taking place at the Our Town Theatre (OTT), Oakland, and an update of this week's activities has been provided by Jane Avery, artistic director of the theatre.

Bob Watson, local attorney, will present a program of readings titled "Land of Poets' Pride" on Friday, July 24, at 7 p.m. The proceeds from this show will directly benefit the theatre. Tickets are $10 per person and may be reserved by calling OTT at 301-334-5640.

A lively program for children (but appealing to adults, too, according to Avery) is slated for Saturday, July 25. The show is titled The Jack Tales and will begin at 2 p.m.

The weekly play reading series will continue Sunday evening (July 26) with Moliere's Misanthrope, starting at 7 p.m.

Avery also noted that the production of the farce Black Comedy, slated in August, will now be postponed indefinitely. Because of conflicting summer schedules, the play could not be cast last week.

Barter Camp

Our Town Theatre's Barter Camp will take place next week, from Monday, July 27, through Friday, July 31, at the theatre. The hours will be 10 a.m. uutil noon. The camp is open to children who have just completed kindergarten up to those who have finished fifth grade. There will be two age groups.

A variety of theatre-related activities and projects will be led by several adult volunteers throughout the week.

Instead of paying an entrance fee, campers will be asked to bring specific items each day. They are as follows: Monday, a snack item; Tuesday, a package of toilet paper; Wednesday, a roll of paper towels; Thursday, a box of business-size envelopes; and Friday, a book of 32-cent stamps.

To register for the camp, persons should call Liz Gilbert at 301-334-3238.

Kitzmiller Man Sought After One-Vehicle Accident

A Kitzmiller man is being sought by the Garrett County Sheriff's Office for questioning in connection with a one-vehicle accident that occurred Saturday evening on Kitzmiller Road.

Sheriff's deputies reconstructing the circumstances of the accident through eyewitness accounts and on-scene investigation allege that Robert Eugene Johnson, 33, was driving his Chevrolet pickup truck southbound on Kitzmiller Road at 5:45 p.m. when his vehicle left the road and struck a telephone pole and a large tree in the front yard of a home in the 4900 block.

Johnson, who was the truck's sole occupant, reportedly exited the wrecked vehicle through the passenger door after his attempts to kick open the driver's side door proved unsuccessful. According to the charging statement, as he opened the door a number of beer cans spilled from the truck into the yard, and he staggered about for a short time until a passerby stopped to render assistance. At that poiut Johnson reportedly walked back to his truck, filled his pockets with beer cans, and fled into the woods on foot.

Johnson has not been seen since then, and no charges have been filed as of this time. Citizens with information concerning his whereabouts are asked to call the Garrett County Sheriff's Office at 301-334-1911.

Give Your Teeth A Sporting Chance
Between 1 and 3 million teeth per year are knocked out from sports related injuries. Not only do the "contact sports" of football and hockey result in trauma, but youth baseball and softball now lead all sports in head and oral injuries. The non-contact sports of basketball and soccer make up nearly 30% of all these injuries.
The main reasons parents give for their child not wearing protective sports mouthguards are that they are uncomfortable, loose fit, and gagging.
Your dentist can custom make a mouthguard, usually within 1 day. A little help from your dentist can go a long way to ensure that your child is smiling for that trophy at the end of the year.

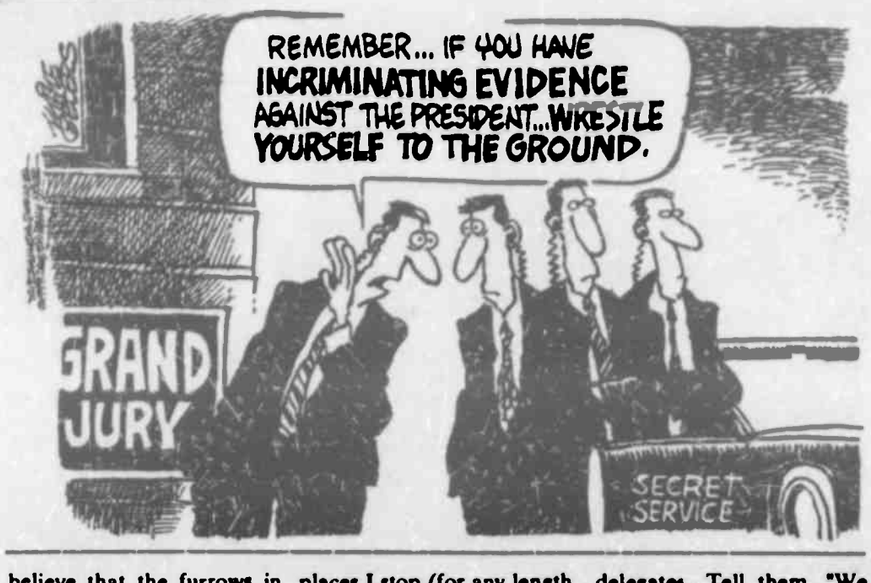
Too Many Hours?...

A press conference has been scheduled for next Tuesday by the Emergency Medical Services Appalachian Advisory Council as one of the initial steps to address what is becoming a serious problem m the area of emergency service, both in Garrett and Allegany counties — a growing lack of volunteers. Apparently many rural areas across the nation are experiencing the same difficulty.

We certainly don't want to throw cold water on this worthy effort to recruit and retain needed volunteers for both emergency medical care and fire suppression. One cannot overstate the value of these services to any community, as lives and property are being saved on a regular basis. We could also never afford to fully fund this kind of service. However, we do have a theory as to why we are beginning to experience this problem, and it was a predicted by some at least a decade ago.

Those of us who were involved in local emergency medical services in the "early years" (mid-1970s) received our emergency medical technician certification by taking and passing a 72-hour training course. With each successive course offered, the number of required hours of training grew. Today, the basic EMT course is 133 hours of training, or nearly double the original requirement. The number of hours required to become certified as a cardiac rescue technician is now at least 333, and the minimum required to earn paramedic certification is a staggering 733, or 600 hours beyond the EMT training.



A similar pattern has been followed in firefighter training, but not nearly to this extreme.

The fact of the matter is, there are not enough people able and/or willing to donate this much time just to become certified as emergency service caregivers. Time and energy for volunteer work are at a premium in this day and age, because it takes so much of both just to try to make economic ends meet in a family.

As the requirements for certification steadily increased in the 1980s, we used to joke that eventually they, the "powers that be," would have us performing brain surgery in the back of an ambulance. We knew that it would ultimately take a toll on the number of people willing to get involved. It is wonderful to have the dedicated CRTs and paramedics that we have, because there is no doubt that they have saved lives that would have been lost without their skills. But we are also beginning to have situations in which ambulance crews are having difficulty responding to emergencies in a timely fashion, and with sufficient personnel. The result will ultimately be that far more lives are lost because ill/injured persons are not receiving even basic live-saving care within a crucial, and often tiny, window of time.

The EMS does offer a first-responders course, which is 42 hours of training in basic life support skills, and we view this as a huge step in the right direction. Perhaps they could also pare down the EMT certification course to, say, about 100 hours, and maybe more persons would be willing to make the commitment. It is truly among the most rewarding work anyone can do.

Sometimes when one tries to save the whole world, a much bigger piece of it is lost in the process. But regardless of how the EMS addresses this crisis, we fully support their efforts and sincerely hope that our citizens respond. Our lives, literally, depend upon it.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

I have heard some people say, why should I vote? Their reason is that the business and people in power will have the people they want put in office anyway. I encourage all people to vote. It is your right. If you are registered to vote, do it, and if not registered, get registered, and vote. It does no good to say that you don't like this official or what is happening if you don't. You will have given up your chance to make a differeace if you don't.

This is the only way you are guaraateed to have your say in government, and the way things are going. If you feel that someone is not doing as they should in government, then get them out of office. I have listened to people who believe that we need a change. Vote for the candidate of your choice, and when you feel they are neglectiag their duties, let them know.

Remember, it does no good to complain if you do not vote or care. It only takes a few minutes to vote for someone to represent you, and make decisions that will affect you for the next four years.

Thank you,

To the Editor:

Last week The Republican featured an article in which Our Town Theatre noted its intention to produce Peter Shaffer's one-act farce Black Comedy. On Tuesday we held auditions for this production, but there were not enough participants to yield a cast list for the play. We realize that summer brings busy schedules and imminent vacations, and that many people are simply too busy to deal with more responsibilities, so we have decided to put Black Comedy on the back burner for a while for production at a later date.

While we hate to disappoint our public, we believe that the timing for such ventures is important, and the right time for this particular production is later, not sooner.

We still expect to offer numerous activities and theatrical experiences for the public during the rest of the summer. Please remember that The Jack Tales, a play for children, is scheduled for 2 p.m. this Saturday.

Our theatre is growing and learning every day. Thank you for your patience.

Sincerely yours,
Jane B. Avery

To the Editor:

On July 13th, our county suffered the loss of one of its truly honorable citizens, namely Wilbur Myers. Those of us who reside in the small, tightly knit community of Kitzmiller, will remember Wilbur as a gentleperson, who was always there to assist others and who was blessed with a disarming personality.

There were no gray areas in Wilbur's life; everything was either good or bad, right or wrong, the truth or a lie. When Wilbur spoke, there was no need to search for a hidden meaning in his words; his thoughts and opinions were there for you to accept or reject, without compromise or apology.

Wilbur was a farmer by occupation and a giver to the community by choice.

He will be remembered by some for his childlike enthusiasm, as it pertained to working at the Kitzmiller Lions Club booth at the Garrett County Fair. Wilbur had been a dedicated Lion for almost 50 years, and as fair time approached, he displayed the eagerness of a little leaguer, playing in his first game.

I won't attempt now or ever to analyze why God chooses to call people home at a particular time. I'll leave that discussion to those scholars who are much more versed in biblical theology than I.

I will say, however, that in my heart of hearts, I believe that the furrows in the fields of heaven will be plowed a little straighter, the scent of growing clover will be a little sweeter, and heaven's grass a little greener, because of Wilbur's presence.

God's speed to you, Wilbur. We'll miss you frequently, and remember you always.

Respectfully,
Randy Durst

To the Editor:

Wake up, Garrett County! There is a move afoot to destroy your beloved land. It's called by many names, but it boils down to another "superhighway." It's not enough that I-68 has destroyed Cumberland (as people hurry past to go east and west). Now "Moe and Company" are trying to convince you that people traveling from Canada to Florida, on a week or 10-day vacation, are going to stop and spend money here!

I used to live in Pittsburgh, but now live in Florida for seven months and spend four or five months here, in Garrett County, at the lake, in the cottage we have owned since it was "Maryland's best kept secret."

Now ask me, how many places I stop (for any length of time), on my way north or south. Very few! The people traveling north and south will only stop for a potty and food and gas break. Then away they go!

Another question is...when 219 becomes a superhighway, how are you going to get out of your property if it is a limited access road? When that happens, your property won't be worth a darn! Who, in their right mind, wants a rival Garrett County to look like Pittsburgh or Baltimore?

Now, I realize that the citizens of Oakland and Accident are sometimes at odds with the lake property owners. However, "politics make strange bedfellows." At long last, the people who live (or have cottages) for 12 months (or less), should find a way to "band together" and tell Mr. Moe: "Hey, Moe...we don't want no moe" No moe highways...no moe pipe dreams...no moe false promises...no moe destruction of beautiful Garrett County. Just tell Moe, "no moe!" It is up to you.

Write some letters to your state and federal senators, congress people, or delegates. Tell them, "We know what you are selling...and we are not buying!!" This is mountain country and I love it (even though some natives of the county refer to me as a "flatlander"). If even some folks stop here, on their north to south um, you will be so full of "flatlanders" that you will be forced to forget that you are good and friendly mountain residents. If you don't believe me, try vacationing in Pittsburgh or Baltimore. For, if you let "Moe and Company" have their way, you will be the next urban town, complete with drugs and all types of crime imaginable.

Remember the call words..."No moe highways."

To the Editor:

As a result of our Citizens' Workshops and the requests that we have made to the SHA, we have the following information which apparently confirms what we have suspected right along — there is no need for an Oakland bypass. Furthermore, if one were to be built, it would do much more harm than good.

Some facts contained in the October 1997 Purpose and Need Statement which was recently released to us by the SHA:

The actual number of accidents that occurred at the so-called "choke point" (Third & Oak Sts.) between Jan. 1993 and Dec. 1996 was a grand total of three. There were no pedestrians involved, and there were no personal injuries. Property damage only.

85% to 90% of the vehicles traveling on 219 within the town limits is local traffic. The ADT (average daily traffic) count shows that only 6.5% of traffic volumes is truck traffic. 62% of the truck traffic had an origin or destination in the town itself, e.g., making deliveries, etc.

The study shows that U.S. 219 has been given an LOS (level of service) rating of "A" (the highest rating) during both the a.m. and p.m. peak period throughout the entire study area. The LOS for a roadway is a measure of the operational conditions of traffic flow on that particular facility. It describes conditions in terms of speed, travel time, comfort, convenience, and safety. Level A as defined in the study is "free traffic flow, low volumes, higher speeds." While there were dire predictions made 20 years ago, and there are still a few who lament the fact that it wasn't done then, the "proof is in the pudding." It would have been a mistake then, just as it is now.

There are also all of the concerns raised by concerned citizens if the bypass were constructed, such as children's safety, rerouting of school buses, and problems with construction near the flood control dam, as well as the splitting of the communities of Mtn. Lake Park and Oakland, the noise level near the hospital, and the loss of cherished farms and other properties.

We agree that there are some traffic problems, but we believe that they can be addressed with low cost/low impact measures. Attractive pedestrian walkways can be utilized, with traffic signals where necessary. It should also be noted that the SHA has already purchased a piece of property which should alleviate some, if not most, of the truck problems. Heavy interstate through-trucks can be restricted from going through the area. If we can get everyone to sit down and talk seriously about these problems, they can be resolved without the need for a bypass.

We continue to believe that the real reason for this push for a bypass is that it will be the first step in the construction of a Superhighway "through Garrett County."

There will be a meeting at GCC auditorium for people to voice their concerns and ask questions. Governor Parris Glendenning and SHA highway officials have been invited. It is scheduled for Thursday, Aug. 13, 7 to 9 p.m.

McHenry

To the Editor:

Little of what I am about to write here is new. But it is the type of information that needs to be re-addressed in public forum periodically. As such, it has all been said before by such stalwarts as Niccolo Machiavelli, Alexis de Tocqueville and our own Teddy Roosevelt, in near lyrical prose that brilliantly illuminates the political landscape of our present wobbly representative democracy. Many others have addressed these issues starting with the Greeks, who first conceived the idea that man had an inalienable right to freedom and a right to determine, in a democratic sense (one man, one vote) how that freedom was to be dispensed and administered. They, and all democracies that followed their lead, soon learned that there are indeed some simple truths free men and women neglect or forget at their own peril — and the longevity of their hard won liberty.

From the very beginning it became apparent that where accountability languishes, corruption flourishes. That there are some vitally important truths that need to be recalled regularly by those who would perpetuate their free society for the sake of their children and future geuerations. Such truths are not part of a gene imprint or instinctive in any sense. They must be relearned generationally and protected by sweat, tears and at times, the blood of their adherents. All those guilty of transgressions must be punished promptly. And the memory of quick and just punishment must be refreshed on an ongoing basis to create the desired effect on society as a whole and its would-be villains in particular.

Democracies falter and eventually fail not so much because of their corrupt leadership, if such is the case, but because such corruption, if not checked early and decisively, infects the people. And no democracy can withstand the corruption of its people!

We, as a society of free men and women, are hard against this simple truth as we all approach a critical crossroad ahead. We have no option to take the route that suits us individually. The route must be selected as a unified people — all for one and one for all. For we are, "...one nation, under God, indivisible."

Michael Ledeen,* whose new book, on this and other related topics, will be out early next year, put it this way: "Consequently, freedom can be preserved if the corruption is contained within the elites and then rooted out by appropriate punishments. But if the people are corrupt, democracy is doomed. Alexis de Tocqueville knew that. He wrote: "...what is to be feared is not so much the inunorality of the great as the fact that immorality may lead to greatness. ...[The people] are...led, and often rightly, to impute [a leader's] success mainly to some of his vices; and an odious connection is thus formed between the ideas of turpitude (revolting baseness) and power, unworthiness and success, utility and dishonor."

Does any of this sound familiar? It should. We are living it as you read this. You see, Clinton is not a new phenomenon. He is an old vestige cloaked in a time worn and tattered wrapper. Some might call it demagoguery. Others know it's much worse.

Cordially,
Ronald R. Rowan

View From My Window

FRUSTRATED AT MODERNITY

I had five major credit cards, but I only used one. Sometimes I would swap another one into my wallet just to keep the account active. The other day I asked myself "Why?" So I decided to keep two cards, one to use and the other for back-up.

The handy 800 numbers on the back of the cards guided my path to canceling the other three. Each bank asked me the same question, "Why cancel?" There was, after all, no fee associated with their use. One bank offered me tempting financial terms. Another wanted to help me buy a new car. I told the latter firm that I am currently driving an '84 Subaru and an '85 Ford pick-up.

So why cancel? My answer was this: "To simplify my life." Three out of three responded with an audible smile, "That works for me." I recalled the circumstances which led me to have five credit cards. There had been good reasons, and I had not misused the cards. In a way, I could get rid of three credit cards precisely because I had not mis-used them.

By the time the phone calls were finished I had a pile of small pieces of plastic, which I then deposited in the trash can.

This episode was one of three I had within a week's time in which my humanity came into conflict with ever pervasive tentacles of modernity. That episode was a happy one. I was in charge. I made a good decision.

The other two episodes were not so happy. There was nothing tragic or compellingly sad about them, but still they were not happy.

I have a project under way that involves the government. To say that the project is under way is inaccurate. It is finished. The paperwork, however, is still under way.

The other day I was wound up to yell at someone about all this. The first person I talked to sensed my mood, and quickly handed me over to someone else. I asked a few pointed questions, to which the person gave polite replies.

He was more than polite. He was downright apologetic. He agreed that some of the paperwork could have been combined and that it was his fault it had not been combined. He was very sorry in a way that was clearly sincere.

His attitude completely dissipated my anger. When the conversation was over, I felt sorry for him having to sort through the red tape of four bureaucracies to get his job done.

I also knew that many people would not have the patience to work with this system. How such good in the world never happens because people encounter a seemingly endless wall of paper?

The third circumstance was the hardest to take. I was going over several months worth of phone bills when I began to notice something odd.

For years and years and years the long distance phone rates have had three tiers: daytime, evening, and nighttime. I noticed that charges for times were not breaking along these old lines, rather on a 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. break, with nighttime reserved for weekends. So I phoned my long distance carrier.

"Did you send me notice of that change?" I asked. "We did what the Federal Communications Commission required us to do," she replied. "But did you notify me?" I rejoined. "We published notices in major newspapers," came her second stock reply. I continued, "But did you send a notice to me?" "No," she said without explanation.

She gave me some free phone time, a sop to assuage me, but my loyalty to her company—with which I have done business unwaveringly—is forever shaken. They taught me to shop for a better deal, which I plan to do.

I long for business concluded with a handshake, for honest value, for stability. I wonder if the current avalanche of technological changes have cracked such fundaments forever.

"Pennsylvania has displayed no interest in developing Route 220 south from Bedford to the Maryland line, but is proceeding with planning and development of Route 219 through their entire state." He went on to say that he sees the Route 219 north project as beneficial to Garrett and Allegany counties in Maryland and Somerset County in Pennsylvania.

Moe called on Maryland House speaker Casper Taylor to endorse and support the Route 219 north project. "It's time for both Allegany and Garrett counties to work together for the benefit of the entire tri-state region," Moe remarked.

"The governor's proposal to 'study the feasibility' of a north/south interstate, within either Garrett or Allegany county, connecting 1-68 south to what will be Corridor H in West Virginia, is a welcomed first step in providing the needed transportation infrastructure for the entire western Maryland region," Moe concluded.

In the area of long-term care services, the agency serves as guardian for some persons, as appointed by a court, and it serves as ombudsman to residents of long-term care facilities who have specific concerns or complaints. The agency also provides in-home care and case management services to 225 frail elderly through the Senior Care System.

The Health Insurance Counseling and Advocacy Program (HICAP) will be available to seniors seeking information, assistance, or who have complaints.

In senior assisted housing, the agency operates two elderly homes, Rose Terrace and Truesdell. Nine individuals live at Rose Terrace, and six are at Truesdell. Yoder said Truesdell has consistently lost revenue each year because of rising health care and operational costs, and that an alternative solution is being sought.

Solution ideas include locating a private provider to purchase and operate the home, obtaining additional funding to address increased operational costs, obtaining additional property for expansion to increase resident population, closing the home through attrition, or obtaining a larger facility to allow in increase in resident number without jeopardizing the staff-resident ratio.

Yoder also mentioned that there are several quality homes in the county where one to three elderly people are cared for, and these homes are not government-regulated. However, he said he predicts that within the next few years, these smaller homes will fall under government regulations, which may result in dire situations for many of them.

"For a lot of these folks, it will be more sensible to simply close down," he said. "The regulations can force them to make costly renovations and changes, and it's often just not worth it for them." Yoder went on to say that this will certainly cause problems, and that he and his staff are discussing ways to address the situation.

"It's something we all have to be aware of, and we need to think of some answers," he said.

The total budget for the Area Agency on Aging for next year will be $733,744, according to Yoder's report.

MISS BRANTHOOVER WINS STATE TITLE — Amber Marie Branthoover, daughter of Eric and Brenda Branthoover, McHenry, was recently crowned Miss Maryland Princess and will now move on to compete in the Miss National Princess Pageant, slated in November at the Walt Disney World Resort Village Hilton. Miss Branthoover faced several competitors in the contest, and, according to a pageant spokesperson, she typifies the motto of the American Pageants™: "Youth . . . pride of the present, hope of the future." In honor of her accomplishment, the young Miss Maryland had her picture taken this week with the Garrett County commissioners, who are, left to right, Wayne Johnson, Wayne Wilt, and Gary Fratz. Amber is 8 years old and is a second grader.

Correction Noted

In a photo caption in last week's issue of The Republican it was reported that Susan McNichol, who was pictured, had been awarded her degree from the University of Maryland. It stated incorrectly that she had maintained a grade point average of 3.0 while at Maryland. Her gpa was, in fact, a 3.6 on a 4.0 scale. The error is regretted.

Food Distribution Industry Award Won By Bartlett

U.S. Representative Roscoe G. Bartlett was honored last week at a ceremony hosted by Food Distributors International (FDI), a trade group representing more than 260 companies. Bartlett received the industry's 1998 Thomas Jefferson Award, given to members of congress who have voted consistently in support of sound fiscal policy, minimal government regulation, and other free-market principles deemed crucial to the health of the food distribution industry and the nation's economy as a whole.

"The Thomas Jefferson Award is our opportunity to recognize these members of congress who have shown their support of business and have worked to create a government that allows our industry to prosper," said Robert Smith, chairman of FDI.

Bartlett was among 214 other members of the House of Representatives received this year's Thomas Jefferson award.

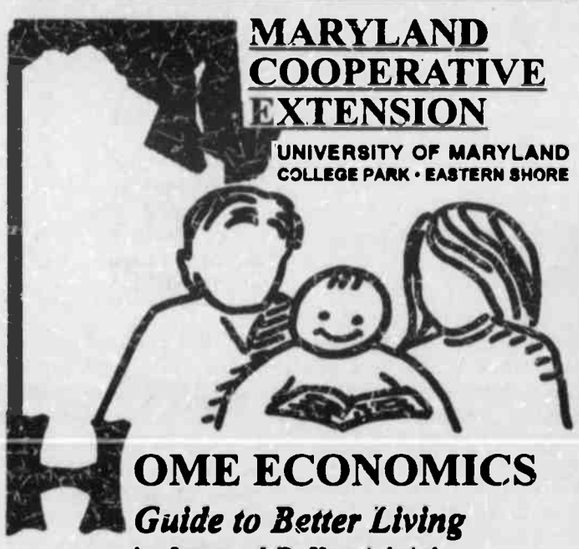
guilty pleas and sent him to the Garrett County Jail, where he will remain while a pre-sentence investigation is completed.

Another Oakland man is in jail by order of Sherbin for his offeuses of trespassing and probation violation. Dwight H. Clary, 20, pleaded guilty to the charge of trespassing and received 90 days for that offense, and then was found guilty of probation violation. The judge reinposed a jail term of 44 months for Clary, all of which had been suspended in a previous sentencing hearing.

The trespass charge was incurred by the defendant after he allegedly entered the Steven Miller residence along Sand Flat Road after being warned by Miller not to do so.



Being arrested violated Clary's conditions of probation, which he was on after being convicted of first degree burglary. That charge had stemmed from the burglary of an Oakland area home in January 1997.

In other proceedings last week, Sherbin also sentenced an Oakland man to one year in jail. David A. Smith, 30, entered pleas of guilty in May to the charges of marijuana possession and driving under the influence of drugs and/or alcohol. The judge sentenced him to six months for each offense, according to the court report.

Smith was arrested in July of last year by a sheriff's office deputy after a citizen issued a complaint about the defendant.

FOOD SAFETY COMES IN MANY FORMS

Summer has the ring of sunshine, water, and fun. Becoming sick can put a serious crimp into vacation and having a good time. Knowing what to look for and what to avoid goes a long way toward staying well, but there is no 100% guarantee that harmful bacteria may not lurk behind some food that looks too good to pass up. Just in the past few weeks there have been warnings about salmonella in Millville brand of toasted oats cereal. Almost 200 cases of illness from this bacteria in 11 states have been reported in the past two months.

Sulfites in a fruit and nut mix by a Maryland company, but not having this ingredient on the label, prompted the FDA to warn consumers who have a sensitivity to sulfites not to consume this product. Fish lesions are still in the news. Special caution continues to be published about eating raw or undercooked meat and seafood.

What is one to make of this? What can we do for our families and ourselves to avoid eating contaminated food? Food safety has become a familiar term. We still eat out, but wonder... All this practically ignores the potential for food-borne illness in the home, which is generally not publicized because those affected think it is a touch of the stomach flu or it is only a few people who become ill.

All food handlers and occasional food handlers should take note that the home economist of the Cooperative Extension has just become certified in food safety and sanitation, and has scheduled an in-depth training on food safety and sanitation at Garrett Community College for Wednesday, Aug. 26. More information will be forthcoming. At this time it is crucial that the date is marked on your calendar. This no-cost program is a one-time opportunity to learn or update yourself about safe food handling and receive a certificate and, possibly, door prizes, for attending. Remember August 26, and spread the word!

For more information, persons may contact Irmgard R. Koscielniak, family and community sciences educator, Cooperative Extension, 1916 Maryland Hwy., Suite A, Mtn. Lake Park, MD 21550. Telephone 301-334-6964 or -6960.

into numerous residences of the Paradise Ridge area, and businesses around Deep Creek Lake. Blackwell's co-defendant also pleaded guilty to the crimes and is currently serving a jail term.

In another circuit court case, an Oakland man entered guilty pleas to charges of child abuse, second degree assault, and perverted sexual practice. Brian E. Deem, 30, is alleged to have sexually molested and injured a 7-year-old child.

According to the report, an investigation by Det. C. Warnick of the Garrett County Sheriff's Office revealed that the child had suffered a black eye after being kicked by Deem and falling. Deem then apparently fled into West Virginia and remained at large until he was apprehended at his Crellin home in late April.

After being arrested, Deem reportedly confessed to Warnick that he had also been sexually assaulting the same child for some time. Additional charges were then incurred by him after the child reported the same information.

At the trial last week, Sherbin accepted Deem's

Statistical Studies, Citizen Reports Help DNR Monitor Bear Activity

by Steva Bittner
DNR Forest Game Biologist

Black bear activity in western Maryland has historically been quite significant during July. Breeding season reaches its peak during the early part of the month. Dominant males are still traveling large distances looking to breed with willing females. These larger males also come in contact with younger males that also want to breed available females. However, the larger males generally chase the younger males from the area, causing large movements of this young age class.

Those yearling bears that have been with their mother since they were born two Januarys ago are also moving about looking for a new home. Since the mother sow has chased them away sometime in June, these "teenagers" are looking for adequate places to call home.

The young females will generally stay close to their original home range. Their mother will tolerate them within her home range, and allow some overlap between the home ranges.

However, young males will be chased from the area by more aggressive, larger males. These young males can travel extremely long distances in search of a new home. Some yearling males have traveled more than 100 miles during this time of the year.

Sows with new cubs are also traveling about and moving into their summer home ranges. The cubs should be about 20-30 pounds by now, about the size of a large raccoon. They will follow the female to these summering areas, playfully exploring new territory and learning important survival techniques.

The Maryland Department of Natural Resources Wildlife & Heritage Division is keeping track of sows with cubs. If you have recently seen a sow with cubs, please contact your local wildlife office and file a report. This information is very important to the future management of the black bear in western Maryland. You can be of great assistance by reporting any sightings of sows with cubs.

July is also the month that the Wildlife & Heritage Division conducts the annual Bait Station Survey. This survey involves placing partially opened sardine cans along designated survey routes throughout Garrett County. The stations are checked eight days after establishment for any wildlife sign. Particular attention is given to activity by bears at these sights.

A bear site visitation index is calculated at the end of the survey. This survey does not calculate bear population numbers, but instead shows trends in the bear population. Theoretically, if the site visitation index has increased, and all other factors remained the same (bait, time of year), then one can assume that the bear population has increased.

In 1997, the overall site visitation index was 12.5 percent. However, if you look at routes conducted in 1993 and 1997, the site visitation index increased from 4.6 percent in 1993 to 13.6 percent in 1997. The increase in the site visitation index translates to an increasing trend in the bear population. However, a bear population estimate cannot be derived from this particular survey. The 1998 Bait Station Survey will not be complete until the end of July.

The Maryland Wildlife & Heritage Division is gathering as much information as possible about black bears in western Maryland. Bait Station Surveys, nuisance complaints, and bear sightings are all an important component of black bear management.

Oakland Team Wins District I Baseball Title

A team of 13-year-old all-stars representing the Oakland Little League captured the District I Junior Division Little League championship this past week, and the team entered state tournament play last evening (see separate story for results).

In the district tourney, the local team edged Clear Spring, 3-2, and whipped Maugansville, 12-2, before falling into the losers' bracket by being topped by Halfway, 9-2. The Oaklanders then stopped Maugansville again, 10-6, before meeting Halfway, a team they had to defeat twice in order to claim the championship.

In the first re-match, the local players hammered the ball and recorded an easy 16-2 victory. The second and deciding contest was a nail-biter, however, that wasn't decided until the final inning. Oakland held on for a 4-3 win.

The team entered the state championships yesterday with a 5-1 playoff record. The tourney, which is also double-elimination, will conclude next Tuesday.

This is the second consecutive year that Oakland's 13-year-old all-stars have won the District I title. Last year's squad also won the North Maryland championship before losing in the Mid-Atlantic Regional Tournament.

Ron O'Brien, Bob Tressler, and David Bender are coaching/managing the all-star team.

DISTRICT CHAMPIONS - For the second straight year, the team of 13-year-old all-stars from the Oakland Little League captured the Maryland District I championship, and has thus qualified for the state tournament that began last evening. The team had to emerge from the losers' bracket in the district tourney and defeat Halfway of Hagerstown twice in order to win the title. Pictured from left, front row, are: A.J. Bandar, Danny O'Brien, Brandon Louden, Daniel Cathell, Randy Chapman, and Tobi Stonar. In the back, same order, are: Ron O'Brien, Rex Hoalcraft, Kavin Ooralski, Donnie Trasaler, Matthew Stephens, Zachary Savage, Bob Trasaler, and Dave Bander.

Oakland Team Edged 11-10 In State Tourney

The 13-year-old all-stars of the Oakland Little League, who won the District I championship this past weekend, dropped its first game in the Maryland State Tournament last evening, falling 11-10 to Havenwood of Baltimore County. The Oakland squad was ahead 9-3, but Havenwood chipped away at the lead and went ahead by one.

With one runner on and two outs in the final inning, an Oakland batter hit the ball to the fence, but the Havenwood outfielder made an outstanding grab to end the game. Further details were not available at press-time.

Oakland will play again in the double-elimination tournament this Friday at 6 p.m. The tourney is being held in Federalsburg.

Storey's Wins One Of Three In Tournament

The local girls' softball team sponsored by Tim Storey Construction Company was eliminated from the Sugar & Spice League tournament on Saturday by losing twice to Betz, 6-2 and 4-1. Sandwiched in between the defeats was a 6-3 win over Frostburg Pride. The tournament was played in Cresaptown.

The local team, coached by Sherwin Teagarden, concluded its first season in the league with a successful overall record of 13-4-1.

It was a four-run fifth inning that broke a 2-2 tie and led to Storey's defeat in its opening game against Betz on Saturday, despite the fact that Storey's out-hit the winners by a 7-5 margin.

Jennifer Teagarden pitched the first four- and 1/3 innings for Storey's, striking out four, issuing four walks, and allowing five hits. Jennifer Bosley took over in relief and did not allow another hit, although two unearned runs were scored. She recorded seven strike-outs and allowed five walks.

Winning pitcher Anne Shaffer struck out seven, walked just one, and gave up seven singles, two of which were by Nicole Kitzmiller.

Teagarden and Bosley teamed up again to record the win over Frostburg Pride in game two, as Teagarden pitched the first four innings and Bosley the last three. Teagarden yielded four hits, struck out two, issued one walk, and gave up just one run. Bosley struck out five and allowed one hit, one walk, and two runs.

Losing pitcher Stephanie Siddmore had three singles and scored all three runs for Frostburg. On the mound, however, she gave up nine hits, walked three, and struck out six.

Leading Storey's offensive effort was Heather Breeneman, who hit a double and two singles. Ashley Liller and Jennifer Sanders finished with two singles apiece.

The big inning for Storey's players was the fifth, when they scored three runs to break a 1-1 tie.

The second game against Betz was also tied at 1-1 after four and 1/2 innings, but Betz scored three runs in the bottom of the fifth without a hit, and held on for the win.

Despite having to absorb the loss, Bosley had an outstanding game on the mound for Storey's, as she struck out a dozen batters, allowed only two hits, and yielded three walks. The two hits were a triple by Abby McCormick and a single by Krissy Jackson, both in the fourth inning, which resulted in the only earned run for Betz.

Anne Shaffer also pitched well for Betz, as she struck out six, walked two, and also gave up just two hits, a lead-off single in the first inning by Ashley Liller and a bunt single in the fourth by Nicole Kitzmiller.

The three unearned runs scored by Betz in the fifth were a result of two walks and three errors.

Going on to win the league championship was Metco, which defeated Betz in an eight-inning contest, 6-5.

15, UNDER RESULTS

In the local girls' 15 and under division, the team sponsored by Stewart Funeral home lost two games to Frostburg Pride last Wednesday, 16-5 and 12-5. Stewart's will travel to Frostburg this Saturday to meet the same team in a doubleheader, slated to get under way at 11 a.m.

Cumberland Lions Pull Plug On TCI Computers

The Cumberland Lions booted TCI Computers by a 12-run margin in a Hot Stove League game shortened by the 10-run rule at Allegany High School this past Thursday.

Kevin Shambaugh belted a pair of triples, a double and a single for the victors, Mario Bascelli whacked a triple and three singles, and Josh Carlomany added a double and a single. Guy Beitzel's pair of singles highlighted TCI's offensive production.

TCI finished its season at seven wins and seven losses.

Rams, Husky Earn All-Area Baseball Honors

Three members of the 1998 Southern High School baseball team, which finished second in the state, division 1A, and one member of the Northern High School squad were among the 14 area players named to the 1998 All-Area first team, as determined by a vote of the area coaches.

Selected from the Southern Rams' team, coached by Jim Bosley, were senior Chad Warnick, junior Jason Weaver, and sophomore Josh Bosley, while senior Matt Fritz of Coach Phil Carr's Huskies was named.

Southern's Derek Everd, also a senior, was named to the All-Area second team, while Zach Rawe of Northern received honorable mention honors.

Chad Warnick, who was one of three pitchers named to the first team, led the Rams to a fifth straight area title, the regional championship, and a third consecutive Western Maryland Interscholastic League championship in only the Rams' third year in the WMIL. He posted a 6-1 record this past season with the best ERA in the area at 1.38. He pitched 55 and 2/3 innings, gave up 38 hits and 11 earned runs, walked 32, and struck out 59.

The right-hander was 3-0 with a save in post-season play, as he struck out seven and allowed only one earned run with a .58 ERA in two state tournament games. One of his victories was a 5-0 shutout of Cambridge-South Dorchester. He allowed one run in six innings in the state title game, which Glenelg won, 6-5, in eight innings.

Warnick also batted just under .300 for the Rams and rapped four home runs.

Weaver, who was named as one of five first-team outfielders, hit .428 (27 for 63) for the Rams with 15 RBI. He also scored 24 runs.

Bosley was one of five infielders named to the first team, as he finished among the area's leaders in six offensive categories. He batted .470 (32 for 68) with six doubles, three triples, five home runs, and 28 RBI. Like Weaver, he also scored 24 runs.

GLASS UNLIMITED CHAMPS, OAKVIEW MOTORS RUNNERS-UP - Glass Unlimited and Oakview Motors went up against each other for the 1998 Minor League baseball championship recently, and Glass Unlimited came out on top by a score of 15-4. The win capped a perfect 21-0 season for the champs, who are pictured above. In the first row, from left, are Robbie Kleper, Jackie Skowerla, Jay Ashby, Amber Joseph, Jason Sines, and Kyle Treesler. In the middle row are Albert Taylor, Jim Kleper, Alex Taylor, Doug Kleiner, David Treesler, and Angela Kahl. In the top row are manager Guy Joseph, and coaches Dave Treesler and Don Kleiner. Glass Unlimited was sponsored by Mike Ford. The Oakview Motors team, which defeated Rush to earn a berth in the championship game, is pictured below. From left in the first row is Misty Upole, Malia Upola, Shane Knotts, Tommy Moon, Mike Cooper, Brittany Scheffel, and Eric Chapman. In the second row are David Coffman, Michael Tasker, Anthony Crosco, Ryan Fitzwater, and Jeremy Gregory. Not shown are the team's manager, Brent Lewis, and coaches Tim Chapman and Chuck Fitzwater.

He also saw time on the mound, where he finished with a 4-2 personal mark and a 2.74 ERA. He struck out 32 and walked 16 in 35 and 2/3 innings pitched.

The Rams finished with an overall record of 16-5 and made their second trip to the state finals in the past three years. Only Fort Hill placed as many players as Southern on the first-team All-Area squad.

Northern's Matt Fritz helped the Huskies finish the '98 campaign with a 12-7 record and was the top vote-getter in the balloting for outfielders. His post-season honors included his being named a member of Team Maryland in the Sun Belt Classic played in Oklahoma. For Coach Carr and the Huskies, he batted .428 (24 for 56) with four doubles, two homers, a dozen stolen bases, and 18 runs scored.

He also pitched 31 and 2/3 innings to record a 3-1 record with one save and a 1.98 ERA, fourth best in the area. He had 32 strikeouts and allowed just nine earned runs.

Derek Everd of Southern, also a senior, finished the 1998 season with a .403 batting average (29 for 72) and scored 26 runs. Although named as a second-team infielder, he also performed well on the mound for the Rams, where he finished this season with a 3-2 mark. He pitched 26 innings, struck out 39, and allowed 17 walks.

Fort Hill's selections to the first team were pitcher Tommy Welsh, catcher Jim Barrett, and outfielder Brandon Jenkins. Also named to the team were: infielders Jake Ellifritz and Lucas Taylor of Keyser, pitcher Brent Metheny of Moorefield, infielder Josh Broadwater of Westmar, infielder Derek Brill of East Hardy, outfielder Ryan Raley of Beall, and outfielder Brian Ely of Frankfort.

Crellin's second double win was over Crellin Assembly of God, 18-3 and 17-4, with Hershman again getting both victories on the mound. Jay Bolyard and Billy Martin each had a homer for the winners.

Oak Park edged Bethel, 9-8, in game one behind the pitching of Don Welch, and Mike Ford pitched Bethel to an easy 24-10 win in the second game. Ryan Adams and Mike Fazenbaker each hit a home run for Bethel and Ron Gnegy hit one for Oak Park.

Garrett's American Legion Baseball Season Closes With Three Defeats

The book closed on this summer's American Legion baseball season as the Garrett team dropped its final trio of contests this past weekend. The defeats, 24-3 by Fort Cumberland, and 15-1 and 13-2 at the hands of Petersburg Post 78, left Garrett with an overall mark of 11-13, and a 4-2 record in the second half of Mountain District league play.

At Garrett Community College on Saturday, Fort Cumberland pounded out 18 hits off a quartet of Garrett pitchers, while Angelo Bascelli tossed an impressive complete-game five-hit win for the visitors. Three of Garrett's hits were for extra bases, including a two-run homer by Jason Weaver and doubles from Jordan Uphold and Keith Parks.

Brian Powell led Fort Cumberland's attack by belting a fourth inning grand slam and three singles to rack up five RBI for the day. Jeremy Bolyer added a pair of doubles and a single to drive in four runs, Bascelli accounted for five RBI himself with two singles and a double, and Jimmy Barrett doubled and singled. Mike Thomas and Clint Panuska added a pair of singles apiece.

Fort Cumberland took the Mountain District title as a result of the win and advances to the Maryland State Tournament, which begins July 31 at Joe Canon Stadium in Severna Park. The Allegany County team won the Mountain District title in the first half of the local Legion season as well.

Garrett fared no better the next day as Petersburg Post 78 swept a doubleheader with two mercy-shortened blowouts at GCC.

The opener, shut down at the close of five innings with Garrett down by 14 runs, featured the outstanding pitching work of Jay Bruckey. In giving up only three hits Bruckey struck out 10 batters, and he helped himself at the plate

Visiting Coaches Get A Kick Out Of Kids Getting A Kick Out Of Soccer

by Peggy Santamaria

The soccer teams of the Casselman Valley American Youth Soccer Organization (AYSO) bosted visiting coaches last week: Kieran Renihan, who comes from Keat, England, and Kevin Lagan, whose home is near Belfast, Ireland.

Both men are university students pursuing sports curricula and they were in the United States as part of a national soccer camp program sponsored by Major League Soccer Camps. The experience was a "first" for both the Cassehnan Valley league and for Kevin and Kieran.

Hired by Major League Soccer Camps, scores of coaches fly to the U.S. each summer to teach American kids the techniques that can lead to superior skills on the soccer field. "We each have a six-week contract," Kieran explained. During that time they will coach at different week-long camps throughout the mid-Atlantic region. "We didn't know we were coming to Casselman Valley until after we arrived in the United States. It was the luck of the draw," Kevin commented.

The two had landed, along with about 70 other coaches, Saturday in New York at La Guardia Airport. The following day they rented a car and began the long drive on unfamiliar interstates and into Western Maryland. They arrived in Grantsville Sunday evening.

Monday morning, having had little or no time to recuperate from the trans-Atlantic trip, Kieran and Kevin walked out onto a soccer field in Springs, Pa., to meet their team — 16 kids ages 7 to 12. That evening, 5:30 p.m. Garrett County time and 11:30 p.m. in their homelands, Kevin and Kieran met, registered, and coached a group of 30 or more of the older student-players, ranging in age from 12 to 17. There had been no time for the man to nurse a case of jet-lag, but enthusiasm for their mission seemed sufficient to revitalize their spirits in the face of travel fatigue.

Both coaches said they enjoy working with young players and truly enjoy the sport of soccer itself. "We want to see the young kids getting interested in soccer and staying interested. It is a good way to stay fit and healthy," Kieran said, and Kevin nodded his agreement.

The two coaches said they have had previous experience working with youngsters. "I've worked with young people quite a lot. My mother has a youth camp," explained Kevin.

The Casselman Valley team members were attentive to the visiting coaches. Both visiting coaches spoke of respect shown by players to coaches and coaches to players. "They listened to what we told them to do and they did it with reasonable conviction," Kevin commented.

As the soccer players listened to Kieran and Kevin, they were acquiring new skills. "It is gratifying to see the kids learning. It's most gratifying to see that they are listening and using what they are learning," Kevin said.

While both coaches were well-prepared to take the field and work with the soccer players, they were not quite as prepared for the administrative side of the job. "There is a lot of paperwork involved," Kieran noted.

As the week with the Casselman Valley league players was drawing to an end for Kevin Lagan and Kieran Renihan, they spoke of their warm feelings for what they described as a very positive experience.

Kieran spoke of the families that they had stayed with and the people who had opened their homes to these visiting coaches. "Everybody has been so nice. I love it here and don't want to leave," he stated. He spoke of possibly returning to take a year of study in Western Maryland among his new-found friends.

Kevin echoed the sentiments of his fellow traveler. "It has been great. People have been so nice, warm, and laid-back. We've had a positive response from everyone," he said. He spoke also of regret at leaving and hopes of returning. "I'd like to bring my family back with me sometime."

Both men referred to some souvenirs that remained to be tracked down including a New York Yankees baseball cap and pieces of baseball equipment. "Can you write something in the newspaper for me? The article will get home before I will. It's a message to my little sister. Could you write 'Ciara, your baseball "stuff" is on the way,'?" Kevin asked.

The two visitors had their next "port-of-call" lined up. Both men were headed for Harrisburg, Pa., to coach young players. Kevin Lagan and Kieran Renihan would be leaving behind young soccer players who were more skilled in their sport. They would be taking home memories of new places and new friends along with their souvenirs.

KEEPING FIT, HAVING FUN, MAKING FRIENDS - The American Youth Soccer Organization camp, held last week, gave the players and coaches an opportunity for new experiences. For the first time visiting coaches working for Major League Soccer Camps instructed the AYSO Casselman Valley League players. University students Kevin Lagan from Belfast, Ireland, and Kieran Renihan from Kent, England, made their first visit to the U.S. to teach soccer techniques. In the photo at left, two of the players get a little practice while waiting for the instruction to begin. In the photo above, left to right, Kevin, Kieran, and local team coach Larry Bruch go over the registration sheets. Below, paper work, behind finished, Kieran takes the field to work with the young soccer players.

Bobcat Soccer Camp Invites Area Coaches

Interested coaches and team managers are invited to watch Jason Kilby, Frostburg State University assistant and pro soccer player, during his special guest clinics at Bobcat Soccer Camp, Tuesday, July 28, at FSU.

Kilby, currently playing professionally for the Eastern Shore Sharks of the USISL's Mid-Atlantic Division, will be teaching three age-appropriate sessions during the day. Area youth coaches are invited to attend and observe the sessions free of charge. In the morning, Kilby will be coaching the 6-9 year olds on soccer fundamentals, stressing technical development in enjoyable, fast-moving activities that encourage independent practice.

In his afternoon sessions, from 1 to 2 p.m., he will be introducing campers age 13 and up to advanced technical skills and transition development, and from 3 to 4 p.m., 10-12 year olds will be working on solving tactical problems. No pre-registration is necessary to observe these clinics.

Registration for the Bobcat Soccer Camp is still open for the July 27-31 session. Persons may call the Camp Bobcat office at 301-687-7014 or 301-687-4462 for more information.

Oakland Oaks Still Atop Pen-Mar League As Playoffs Draw Near

The Oakland Oaks still hold first place in the Pen-Mar League as the regular season enters its final week, but as Oaks coach Terry Helbig commented, "Anything can happen."

Two rivals, Fairmont and Bridgeport, still have a chance at unseating the league leaders to take the crown. The Oaks' final contest of the season is a road trip to Phillipi's Alderson-Broaddus College for a final 2 p.m. Sunday doubleheader showdown with third-place Bridgeport. Oakland is currently 19-7 after winning five and losing one over the past week, Fairmont is 14-8, and Bridgeport follows at 15-9.

The week got off to a big start for the Oakland nine as they vanquished Hyndman in four straight games.

Second baseman Ernie Galusky led the way by going 10 for 13 at the plate for an outstanding .769 average against Hyndman. As a result of the fine performance, Galusky earned honors as co-player of the week for the league. His totals for the weekend also included eight RBI, two doubles, a triple, two homers, and 10 runs scored. The Masontown, W.Va., native will enter his senior year at Davis and Elkins College this fall, where he is a standout for coach Lawrence Nesselrodt. Galusky cut his baseball teeth at Preston High School.

The first doubleheader against Hyndman was a 7-4, 4-3 Oakland sweep at Garrett Community College on a perfect Saturday for baseball. Galusky got off to a hot start in the first game by going 3-for-4 with a pair of homers and a triple to account for four RBI. Aaron Taylor added a pair of singles and an RBI, and Alan Sebold contributed an RBI single. Pitcher Howie Lewis took the win, allowing eight hits and no earned runs.

Galusky scored the game-winner in the nightcap on a fielder's choice in the bottom of the eighth inning. He had alighted on first on a fielder's choice, scampered to third on a double by Sebold, then came home as Jeremy Fitzwater was at the plate.

On the game, Sebold tallied a single along with his double, Fitzwater accounted for two RBI in punching a pair of singles, and Ryan Folk and Chris Peters each added RBI singles. Hyndman's Dave Hostetler whacked an RBI double and Kyle Martz and Jared Bennett collected RBI singles. Oakland's Kent Taylor whiffed seven Hyndman batters on his way to a complete-game victory.

Sunday's twinbill matchup at Hyndman resulted in 8-2, 13-8 victories for the Oaks.

Justin Foutz hurled the opener and struck out nine batters on his way to a complete-game win. He was helped by a three-run homer in the third that put the Oaks up 4-2. Galusky belted a double and two singles, Folk contributed a double and single, and Sebold collected a pair of singles. Scott Cameron took the loss for Hyndman.

Oakland was on top 7-5 in the fourth inning of the nightcap when Fitzwater took the mound in the fourth inning in relief of starter Galusky and proceeded to strike out seven batters in just over three innings.

Galusky continued to pace Oakland's offense by whacking a double and three singles, and Fitzwater doubled and singled twice. Rich Stiffey belted a three-run homer for the hosts in the leadoff inning, and Rod Davis duplicated that shot in the fourth inning. Todd Riggleman took the loss.

Last night's home doubleheader with Cumberland resulted in a 6-3 win for the Oaks in the opener, followed by a 11-2 loss in the nightcap.

In the first game Fitzwater blasted a two-run homer in the first inning, and Mark Elliott cracked a solo shot in the fifth. Jimmy Pampepinto whacked a pair of doubles, and Galusky produced two singles and an RBI. Pitcher Matt Fritz took the win, and Bosley came on the mound in the final two innings for the closer. Cumberland's Pat Pennel took the loss, in spite of three doubles by Aaron Lewis and a single and a double by Dave Deter.

Cumberland was paced by a balanced offense in the nightcap, and a five-hitter pitching performance by Jeff Barclay. Rick Swanger, a recent GCC graduate, collected two RBI and cracked a double for the victors, Myrle Grose belted a three-run homer in the third inning and later added a single, Seth Whitacre collected three hits, and Tye Miller added a pair of hits.

Elliott cracked a two-run single to account for Oakland's run production, and Sebold tallied two singles.

Following the conclusion of the regular season this week, the Pen-Mar League playoffs will get under way the weekend of August 1 and 2 and will continue the following weekend. Match-ups and locations will be determined by the final standings for the season.

Season Closes

as well by swatting a two-run homer and a double and a single.

Lucas Taylor punched out five singles for the victors to amass three RBI, and Jake Ellifritz drove in three runs on a homer, a double, and a single.

Five home runs left the park during the nightcap, all but one off the bats of Petersburg players. John Ours, Jeremy Harper, and Brent Metheny hit solo homers for Petersburg, and Ellifritz added a two-run shot in the sixth inning. Bosley belted a round-tripper in the bottom of the inning, but it went for naught as the game was stopped at the inning's close with the visitors up by 11 runs.

The Legion team, composed of some of the top players from Northern and Southern high schools, was coached by Phil Carr and Jim Bosley. Looking back on the season, Coach Bosley commented, "Our kids benefited tremendously from the competition they faced throughout the season. You can't tell from the won-lost record, but our guys held their own against what were basically a series of all-star teams; for instance, Petersburg's team drew on players from nine different high schools.

"For the most part our players held their own, and learned a lot in the process," said Bosley.

Clem Teets (1913-1974), local businessman and philanthropist, was one of the central figures in the formation and beginnings of Alpine Lake. He was an original member of Mountaintop Vacationland and helped with negotiations to sell Mountaintop Vacationland to J.W. Ruby of Ruby Enterprises Inc. in the late sixties. J.W. Ruby and his wife Hazel then developed the property into Alpine Lake Resort and Conference Center.

Teets, born and reared in nearby Cranesville, held firm to the belief that education was the key to success. A former school teacher himself, he owned and operated the Clem Teets Oil Company along with his wife Ruth, located in Terra Alta. They also owned the Bridgeport Stockyard for many years.

The Teetses are well known throughout the local area for their contributions to the community, according to Lonigro. Antiques, a mutual hobby to them both, became a big part of their lives and culminated in the opening of the Americana Museum in 1968, located on their farm in Terra Alta.

The proceeds raised by the tournament will provide scholarship money for a college-bound Terra Alta student.

Area Speedway Review

Interstate 79 Speedway

Nolan Dalton of Morgantown, WV, cruised to his first win of '98 at Interstate 79 Speedway on Friday night. Jimmy Bendishaw and Rick Strickler notched their fourth wins while Shawn Davis picked up number three and Mike Simpson number 2.

The late model feature was simply a race for second place as Nolan Dalton jumped out to an early lead and left the remainder of the field. "Rollin' Nolan," as his fans call him, was simply the class of the field. A good battle for second between Butch McGill, Frank Wilson, Robbie Scott, and Scott Hartley developed midway through the race. Hartley ran a very high line while the other three drivers hugged the bottom. Hartley made his groove work as he passed both Scott and Wilson. At the line, Dalton was followed by McGill, Hartley, Wilson, and Scott. Six through 10 were Doug Horton, Chad McDougal, Mark Myers, Tim Harsh and Rick Borrows. Heat wins went to Kevin Jones and Dalton.

The semi-late feature was a repeat of last week with Jerry Haseleu chasing Rick Strickler throughout the event. Haseleu again had to settle for second with Strickler victorious for the fourth time this season. Kenneth Gould was third followed by Chris Smith and Jon Messenger. Strickler and Haseleu also picked up the heats.

Jimmy Bendishaw bested the large field of pure stocks with his win over Doug Thompson, Chuck Bloom, Gary Tonkery, and Paul Watson. Troy Frazier, Bloom, and Jeff Kesling won the earlier heats.

Shawn Davis brought the "Gold Digger's" #29 modified home in first place as he held off the hard charges of the second and third place cars of Brent Trimble and Louie Krushansky. Tom Singleton and Charles Cochran rounded out the top five and were the heat winners.

The 4-cylinder drivers have a tough time beating two drivers each week– Dave Summers and Mike Simpson. They each won their respective heats and this week belonged to Simpson as he out-ran Sununers to the line. Haywad Baker, Sonny Crayton, and William Robinson completed the top five.

This week, July 24, will be Autograph and Picture Night when the fans get an opportunity to meet their favorite drivers. Coming on Friday, July 31, will be a $1,500 to win show for the late models. For information on any race shows at I-79 Speedway, call the office at 304-592-3200 or on race day call the track at 304-592-0916.

Cumberland Raceway

The Cumberland Raceway's 20-lap Price Budweiser Late Model feature was won by Todd Ritchey of Everett, Pa., Saturday night.

Ritchey put the Garrett's Racing Engines No. 88 in Victory Lane for his first win ever at the raceway.

Cumberland's Gary Kimmell drove the Biederlack Ford to his second win in the Semi-late feature.

The rained out Jr. Saville Memorial Race for Potomac Video Pure Stocks was won by Ralph King, his fourth win this year. Fox's Pizza Den of Keyser, W.Va., gave King $100 bonus. The regular 12-lap feature for Pure Stocks was won by Rodney Youmans in the New England Truss and Joist No. 93. This was Youmans first win this year at Cumberland.

In the Jr. Saville Memorial Race for Pure Stocks and the regular Pure Stock feature, Greg Fetters, who won the first race and finished sixth in the second, did not pass the inspection line and was disqualified from both races.

In the second Potomac Video Pure Stock race, King had his fifth feature win, but was protested. King refused to have his engine checked and was disqualified from the second feature only.

There were 19 Late Models, 17 Semi-lates, and 22 Pure Stocks in the pits.

The 20-lap Late Model feature went flag-to-flag under the green with Chris Harr leading for 15 laps. On lap 16, Harr's car started losing power. Ritchey, who had been running second, assumed the lead and got the win. Kevin Malick was second, for his best finish ever. Malick was followed by points leader Scott Rhodes, Bo Feathers, Brent Smith, Doug Timmons, Eric Zembower, Wayne Johnson, Chris Harr and Jeff Miller. Heats went to Harr and Feathers.

In the 18-lap Semi-late feature, with only one caution, Kimmell led flag-to-flag for the win. Kimmell had to hold off Wade Peer all 18 laps. Peer was second, followed by Brian Lowery, Kelly Bechtel, points leader Bob Gordon, Allen Buckley, Wally Mowry, Barry Willison, Lester Beal, and Lewis Hale. Heats went to Jim Frost and Kimmell.

The rained out Jr. Saville Memorial started on lap 3. Two laps were in at the time of the rainout. At the start, Kevin Weyand got sideways in turn 2 and was T-boned in the drivers door. Weyandt was shaken up but refused to go to the hospital. On the restart, Jason Black, the early leader, led until lap 5, when Greg Fetters took the lead and held off King and Greg Smith for the win.

Later, after all the races, Fetters was found to be illegal, giving the win to King. King was followed by Greg Smith, Tom Humberson, Youmans, Bill VanMeter, Bill Goss, Steve Wilson, Jason Black, Sean Vinglas, and Matt Sponaugle.

In the regular 12-lap feature for Pure Stocks, Smith led for three laps, then VanMeter led until lap 6, when King became the leader and led to the checkered, only to have the win taken away because he refused to have his engine checked. This gave the win to the second-place finisher Youmans, who was followed by Smith, Humberson, Goss, Stanley Price, Jim Snyder, Charlie Staggs, Black, John Bailey, and Vinglas. Heats went to Smith and King.

The Tri State Racing Photos Hard Charger of the week was Tom Humberson.

The next race will be during the Allegany County Fair on Sunday, July 26. This is a points race for all three classes, and the last points race for the Late Models.

The grandstand admission of $6 includes all fair rides. The fair gates open at 2 p.m. Pit gates open at 4:30 p.m. Pit admission is an additional $6.

SECOND CLEAN SWEEP THIS SEASON - One of the most successful racing teams in the tri-state area this season is the father and son team from Automotive Machine in Oakland: Doug and Scott Bittinger. The team's #29 Gold Digger E-mod, or UMP modified, dirt track machine is driven by Shawn Davis of Fairmont, W.Va. With Tom Gregory, also from the Fairmont area, helping the Bittingers in the pits, the #29 has taken the checkered flag 12 times this season. This past weekend they made their second clean sweep of the year by winning at Interstate 79 Speedway near Fairmont on Friday night; at Thunder Valley in Central City, Pa., on Saturday night; and the inaugural event at Roaring Ridge Raceway Park in Markleysburg, Pa., on Sunday. The team experienced the same degree of success two or three weeks ago by winning a double feature on Friday night at Interstate 79 Speedway; Saturday night at Elkins, W.Va.; and a special E-mod race that Wednesday night at Windber, Pa. Doug Bittinger said he began racing using the Gold Digger name for his car in 1989, with LeRoy Vetter driving. After laying off for a while, he began racing a 4-cylinder Gold Digger when his son Scott became interested. That 4-cylinder was driven by Mike Lewis and saw 23 wins before being retired. The team began racing the Gold Digger as an E-mod 4 years ago, and this season's winning #29 is a brand new car they built last winter. Right now the team is leading the points race at I-79 and plans to continue racing the E-mod on into the future. Racing results from the surrounding dirt tracks for stock cars can be seen weekly under the heading "Eat Dirt" in The Republican.

Sailboat Racing

By Ted Rissell

Saturday, July 18, was an ideal sailing day, with a bright sun and a northwest wind at 5 to 10 mph. Gentle for some, but a very pleasant sailing day for all. The nice weather brought out 33 boats in three fleets. The race committee set a course from Turkey Point north to Paradise Point, back to Holy Cross, over to Turkey Neck Point, south to the Turkey Neck Yacht Club, and a windward finish to the northwest. Unfortunately the race was delayed for 10 minutes, since the assigned safety patrol did not show. However, after several radio messages, Alan and Linn Silverman volunteered to help.

The patrol was almost needed, as they stood by when one skipper fell overboard. Fortunately, the crew was able to get the boat under control, and the skipper was able to climb back in the boat with the help of a rear boarding ladder, a very useful option on Flying Scot sailboats.

Most of the race was visible from the deck of the Turkey Neck club. One sailor, confined to a wheel chair in recent years, was able to view the event with much pleasure.

In the Flying Scot A Fleet, Allison Felix with her dad, Dick Gregory, was first, followed by Jane Mahan with husband Dave as crew. In third was Frank Meehan, with wife Gerri.

In the Laser Fleet, Keith Spinnenweber continued his domination of that fleet with yet another first. Meredith Jacob was second, and Gordie Clefton third.

In the Laser B Fleet, Eric Silverman was first. Kathy Milks, who only started sailing a few years ago, was second in the Laser B Fleet. It was her best finish ever. She was very pleased.

In the Flying Scot B Fleet, Ken Gibbs and Susan Meehan were first, followed by Bob Schaefer and his two young children. It was good to see Bob on the race course again, as he has not raced for several years. Twelve-year-old Meredith Dodd with her grandmother, Barbara Meredith, beat the Schubert family in a photo finish for third.

The second race on Saturday saw similar conditions, a similar course, and similar results. In the Flying Scot A Fleet, Allison and her dad were again first, and the Mahans were again second, this time with Dave as crew and Jane as skipper. Doug MacMillian with wife Audrey beat the Meehans by a few feet in a very close finish.

Keith Spinnenweber again won in Lasers, followed by Tom Johnson, second, and Eric Silverman, third, and also first in the Laser B Fleet. Fourteen-year-old Eric had just returned from several weeks at a sailing camp.

We noticed Tom Johnson, who has sailed on Deep Creek Lake since the 1960s, looking over his shoulder as he managed to beat young Eric by only about 50 feet.

In the B Fleet, the Schubert family, Gary, Alice, and young Ryan, were first, followed by Tom and Karen Myers, with John Meredith as coach. John, who won most of the Flying Scot races in recent years, is spending his weekends this year helping other sailors improve their skills. Not only did he advise Tom and Karen, he lent them newer sails. Flying Scot 5117 was third, this time Susan Meehan was skipper, with Ken Gibbs as crew.

On Sunday the wind had shifted to west with some southwest. The velocity was about the same, but there were more "holes." Holes are spots on the lake where the wind has died for a few moments. To those in a hole, it can seem like hours as the other boats sail by a few hundred feet away. But such is the nature of lake sailing, and it is especially true on Deep Creek Lake.

In the Flying Scot A Fleet, Tom Johnson gave up his Laser and took a borrowed Scot with Ellen Williams as crew to first

Local Kart Racers Display Skills On Several Tracks

Cody Hardesty won his third feature go-kart race of the season on the one-fifth mile track at the Outlaw Speedway in Pennsylvania this past Friday evening. Two days later the young Oakland racer took his machine to West Virginia's Fairmont Speedway to take the checkered flag in a feature race there.

On the Outlaw oval Hardesty won his first heat race and came from back of the pack to take second place in his second heat race. He started from the third position in the alcohol main event, and almost immediately moved to second on the opening lap. Biding his time on the leader's heels until lap 18, Hardesty slipped the gap under the leader with two laps remaining and held on to take the victory.

Another other local racer competing on the Outlaw track over the weekend, Jeremy Murphy, ran in two classes, finishing third in both alcohol heat races, and ran third in the feature until the final stretch when he made his move as part of a pack coming off turn four. He finished fourth at the checkered flag, only a foot off the winner.

Murphy took third in the gas and oil class's first heat and went on to win the second heat. He held the lead in the feature race until he was passed during lap number twelve, and ran second until the last corner when he dove under the leader only to finish runnerup by a few feet.

Jason Miller won his first heat in the gas and oil class, then finished second to Murphy in his second heat. Miller retired to the pit when he threw a chain during the feature race's first lap.

Mike Sloan ran in the alcohol class, and finished fifth in both heat races and went on to an eighth place finish in the main event.

Bryson Sanders ran at or near the front of the pack throughout the evening Saturday at the Masontown Speedway in Preston County, W.Va. The 6-year-old phenom finished second in both of his heat races and led his feature race until he was passed late in the running and finished in the runner-up slot.

On Sunday Hardesty won both heats and the feature in the stock medium class at Fairmont.

Clyde E. Hetrick Enters Pursuit For Commissioner

Clyde E. Hetrick, Grantsville, has entered the race for a seat on the Garrett County Board of Commissioners. He will run for the District II spot, currently held by Gary Fratz. Hetrick's candidacy statement is as follows:

"I, Clyde E. Hetrick, announce my candidacy for Garrett County Commissioner. I am a native of Garrett County, born and raised. True, I left while working on the oil and gas rigs. I worked there until an injury caused a disability that was thought to be permanent. I went to Garrett Community College and received two degrees, one in social and behavioral sciences and one in secondary education, but due to unforeseen circumstances, I was not able to complete my education. I now am employed at Garrett Community College in the Multimedia area.

"I am a Vietnam era veteran and belong to American Legion Post 214 at Grantsville. Four years ago I ran against John Braskey and lost by a two-to-one margin. I run again in hopes to be able to represent you, the people of Garrett County. I know there is a lot of unrest as to what our present officials are and, in some cases, are not doing. You people think you have no say as to county government; if you get out and vote for the right candidates then maybe, just maybe, you will notice a change.

"I do not think we need a four-lane limited access highway through our county. After all, 79 is a north-south route within a half-hour drive with access given by way of 68. As to the industry a four-lane 219 would give, just take a look at Cumberland. How did 68 help? It provided an easier route for the Kelly Springfield plant to move elsewhere, as well as the Celanese plant to move, and within the next few years, Kelly Springfield offices will probably also leave. Yet at the same time, proponents of the Super Highway are telling us this will help Garrett County. In my opinion, the only thing that will be achieved is air pollution from exhaust, noise pollution, and an eyesore straight through our county.

"People who visit our county do so to get away from the pollution, noise, and rush in their areas. People retire to this area because of its beauty and the relaxed atmosphere we now enjoy. Just think and imagine what a four-lane highway would do to Garrett County. Do you want or need this?

"If elected to office, I promise you will be heard. Let us get the government back. Remember the United States of America was founded as a government for the people, of the people, and by the people. You all know someone who has fought and died in the name of freedom and the right to govern him- or herself. We also know of people who went to war for this reason and came back different people than we knew. How does this affect county government, you may ask? Local and county government is where you have your most power and where you have the most say because you are supposed to be represented and heard, but not so in most cases. When asked about why the people were not notified as to some things going on in the county, our elected officials said the people didn't care. How, may I ask, are we to care if, 1. We don't know; and 2. We would have to miss work and quite possibly lose our jobs to attend a meeting that takes place while we are working.

"I feel that a meeting should be held at a time and place we could all attend and then go as informed citizens and know we could voice our opinions and be heard. In this way, we, the people of Garrett County, would have our government back. If this is the type of government you want, remember to vote for me in September and again in November, and I promise to try my utmost to give it to you.

"You will not see too much literature from me, as I campaign on a very limited budget and do most of my work myself. I do not want any donations because I would feel I owed someone or some business. In this way, I think I can honestly say I owe the business nothing except good, honest representation, just the same as you, the people.

"C. Speicher asked what kind of candidate I was. Now I think he knows—one who will not be bought and sold like a beef at the sale barn on Saturday and Monday. I am not for sale at any price or at any time."

SHERIFF'S OFFICE WORKING TO STOP THE VIOLENCE — Garrett County Sheriff Dick Sanders recently announced that for the second consecutive year, his office's Domestic Violence Awareness Program has been approved for funding through the Governor's Office of Crime Control and Prevention. The pilot program has received favorable reviews locally and from throughout the state. A law enforcement commendation plaque has been awarded in recognition of the local program by the attorney general's and lieutenant governor's Family Violence Council. Brenda Arnold, pictured with the sheriff at left and Lieutenant Larry Gregg at right, has been the first female to work in the sheriff's office as an investigator. She works to help victims of violence, boost pre-prosecution efforts, and keep the public aware of the domestic violence issue. Gregg has worked to prepare grant proposals for the program and to assist Arnold in her endeavors. The main objectives of the program are to provide safety and services to victims of domestic violence and/or sexual assault, and to stop the cycle of violence. For more information about the program, persons are welcome to call the sheriff's office at 301-334-1911.

REUNIONS

The Grantsville High School Class of 1948 recently held its 50 year reunion at Cornish Manor in Oakland. Thirteen of the original 37 class members were present for the dinner and program. A memorial tribute was given for the eight deceased members: Sherman Beachy, Donald Beitzel, Wayne Folk, Walter Michael, Buford Resh, Robert Smith, David Stahl, and Paul Wagner. Class members attending the reunion were Mary Miller Aronhalt, Cumberland; Helen Stanton Dice, Grantsville; Samuel "Tom" Downey, Swanton; Betty Stahl Durst, Buchannan, W.Va.; Hollie Beitzel Fazenbaker, Westernport; Jane Bender Garletts, Friendsville; Donna Reckner Glotfelty, Accident; Loretta "Jackie" Yoder Nealis, Oakland; Mary Jane Robeson Parr, Lonaconing; Harry Pope, Springs, Pa.; James Pope, Gaithersburg; Joseph Yommer, Olney; and Kathleen Beachy Yommer, Grantsville.

The descendants of the late Daniel and Annie Beitzel family held their annual family reunion on Saturday at the Bittinger fire hall. On Sunday morning most of the family attended a church service at the old Cherry Glade Church on Foxtown Road. The Rev. Mayard Beitzel, Allensville, Pa., was the guest speaker.

Sunday afternoon following church services a picnic was held at the home of Leora Yaste. Attending were Mr. and Mrs. Mayard Beitzel, Allensville; Mr. and Mrs. Clelland Beitzel and family, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Yoder and family, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Beitzel and family, Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Beitzel and family, Mr. and Mrs. Darrel Yoder and family, Mr. and Mrs. Deaais Yoder and family, Mrs. Tina Yoder, Teresa Yoder, Tim Foster, Jason and Karen Maust, Randal Beitzel, Lillian Bender, Darrin Yoder, Sherry Beitzel, and Hilda and Edna Beitzel.

The Buckles/Buckels are coming! Of course, in Bittinger that is not surprising, as we already have plenty of them around. Last weekend about 80 descendants of Joseph Buckle and his wife, Alice Bittinger, got together at the Bittinger fire hall on Sunday afternoon. One of their sons, Charles Buckle, had a good representation as 25 descendants and one guest were in attendance. Amanda Buckle Durr was well represented, as some of her dependents were in attendance from up-state New York. One of Amanda's sons, Herbert Durr, had the invocation and some of his family entertained with music. Many of the descendants look like part of the past, which means most show our Indian blood, something we are very proud of. In the 1800s a couple from Bittinger, in fact, with the name of Bittinger, went out to Ohio during the Indian War and got into a conflict with a goup of Indians. During the fight an Indian husband and wife were killed and left a little baby. The couple adopted him and brought him back to Bittinger and raised him as their own child. He later married his adopted cousin. That couple had a daughter, Alice. She later married Joseph Buckle and many of their descendants show the Indian heritage of black hair, dark brown eyes, brown skin, and a distinct nose and cheekbones from Alice and her grandparents.

Maybe even the love of outdoors, roaming in the woods, and hunting are also common traits. Myself, I feel a strong connection to my Indian ancestors, enough so that I am always more on the side of Indians than the cowboys.

When I was very sick and in a coma, I had a dream about an Indian woman who did some Native American medicine on me to help me again breathe on my own. Maybe my great-great-grandmother was there with me to help me. But on the other hand, plenty of Buckles/Buckels look like the other side of the family, Swiss-German, with blonde hair and blue eyes.

I do know one thing, this half-Buckle descendent more than welcomes the Native American Foundation that is to move in on Foxtown Road. After all, almost everyone in Bittinger is related, so we soon will get some new Indian cousins.

Saturday evening, the Charles Buckle family had a get-together and picnic at the home of Rodney and Marci Glotfelty. In attendance were Wayne and Wilma Buckle, Falls Church, Va., and their son Keith and wife Linda; Jack and Janet Buckle and son Bruce and Betty Buckle, Melissa and Gretchen Buckle, Williamsport, Pa.; Ruth DiPaolo; Barry Glotfelty, Frederick; Kevin and Carol Bass and family; Joan and Lloyd Sussman and family; Donald Buckle, Madison, Va.; and Dale Glotfelty. Peter and Darryl Buckle, Williamsport, were unable to attend as they just adopted a second son and they thought maybe that all the excitement of meeting all those new cousins might be a little too much for him.

Uncle Donald disappointed everyone by only bringing three homegrown tomatoes. Usually, he brings a big basket for all his relatives up north. But even his great garden in Virginia struggled with too much rain. But those three were good! The barbecue featured Darryl Glotfelty's 4-H project broiler chickens. He won a blue ribbon at the 4-H Broiler Show, and they more than lived up to that blue ribbon.

BASKETBALL CAMP

Brent Housley and Greg Whittemore attended St. John's at Prospect Hall Basketball Camp in Frederick last week. They spent the week at Brent's Aunt Ann and Uncle Pat's home. They also attended a Frederick Keys Minor League game, and explored other kid-friendly places in Frederick.

UPCOMING YARD SALE

Emmanuel Lutheran Church Youth Group will hold a yard sale on Bittinger Picnic Day, August 17 in the church's parking lot, to benefit the Church's Building Fund. Anyone having any good used or new items for the sale should contact Rob Vagnetti, 301-387-2527, or Sally Poholsky at 301-245-4565, or drop off items at the church. All donations will be greatly appreciated.

THIS AND THAT

Sally, Lenny, and Torrey Poholsky visited his parents, Andrew and Mary Selka of Kittaning, Pa., over the weekend to celebrate Lenny's mother's 88th birthday.

Leon Beitzel was a guest of some of his family at an Oakland restaurant to help celebrate his 50th birthday on Monday. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Mayard Beitzel, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Yoder, Hilda Beitzel, Leora Yaste, Mary Ellen Beitzel, and of course, Leon.

Visitors for several days of Leora Yaste were Mr. and Mrs. Mayard Beitzel, Allensville, and Mrs. Fannie Peachey from Irwin, Ohio.

Michelle Geis has returned home from her exploration to the Bayou. The only concern her family now has is that she keeps requesting jambalaya crawfish pie, Oh, me, Oh my, Oh. They don't have a recipe. Please send one.

A few days ago I called a neighbor to find out if she had any news. I asked her "What's new?" Marie Brenneman replied "Well, the sun is shining." But unfortunately, today it again looks like rain and has threatened our big field of new cut hay.

The Sussman family's participation was "on and off" at the Buckle family festivities over the weekend. We attended the reunions, but then off to many birthday parties for the girls. On Saturday afternoon they went to a roller skating party for Meghan Voelkel at Cumberland. There, Claire and Meredith spent Saturday night with the Voelkels. They returned home on Sunday morning to attend the reunion, but then Meredith had to rush off to another birthday party for Ashleigh Friend at Grantsville.

She was delivered home following the party by one of Claire and Caitlin's favorite teachers from Accident, Miss Holliday. Meredith is anxiously looking forward to having Miss Holliday for a teacher soon.

Saturday visitors of Jim and Donna Glotfelty were Gene and Theda Baker, Mathias, W.Va., and Mary Jane Park of Sky Valley. Theda and Mary Jane were both fellow students of Donna at Cathernaa's Business School in Cumberland.

Family Violence Coalition Seeks Community Rep.

Lisa Thayer Welch, chair of the Family Violence Coalition, recently announced that a vacancy exists for a community representative in the coalition. The by-laws of the organization allow three community members to serve as part of the group.

The Family Violence Coalition consists of the heads of agencies that work with or are in contact with victims of family violence on a regular basis. These include law enforcement, health and social service agencies, and the board of education. Two representatives of the faith community also serve.

"The purpose of the coalition is to uncover family violence, hold the abusers accountable, treat the victims, and prevent future acts of violence," Welch said. The coalition and member agencies have adopted a zero tolerance policy.

Teams organized within the coalition work to increase community awareness of the problems of family violence. Grant funding recently awarded will provide the group with a part-time coordinator, and computer hardware and software to assist with data collection.

Anyone interested in serving as part of the coalition may express interest aud any particular qualifications in a letter to Lisa Thayer Welch, c/o State's Attorney's Office, 203 S. 4th Street, Room 210, Oakland, MD 21550.

First United Corp. Announces Second Quarter Earnings

First United Corporation, Oakland, has announced growth in earnings for the second quarter of 1998. Income for the second quarter was $1.75 million, or $.28 per share, as compared to $1.70 million, or $.27 per share, experienced during the second quarter of 1997. Year-to-date 1998 income was $3.42 million versus $3.07 million for 1997, an increase of 11.40%.

"As in the first quarter of 1998, we continue to see efficiencies in our operations and increases in non-interest income," stated William B. Grant, chairman and chief executive officer. Grant went on to say that "our year-to-date efficiency ratio is 61.62%, as compared to 66.70% for the same time period last year. Our fee income from Business Manager, PrimeVest, and Trust Services has increased 8.41%, or $.08 million, compared to the same period in 1997. Although non-interest expense is only down slightly from the same period last year, the $.033 million decrease shows that the programs which First United has implemented to control the growth of these expenses is working. A key performance ratio, Return on Equity (ROE), which assesses the overall return to out shareholders, has been trending positively over the past few months. Year-to-date numbers show an ROE of 12.01% as compared to last year's ratio of 10.82% for the same time period. Our net interest margin is at 4.62%, which is slightly better than our budget projections and first quarter 1998 reported results."

First United exceeded projected loan growth during the second quarter with growth of $16.54 million to a total of $466.91 million. Year-to-date loan growth has been $25.52 million, representing a 5.78% increase over year end 1997. Deposits remained steady resulting in a second quarter total at $493.18 million.

During the second quarter, First United opened its second branch in Frederick, located at Ballenger Creek Plaza.

First United Corporation offers full-service banking through its banking subsidiary, First United National Bank & Trust. The bank operates a traditional network of offices through Garrett, Allegany, Washington, and Frederick counties in Maryland, as well as Mineral, Hardy, Hampshire, and Berkeley counties in West Virginia. As of June 30, 1998, the corporation posted assets of $595.47 million and had 6,222,011 shares outstanding.

Pig Roast Sold Out; Public Still Invited

The fund-raising pig roast and barn dance scheduled for Friday night at Bietschehof Farm in Grantsville, has no tickets left for the dinner, but the other events of the evening remain open to the public.

The dinner and music evening will benefit Heifer Project International, which supports and encourages agriculture in the United States and other nations. "It is an excellent organization because it doesn't just hand out money, it educates people so that they can take care of themselves," said Jean Durst, member of HPI and coordinator of the fund-raising event.

There are no more tickets available for the dinner, but people are welcome to come and join in the festivities that follow the meal. "There will be live music and square dancing. The petting zoo will also be open," Durst added. Those attending will have the opportunity to see videos on the work of HPI and get information on the organization, she said.

A contribution for HPI is requested for those attending the evening's events, which will begin at 8 p.m. Bietschehof is located on Hetrick Road, off Zehner Road, which is accessible for Route 40 west of Grantsville.

NASA Honoree

launched in 1992, experienced a suspected propulsion anomaly and was lost immediately prior to entry into Mars orbit in 1993.

He began supporting Lockheed Martin Astronautics in Denver in 1994 to build a new spacecraft from the Mars Observer spare hardware, resulting in the Mars Global Surveyor, which was launched in 1996 and is presently in an ever-shrinking elliptical orbit around Mars. Surveyor is currently providing spectacular photographic and altimeter data from Mars, and will ultimately map the entire planet in multiple spectra ouce a circular orbit is attained.

Sincell's specific expertise is in meticulous study of electronic hardware in an effort to verify that no failure of a single component will result in significant degradation or loss of the mission for which the equipment is intended. This involves extensive scrutiny and analysis of spacecraft command and control circuits, using a variety of techniques focused primarily on interfaces between redundant equipment modules in the design. These techniques assure that no single failure can compromise both "sides" of a redundant function, that failures in primary equipment are detectable by the ground or by flight software, and that the back-up equipment is always selectable in the event the primary side fails.

According to Glenn Cunningham, project manager of the Mars Global Surveyor for JPL, Sincell's efforts resulted in locating and fixing dozens of single-point failures, any one of which could have resulted in the loss of a multi-million dollar mission.

"Jeff's expertise was very critical in making sure that the faults that led to the demise of the Mars Observer were erased from the Global Surveyor," Cunningham said. "His work with extremely intricate and interfaced circuitry was absolutely critical to the mission, because he uncovered some very obscure problems that could have led to disaster. I can't overstate how important his role was in the project, aud I'm delighted that he was appropriately recognized by NASA with this award."

Cunningham, who is now the operations manager for the continued Mars Surveyor project, said the Surveyor is functioning almost flawlessly, "with absolutely no problems" related to Sincell's design/reliability work.

Sincell is currently working on another spacecraft, as he is supporting the integration, test, and launch of EOS-AMI, the first and largest of a planned series of Earth Observing System satellites being built by Lockheed Martin Missiles and Space m Valley Forge, Pa. EOS-AMI will enhance scientists' understanding of Earth's cloud cover, radiative and land surfece properties, and the interactions of atmospheric energy, carbon, and water. Sincell explained that its primary purpose is to measure climate variables to help improve models of the Earth's complex atmosphere and to aid in predicting and planning for the effects of human activity on the global environment.

"I was deeply moved by the personal recognition by NASA and JPL," Sincell said, "considering that I was just one of hundreds of people who contributed to the Surveyor mission. I think I speak for all of us in saying that the true prize is one the world's people can all share: the thrill of the successful operation of a complex machine that extends our eyesight hundreds of millions of miles to the surface of another world, and the advancement in our understanding of weather systems and geology the Surveyor data will offer.

"With the prosperity of our country, the astonishing progress in electronics and materials in the last half-century, and our freedom from global warfare, it is truly a great time to be alive."

Sincell can be reached via e-mail at jsincell @aol.com, while the Mars Global Surveyor website address is: mars.jpl.nasa.gov/mgs/index .html. The EOS-AMI satellite can be seen being built and tested at eos-am.gsfc.nasa.gov.

be an outstanding addition to the school system. He has tremendous experience with and knowledge of the computer system we will be using," he said.

Dr. Teets noted that he is pleased with Fiuk's decision to accept the Garrett County position. "He's an excellent man and he'll do an excellent job," he stated.

Fink explained that he had planned to retire from the Preston County school system this fall. "I had actually made the announcement to that effect in the spring," he said. But the offer from the Garrett County board appealed to him. "This is just a great opportunity for me," he added.

By September 1 Fink plans on being settled in his new Garrett County office. "I want to spend some time in Garrett County in August and attend meetings to learn more about the system," he explained.

Fink said he feels comfortable with the prospect of working in Garrett County because he has lived in proximity to it for many years. "This is something I want to do. I am really looking forward to it," he concluded.

IT'S BEEN A BUSY SUMMER for Oakland-based physical therapist Tarry Butner, and it's not over yet. After completing seven years of education, study, and testing, he has earned credentialing from the McKenzie Institute, joining a select group of less than 500 practitioners nationwide. This news came at about the same time he received word that a lower-back treatment table that he invented and has worked on for five years to perfect has been awarded a U.S. patent. Finally, the therapist and inventor is entering into a partnership with two other PTs to open Garrett Orthopedic Physical Therapy & Rehabilitation, which will begin treating patients the first week of August.

PT Specialist, Inventor Butner Opens New Office

Tarry Butner, an Oakland-based physical therapist, recently completed the credentialing process offered by the McKenzie Institute, a postgraduate center for the study of mechanical diagnosis and therapy of the spine. He is now one of less than 500 practitioners in the nation who have earned credentialing in the McKenzie technique, and is the only one so credentialed in the Garrett County region.

The McKenzie Institute is an international organization begun by Robin McKenzie, a New Zealand physical therapist who developed a diagnostic and treatment approach that is reportedly proving to be more effective than other methods in scientific studies.

McKenzie began his approach by a chance discovery 40 years ago, and through years of clinical observation and research he developed a systematic approach to discovering the nature of the injury which results in back or neck pain. Based on this work, McKenzie organized a progressive treatment approach which also educates and empowers patients to take on an active role in their own treatment.

Butner, an Accident resident, is also a recognized inventor, and was recently awarded a U.S. patent on a patient-controlled low-back treatment table. This table, five years in development, simultaneously performs three spinal treatment techniques commonly used by physical therapists: traction; extension, which is the bending of the spin in a backwards motion; and mobilization, which is the application of pressure to the low back.

Butner has treated more than a dozen people with his table and states that the results have far exceeded his expectations. He is currently building 10 such tables and hopes to have them available for commercial use within six months. Butner also said that he has several other physical therapy inventions which enable patients to more effectively manage their own conditions.

For nearly five years Butner worked at Garrett County Memorial Hospital, and he received the hospital's Employee of the Month award in December 1996. He recently entered into partnership with fellow physical therapists Mike Voelkel, PT, NTCMB, and Teresa Reynolds, PT, MBA, to open Garrett Orthopedic Physical Therapy & Rehabilitation, in Brodak Plaza next to the Dollar General store. This partnership will enable the trio to offer over 40 years of combined experience in the treatment of a wide variety of orthopedic and neurological ailments and conditions; in addition, speech and occupational therapy services will be available as well.

Garrett Orthopedic Physical Therapy & Rehabilitation will open for scheduling on Monday, July 27. Patient treatments will begin on Monday, August 3.

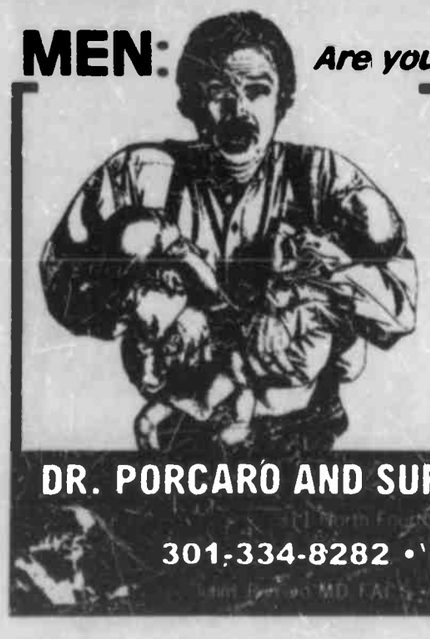
In Memory of
Rev. Harold Harman

It's been just a year ago that God reached down from Heaven and took you with Him during the night.



It was so hard for us to let you go, but we know God does things best in all His wisdom.

You left us all with such good memories of your faithfulness to God, your love for everyone, and caring, and the prayers you sent up above for everyone. These memories will carry us through this life until God decides we can be together again.

This year you would have been celebrating your 16th year as founder of the New Life Christian Church. That would have been an all day celebration.

THE MASK OF ZORRO

Rated PG-13 - Running time: 2:15

Okay. I admit it. I'm an Anthony Hopkins fan. Hopkins seems to elevate just about any picture he's in, from The Lion In Winter (1968) to The Elephant Man (1980) to The Silence of the Lambs (1991) to last year's Amistad. Though The Mask Of Zorro is definitely not his best work, he lends a credibility to even an overblown superhero flick like this. Without him, this would be an adequately exciting action film. But his presence makes it more important than that. The man is an actor.

If Hopkins makes the story important, Antonio Banderas and Catherine Zeta-Jones make it sexy. Their mutual attraction is thick from the start, and the fact that they're both so easy on the eyes doesn't hurt. The mood is well captured by the beating sun and the recurring strains of "Malagueña." The heat, the dust, and the political tension of mid-19th Century California are intense. And that is thanks to director Martin Campbell.

As the film begins, Mexico (which includes the California territory) is poised to wrest itself free of Spain's political influence. The heartless Spanish governor, Don Rafael Montero (Stuart Wilson), has set a trap for the masked man who continually vexes the oppresive government. Just when Montero is about to execute three innocent peasants, Zorro (Hopkins) appears and saves them, to the cheers of the grateful populace. But he is soon captured and imprisoned, and his cherished baby daughter Elena stolen, to be reared by Montero. Zorro's real identity is Don Diego de la Vega, a landowner who betrayed his counterparts on behalf of the poverty-stricken people, and therefore is branded a traitor to his class.

After twenty years has passed with de la Vega in prison, he escapes and meets a petty criminal named Alejandro Murrieta (Banderas), whose brother has been killed by Montero's army commander, Captain Harrison Love (Matthew Letscher). Alejandro has sworn a vendetta to Captain Love, but lacks the control to carry it out. Desperate to find the now adult Elena (Zeta-Jones), de la Vega decides to teach Alejandro the ways of the masked avenger, and the two form a friendship.

Knowing Hopkins's age and the roles he has performed, it is rather amusing to see him in the opening scenes of this movie, wearing his cape and buckling his swash. I could not help being reminded of William Shatner, still trying to be sexy as Captain Kirk after all these years. The sideburns undoubtedly added to this similarity. But he is classy and venerable as the older Zorro, and Banderas provides an apt contrast, being young and impetuous, full of dash. There is humor ever-present in the script, written by Terry Rossio & Ted Elliott and John Eskow, and the action is overdone, as is appropriate for the style. Wilson and Letscher provide adequately two-dimensional villains, and Zeta-Jones, as expected, is a knockout.

The fact that most of the events in this film are unlikely if not impossible doesn't really matter. Even though one can't really leap onto the back of a horse from two stories above or fight off a dozen armed soldiers using nothing but a whip, Zorro is like Superman; he is not supposed to be realistic. So with that in mind, I found the film a lot of fun and full of energy. ★★★★

DAR DONATES TO SOS - The Youghiogheny Glades chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution met June 20 at the American Legion Home. Regent June Thomas conducted the business session, and chapter chaplain Wilda Sanders led the members in the ritual. Oakland mayor Asa McCain spoke to the group of the Save Oakland Station (SOS) project. The chapter presented the mayor with a check for $500 to be used to help with the restoration. In the photo above Mayor McCain accepts the donation from regent June Thomas, center, and program chairman Phyllis Trickett.

THERE'S SOMETHING ABOUT MARY

Rated R - Running time: 1:58

A truly offbeat (and sometimes off-color) comedy, There's Something About Mary is one of the funniest romances I have seen recently, and includes some real acting by Cameron Diaz in the title role. Directed by the Farrely Brothers, Bobby and Peter, who also produced Dumb & Dumber (1994) and Kingpin (1996), the film has a definite Mel Brooks influence, mixing sharp, witty satire with low comedy. Among the running gags is a pair of musicians who are regularly seen in the background warbling out hysterically badly written songs narrating the story, in various musical styles.

The plot begins in 1985, as Mary Jensen (Diaz) and Ted Strochmann (Ben Stiller) are about to graduate from high school in Rhode Island. Though Ted is a goofy-looking nerd with braces and Mary is the most fabulous babe in school, she likes him because he takes up for her mentally challenged brother Warren (W. Earl Brown), in a fight with a bully. Ted gets a fat lip, but Mary asks him out to the prom. But the plans miscarry after a painful, zipper-related accident.

Cut to thirteen years later (1998): Ted has never forgotten Mary, and feels he must try to seek her out. His friend (Chris Elliott) introduces him to a private eye named Pat Healy (Matt Dillon), and though Ted is a little queasy about the plan, Pat travels to Miami to find her. When he does, he finds her so beautiful and charming (and still unattached) that he falls for her himself. She is a wealthy, succeseful doctor who still takes care of her brother Warren, among other handicapped people, for whom she has a soft spot. The only thing missing in her life is romance. Soon Ted and Pat are in a race to win her over, along with a local would-be suitor (Lee Evans).

Though the plot of this film is trivial, what makes it succeed is the sheer outlandishness of the comedy. Several quirky characters appear and disappear, and Ted and Mary turn out to be the only "normal" people on the screen. There are times when the humor really scrapes the bottom of the barrel (some people will be offended), including not only toilet humor and sexual innuendo, but racial jokes, humor about the mentally disadvantaged, fake nudity, and an animal-abuse sequence that had the audience howling. But as with Mel Brooks, the Farrely Bros. can be excused because it's just so darned funny. And don't leave before the credits are finished, because a lot of leftover humor is shown as they roll, with the cast practicing all sorts of pranks and silliness.

There's Something About Mary is funny the way Blazing Saddles was funny. You have to be in the mood for gross jokes and offensive subject matter. But if you are, it's not to be missed. ★★★★

DNR Finalizes Hunting Proposals

Maryland Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Secretary John R. Griffin recently announced the final regulation proposals for both the 1998-1999 and 1999-2000 hunting license years for resident game species, upland migratory species, and resident Canada geese (September seasons only).

"Because Maryland's game populations are such an important resource to our citizens, the department relies heavily on public comments to guide the hunting regulation process," Griffin said. "I would like to thank all those who took the opportunity to comment on the department's initial proposals. The final proposals have been modified in response to citizens' comments as well as legislation enacted by the 1998 session of the General Assembly."

DNR's Wildlife and Heritage Division held five public information meetings across the state this past March to provide an opportunity for interested persons to review and comment on DNR's initial proposals. The Wildlife Advisory Commission, which serves as a liaison with the general public, conservation organizations, and the sportsmen and women of Maryland on wildlife related issues has approved this year's proposed regulation package. The final proposals will be published in the Maryland Register for a 30-day public comment period.

Highlights of the final proposed regulations that affect Garrett County hunters are as follows:

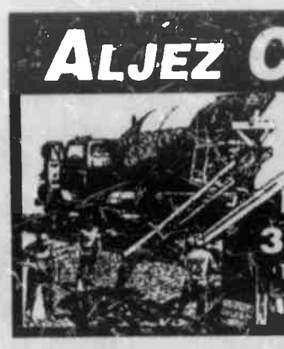
Creation of Four "Deer Management Regions"

A major change to Maryland's deer hunting regulations involves the creation of four "Deer Management Regions." Independent deer bag limits have been established for each region. The number of deer that a hunter can take in one region will not affect the hunter's bag limit in another region. The creation of separate bag limits for different sections of the state will enhance efforts to tailor deer management for the needs of local communities.

Highlights of regulation changes for Region A—Allegany (Zone 1 and Zone 2), Garrett (Zone 1 and Zone 2), and Washington (Zone 2)—follow.

- The last two days (January 1 and 2, 1999) of the Deer Muzzleloader season will be open to either sex deer hunting.
- Telescopic sights will not be legal in Region A for either the early or late segments of the Deer Muzzleloader season.
- A limited number of "Bonus Antlerless Deer Stamps" (formerly known as Antlerless Deer Permits) will be available via lottery for Region A. A Bonus Antlerless Deer Stamp entitles the hunter to take one additional antlerless deer above the regular bag limit. Hunters who are selected will have the option of using the Bonus Antlerless Deer Stamp either during the last two days of the firearms season or during the late segment of the muzzleloader season. The non-refundable application fee for residents is $5. The non-refundable application fee for non-residents is $25.

New Regulations Relative To "Bonus Deer Stamps"



During the 1998 session of the Maryland General Assembly, legislation was passed which has resulted in changes to regulations relative to bonus deer stamps, now allowing the hunter to hunt one extra deer for each stamp purchased within the established bag limits for a specific Deer Management Region.

- The fee for a Resident Bonus Deer Stamp is $5.
- The fee for a Non-Resident Bonus Deer Stamp is $25.
- There are no longer bonus deer stamps specific to a particular deer season, i.e., the bow, firearms, or muzzleloader season. Bonus deer stamps are now valid for any deer season.
- Bonus deer stamps are available for both white tailed deer and sika deer.

Changes to the Fall Wild Turkey Season

- An additional Saturday has been added to the Fall Turkey Season. The dates for the Fall Turkey Season will be October 31, 1998 to November 7, 1998.
- The Fall Turkey Hunting Zone has been expanded to include eastern Washington County. The Fall Turkey Hunting Zone now includes: Garrett, Allegany, and all of Washington counties.

Rinker Awarded Child Care Credentialing

The Council for Early Childhood Professional Recognition, based in Washington D.C., has awarded a Child Development Associate (CDA) credential to Kelley Rinker of Mtn. Lake Park in recognition of outstanding work with young children. Rinker is employed by Garrett County Headstart as an assistant teacher at its Crellin center.

CDA is described as the only major national effort to improve child care by evaluation and recognition of the skills of individuals providing care. The first credential was awarded 20 years ago, and now 46 states plus the District of Columbia include CDA in their child care licensing regulations.

"Parents who use child care are especially concerned today about their children's welfare," a council spokesperson said. "With this in mind, as part of the CDA assessment process, every candidate for the CDA credential is observed working with young children by an early childhood professional. In addition, the candidate must demonstrate the ability to work with families to develop children's physical and intellectual capabilities in a safe and healthy learning environment.

"The CDA credential is having a positive effect on the quality of child care," the spokesperson continued. "Its impact is evident in center-based care as well as family child are, the most common form to care for children under 5 years old."

Child care staff and parents interested in further information on CDA may write the Council for Early Childhood Professional Recognition at 2460 16th Street NW, Washington D.C. 20009-3575, or call 202-265-9090 or 1-800-424-4310.

ARMED SERVICES REVIEW

U.S. Air Force Airman Melvin R. Frantz has graduated from basic military training at Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio, Texas.

During the six weeks of training, the airman studied the Air Force mission, organization, and customs, and received special training in human relations.

In addition, airmen who complete basic training earn credits toward an associate's degree through the Community College of the Air Force.

Frantz is the son of Donald L. and Neva J. Frantz of Eglon, W.Va. His wife Melissa is the daughter of Paul V. Dixon of Terra Alta, W.Va., and Beatrice V. Ford of Steyer Gorman Road.

The airman is a 1995 graduate of Preston High School, Kingwood, W.Va.

U.S. Navy Seaman Chris L. Pritt, son of Alpha J. Pritt and John E. Pritt, both of Terra Alta, W.Va., recently completed U.S. Navy basic training at Recruit Training Command, Great Lakes, Ill.

During the eight-week program, Pritt completed a variety of training, which included classroom study and practical instruction on naval customs, fust aid, fire fighting, water safety and survival, and shipboard and aircraft safety. An emphasis is also placed on physical fitness.

Pritt and other recruits also received instruction on the Navy's core values—honor, courage and commitment—and how to apply them in their military performance and personal conduct. Pritt joins 55,000 men and women who will enter the Navy this year from all over the country.

Men and women train together from their first day in the Navy, just as they do aboard ships and at shore commands around the world. To reinforce the team concept, Pritt and other recruits also were trained in preventing sexual harassment and ensuring equal opportunity.

Pritt is a 1994 graduate of Preston High School of Kingwood, W.Va.

In Loving Memorial of Evelyn Fein Georg

God saw she was getting tired
and a cure was not to be,
So He put His arms around her
and whispered, "Come with me."
With tear-filled eyes
we watched her suffer and fade away.

Although we loved her deeply,
we could not make her stay.
A golden heart stopped beating,
hard-working hands put to rest.
God broke our hearts to prove to us
He only takes the best.

Breast Cancer: Two Drugs Offer New Hope

Breast cancer is the most common cancer in women in the United States. The greatest risk occurs in older women, with 75% of all such cancers occurring in women over age 50. In addition, a strong history of breast cancer in the family increases the risk at any age. The American Cancer Society recommends an annual mammography for women 50 years of age and older. In the past, radical mastectomy (removal of the breast, lymph nodes, and surrounding muscle) has been an accepted procedure for the treatment of breast cancer. Alternatives to the procedure include partial mastectomy, radiation, and chemotherapy (drugs). According to recent studies, two medicines already on the market offer new hope in the continuing fight against breast cancer:

Tamoxifen: Researchers at the National Institutes of Health recently reported beneficial findings from a study of more than 13,000 high-risk women. Tamoxifen appeared to decrease breast cancer risk by 45 percent.

Raloxifene: In a study of 7,705 postmenopausal women this osteoporosis medicine reduced the incidence of breast cancer by two-thirds while not increasing risk of other cancers.

=WM E BERGIN MAJOR GENRAL USA
THE ADJUTANT GENERAL OF THE ARMY:

DREADED DISPATCH - There was always panic when the Western Union delivery man arrivad at housaholds of armad aarvica paraonnal during wartima, becauaa too oftan tha maasaga ha waa convaying waa lika tha ona abova, racaivad in 1951 by Batty Umbal of Friandsvilla. Har husband Robart waa killad by anamy fira in Koraa juat a faw waaka bafora hia tour waa to and, making har a 21-yaar-old widowad mothar of two. In a box of paraonal balongings waa tha hand-writtan aaaay that appaara balow. Saa atory.

It was 47 years ago this Friday, July 24, 1951, that U.S. Army Sgt. Robert E. Umbel's life ended at the young age of 26, as he was cut down by enemy fire in Korea. He was within just a few weeks of the end of his rotation period, and just days before had written his last letter to his wife, Betty VanSickle Umbel, informing her that he would soon arrive in California en route home to Friendsville.

"I received that letter, but then didn't hear anything for several more weeks," Mrs. Umbel (now Betty Wampler) said. "After about a month, I knew something was wrong. When I saw the Western Union delivery man in front of my house, I knew exactly what had happened."

Sgt. Umbel left not only his wife, but also two young children, Alletta Jane, 3, and Dana Earl, 1, plus his parents, Clarence and Manila Umbel, two sisters, and a brother.

Besides serving in Korea, Umbel saw considerable action in Germany during World War II with the 3rd Infantry Regiment, Anti-Tank Company. Following World War II, he studied brick laying at a trade school, but remained in the U.S. Army reserves. With the advent of the Korean conflict, he was recalled to active duty in the fall of 1950. After 30 days of training at Fort Campbell, Ky., he was sent to Camp Stoneman, Calif., and finally overseas to Korea in December of that year. He was serving with the 35th Infantry Regiment of the 25th Division when he was killed. He served a total of eight years in the Army's regular and reserve components.

Umbel's body was returned to Friendsville and, following a service at Sand Spring Church of God with full military honors, was interred in Sand Spring Cemetery.

"I was only 21 years old when he was killed," Mrs. Wampler said, "and it was a very difficult time for me. But I decided it was the Lord's will and I was finally able to accept it. But I'll certainly never forget him."

Mrs. Wampler said she was fortunate to have family and many friends, who provided a lot of support for her and her young children. She remarried several years later and is now a widow again. Her daughter is now Jane Hinebaugh and her son Dana is a pastor.

A package of Sgt. Umbel's personal items was delivered to Mrs. Umbel a couple months after his death, and contained in the box was the following essay on four small sheets of now-yellowed note paper.

"I really don't know if he was the author of it, but I do know that it's in his handwriting," Mrs. Wampler said. "For several years I have wanted to have it published in some way, in memory of him. Plus I think it is very thought provoking."

THE MAN IN THE FOXHOLE

I want to tell you something about a war.

I want you to imagine for a moment that it is a very cold, wet, wintry evening at about 10 o'clock. You have been sitting very comfortably by your fireside reading the evening paper. It's been a pleasant day, dismal outside, but warm and restful by the fire. You decide to step out on the porch for a breath of air before turning in. I'm sure you've done it often, but this particular evening a strange sight greets you.

There's a great hole right in the middle of your front lawn and the dirt has been thrown up all around it, outlined sharply against the white even snow. Squatting in the hole is a hunched figure. Let me tell you something about him. He's been in this area now for about three weeks, living in a dozen holes just like this one on your front lawn.

The most apparent thing about him is that he is cold and that's because out on your lawn it's about 20 degrees colder than where you're standing. Every now and then he'll grab his shovel and dig a little deeper just to keep warm. That's the only way he has, because he'll be seen if he builds a fire and he may bring mortar fire into your living room.

He's been cold for a long time, and wet. He can't feel his feet and he's getting worried because he's afraid they might be frostbitten. It's going to be a long, cold night, and it's going to get colder.

He's very dirty. The grease from a hundred C rations is frozen to his parka and gloves, coating the two weeks' beard which covers his face. Soot from the small fire he dares to make during the day is all over his pants and boots. But he's dirty all the way through. He hasn't changed his underclothes in over a month and he doesn't intend to for some time to come. It's too cold to go down that far; you can smell him, and it's bad.

He's pretty hungry, too. They didn't get his rations up to him until after dark, and he can't build a fire to thaw them out. He'll have to wait 'til morning. A cup of hot coffee would sure taste good.

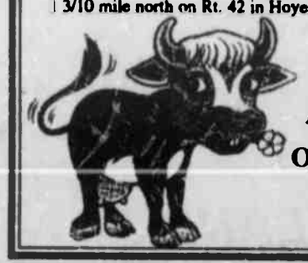
He looks old with that beard and a sort of hunched over posture. But he's only about 19, though not like any 19-year-old you've ever seen. You wonder what he's thinking about as he sits there during those long, cold hours.

Well it's not much, just how it is, and again how nice that coffee would be. Maybe every now and then he thinks of home. But that's a long ways off, and the cold of his feet and hunger are much more immediate. You'd be surprised how those three things can fill your mind.

You notice he's cut a hole in your hedge and his rifle is sitting on the pile of dirt pointing in readiness through the opening. That's another thing he's thinking: When are they coming again? He gets a little scared out there all alone. He'd like to go over and talk to his buddy in a similar hole about two houses up, but it's not a good idea to go crawling around at night. He wishes they weren't so far apart but it seems they always have a big sector to cover and never enough men to cover it.

What would you like to do with this man? Ask him in to your fireside; give him a cup of coffee? Would you like to loan him your razor and let him take a hot shower? Give him a bed to sleep in instead of the dirt and cold of his foxhole? Sure you would! But I'm afraid you can't. There's someone on that hill over there who wants to get into your front door, and this man was told by his platoon leader that he's supposed to take care of your house.

So he can't come in, and you find you can't reach him; he's very far away. But you come out in the morning and you find he's still there huddled over his little fire, thawing his hands, trying to get the feeling back into his feet.



He was there when you came home from work. While you are greeted by a warm fire in a living room, he's getting ready for another cold night.

I have told you about this soldier and placed him on your front lawn because I want you to realize that every desolate hill that he defends in that far off land is in reality your front door. There are people who want to get in to do you harm and it's his job to keep them away.

He's going to do his job, and he's not going to ask you to do it for him. If he has to sit on your front lawn in the cold, that's just the way things go. He's not going to begrudge you the comforts of your fireside or your dinner table.

But he'll be mighty bitter if he finds out that you're not doing your part of the job. What is your job? Well, it's not really important what I happen to think your job may be. But I think it is important that you find out soon what it is and start doing it. For whatever it is, it is a vital part of a country's struggle for existence. Perhaps it would be more clear to you what your job is if you returned home tonight to find that hunched, shivering figure sitting in a hole on your lawn.

Highlights on Diary Situation and Outlook
By Robert Cropp, Dairy Marketing Specialist
University of Wisconsin

The June BFP (Base Formula Price) was $13.10 per hundredweight, an increase of $2.22 per hundredweight from May, which was a record monthly increase. The June BFP was $2.36 per hundredweight higher than a year ago. This will give dairy farmers the second highest June milk value, trailing the record set in 1996. We can expect another significant increase in July BFP surpassing $14.00 per hundredweight.

The BFP is an estimate of producer pay prices for manufacturing milk and is composed of two parts, the base month price (what butter/powder and cheese plants in MN and WI paid for Grade B milk in the previous month) and the change in the milk value for the current month. For the July BFP the base month is June. If this is close to the announced June BFP, it would be about $13.10. The change in the current month's value is driven primarily (95% or more) by the changes in cheese price.

The question is how high will the BFP go and when will it peak. Weather conditions will play a roll here. Unfavorable hot weather will keep milk production depressed and keep milk prices stronger as a result. But if weather remains favorable and the forecast for a very good corn and soybean harvest materializes and ample forages exist, cheese prices and, in turn, farm level milk prices could peak early and then decline rather sharply. Some say this down turn could occur as early as August. I am still predicting that the BFP will peak in September in excess of $14.00 per hundreweight

UM Ag Field Day Scheduled Next Week

The Western Maryland Research and Education Center (REC) invites residents of the state's Piedmont and mountain areas to its annual field day on Thursday, July 30, near Keedysville in Washington County. This year's field day will mark the 21st anniversary of the center's founding.

The day will get under way at 8:30 a.m. with wagon tours of research plots. Early arrivals will be able to participate in as many as three different tours. Noon lunch will feature a hog roast, with reservations requested by Monday, July 27. To make reservations those interested may call 301-432-2767, extension 307. Short programs after lunch will conclude the planned activities.

Highlights of the morning wagon tour include forage selection for dairy rotational grazing; leafhopper-resistant alfalfa; phosphorus management; agroforestry; timber marketing; "Mountain Pride" small animal meats project; and HomeWork environmental program.

Western Maryland county Extension educators for family and consumer sciences will conduct a home economics program throughout the morning in an air-conditioned room, with an emphasis on good nutrition.

Farm tillage and planting equipment will be on display, and there will be numerous educational exhibits in a large tent. Visitors may walk through labeled field plots of corn and soybean varieties, check out new weed controls for these crops, and talk with seed company representatives.

The hog roast will be held from 1 to 2 p.m., with shaded tables available in a large tent.

A short program to conclude the day will be held at 1:45 p.m.

To reach the Western Maryland REC from Interstate Highway 70, take exit 29 near Hagerstown and proceed south for seven miles on Sharpsburg Pike (Highway 65). Go past the Maryland Correctional Institution and through the village of Tilmanton. Turn left onto Keedysville Road. Drive about one mile east and turn left at the Center entrance. For further information, those interested may call 301-432-2767, extension 307.

Weather Good For Hay But May Be Bad For Crops

Dry conditions allowed the second cutting of hay to remain ahead of last year and the 5 year average for the state. The second cutting of clover and other hay was 69% complete for the week. This was a 17 point increase from the previous year and 5 year average. The second cutting of alfalfa hay reached 94% harvested, an 11 and 12 point increase from last year and the 5 year average, respectively. Hay supplies were reported to be 100% adequate.

Field corn, soybeans and sorghum development made a significant increase from last week due to warm temperatures. However, according to the Maryland Ag Statistics Service, if above normal temperatures continue it may put field crop development at risk. Reports of slight heat damage to field crops started on the eastern shore. Winter wheat and rye harvest neared completion.

Peach and cantaloupe harvest progressed very well with a 20 and 9 point increase from last week, respectively. Overall vegetable harvest made good progress from last week, especially for sweet corn and snap beans.

Who is David Thomas?

- He is a solid family man.
- He is a proven leader who is active in the community
- He is hard worker who listens and works well with others. He is not a politician.
- He has experience with government. He has energy and good ideas for Allegany and Garrett Counties.
- He is a man who thinks the time has come to change Western Maryland's reputation in the State Senate.

Why will he do a better job than John Hafer?

- Because John Hafer talks Republican but votes Democrat. He voted for 95% of the bills signed by Democratic Governor Glendening and is content to criticize expensive projects after they happen...but doesn't speak up when they are created!
- Because John Hafer voted to put jobs at risk at Westvaco, the timber industry, the coal industry and AES Warrior Run by supporting excessive environmental controls.
- Because John Hafer has not fought hard enough to protect senior citizen's assets when they need nursing home care, to work with our towns in times of need. or improve Routes 219.

MLP Man Handed Six Months For Domestic Assault

A Mtn. Lake Park man who had entered a not guilty plea to an assault charge that stemmed from a domestic incident with his wife was convicted and sentenced to six months in jail during last week's Garrett County District Court proceedings.

Dean Francis Norton, 36, was handed a one-year sentence, half of which was suspended, and placed on one year of supervised probation by Judge Ralph M. Burnett, who also ordered Norton to make a payment of $200 to the county's domestic violence shelter.

Norton had been arrested by Garrett County sheriff's deputies in May when he allegedly came home intoxicated and forced his way through the front door and into the bedroom where his wife was sleeping. According to the charging statement, Norton then commenced striking her and physically dragged her from the bedroom to the kitchen.

In other circuit court news, a Mtn. Lake Park man was sentenced for his part in a series of thefts from vehicles parked at the Oakland VFW in February. Orval Ray Tasker, 19, had pleaded guilty to a charge of felony theft scheme stemming from the incident, and was handed a one-year sentence with all but time already served suspended, placed on two years of supervised probation, and was ordered to make a total restitution payment of $705 to be divided among the eight victims in the case.

Tasker had been arrested by sheriff's deputies at the Wisp Resort Hotel in March after security there notified them of a vehicle in the parking lot that matched the description of the vehicle sought in connection with the VFW incident. A search which followed a K-9 scan and alert on the car uncovered a stolen handgun in the car that was wanted by Preston County authorities. Questioning of Tasker and two co-defendants revealed their part in the VFW thefts.

The VFW case spawned additional charges of two counts of felony theft, six counts of misdemeanor theft, and four counts of malicious destruction of property which were not prosecuted by the State's Attorney's Office.

Tasker was also sentenced in connection with his March arrest by sheriff's deputies for allegedly breaking into a Sand Flat Road residence, taking and destroying a number of miscellaneous items, and shooting a hole in a window. He was ordered to pay the victim in that case $300 in restitution as his sentence for the misdemeanor theft scheme conviction, and was placed on two years of supervised probation to run concurrent with the probation stemming from his conviction in the VFW incident.

Randy Wayne Dalton, 24, Oakland, was sentenced after pleading guilty to two counts of malicious destruction of property. He was handed a 30-day sentence, with all but the time he has already served suspended, placed on one year of supervised probation, and ordered to pay $389 in restitution to the victim. An additional charge of fourth-degree burglary was not prosecuted.

The charges stemmed from Dalton's May arrest by state troopers for allegedly breaking into a Glendale Road residence in February. During the incident Dalton allegedly tore the phone from the wall and threw it on the roof.

Andrew Marco, 28, Belington, W.Va., was sentenced as a result of a conviction on a reckless endangerment charge and received a 30-day suspended sentence and was placed on six months of unsupervised probation. Marco had been arrested last August by state troopers for allegedly displaying a gun during a domestic altercation with his wife and her mother at the mother's Grantsville residence.

Eddie Lee Hitchens, 24, Finzel, was handed a probation before judgment (PBJ) after pleading guilty to marijuana possession. He received a six month sentence with all but four days suspended, a $155 fine, and was placed on six months supervised probation. An additional charge of possession of drug paraphernalia was not prosecuted.

The charges stemmed from Hitchen's April arrest by state troopers who smelled burning marijuana and found smoking pipes and weighing scales as they were executing a search warrant at his residence.

All charges stemming from the January arrest by sheriff's deputies of Shawn Robert Strawser, 19, Mtn. Lake Park, were placed on the stet docket. Strawser was apprehended at his residence after allegedly driving his car through an Oakland yard and was charged with driving while intoxicated. A subsequent search at the time of his booking at the detention center revealed that he was carrying a pipe containing burnt marijuana in his pocket.

David Allen McKenzie, 35, and Amanda Lynn Wright, 18, each must complete 50 hours of community service as a result of a stet ruling for charges of possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia that they both faced. Members of the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force arrested the pair in April at a Frostburg home that was the scene of a drug bust. The search revealed burning marijuana in the house, and additional marijuana in McKenzie's car and in Wright's bookbag, among other locations on the scene.

Eric Lee DeWitt, 21, Mtn. Lake Park, is required to complete 40 hours of community service after charges he faced of disorderly conduct, disturbing the peace, and disobeying a police order were stetted. A May domestic incident at his residence ended with his arrest by sheriff's deputies, and at the time of his arrest he continually used loud profanity that neighbors and passersby could overhear. Alcohol was cited as a factor in the incident.

Charges of second-degree assault, malicious destruction of property, and disorderly conduct were stetted in the case of Curtis Lynn DeWitt, 25, Oakland. Sheriff's deputies arrested DeWitt in June after a fight in the stairway of a Loch Lynn apartment building during which he allegedly broke a stair railing. He was also allegedly drunk at the time of his arrest, and ignored requests to cease his loud and disorderly behavior. A condition of the stet ruling is that DeWitt complete 20 hours of community service.

Clifford Michael Hard, 45, Fredericksburg, Va., must complete 20 hours of community service as part of the stet ruling on a charge of indecent exposure. Hard had been arrested in May by state troopers after allegedly exposing himself at the Youghiogheny rest stop on Interstate 68.

A second-degree assault charge faced by Jaimi Lorraine Beckman, 18, Oakland, was placed onto the stet docket. Beckman had been arrested in May by sheriff's deputies after allegedly striking her boyfriend during an argument.

Eric Lyle Bendler, 19, Oakland, who had been arrested by sheriff's deputies after a traffic stop on Sang Run Road in March, was handed a stet ruling on a charge of marijuana possession. Suspected marijuana was found on the floor of his car at the time of the traffic stop.

Christopher Lee Thorne, 31, McHenry, was found not guilty of fourth-degree burglary, second-degree assault, and misdemeanor theft. Sheriff's deputies had arrested Thorne in March in connection with a theft from a Sand Flat Road residence. The homeowner claimed that Thorne hit him in the face when he had approached him after the incident to inquire about it.

Charges of trespassing and failure to obey a lawful order of a police officer faced by Darrick Lee Dove, 18, Oakland, were placed onto the stet docket. Sheriff's deputies arrested Dove in April after he returned to loiter in Browning's Foodland parking lot in the face of a previous warning. A condition of the stet ruling is that he complete 28 hours of community service.

Carol Loraine Moore, 22, Mtn. Lake Park, was found not guilty of a second-degree assault charge stemming from her May arrest by sheriff's deputies. Moore's boyfriend had claimed that she had scratched his face during the course of a domestic argument.

Todd Allen Whitacre, 29, Kitzmiller, was found not guilty of second-degree assault stemming from his May arrest by sheriff's deputies for allegedly assaulting his wife during a domestic incident.

John Douglas Santi, 36, Coal Center, Pa., was not prosecuted on a charge of carrying a handgun in his vehicle; however, the gun was discovered after Santi had been stopped for DWI, and the resulting hearing on that charge resulted in a PBJ ruling, a $305 fine, and 18 months of supervised probation.

Gallery To Feature Mixographia: Works Of Sister Mary Edith Nemeth

The Windrush Gallery in Friendsville will host a show titled "Mixographia" from July 20 until August 14, spotlighting the works of Sister Mary Edith Nemeth, a member of the Sisters of the Divine Redeemer.

A native of Hungary, Sister Edith's expressions in graphics, fiber arts, and clay relief works are found in collections throughout the United States and Europe. Her technique, which blends mixed media, Sister Edith calls "Mixographia."

"I combine centuries old techniques with a new and contemporary collage technique. I let each piece find itself as I juxtapose the elements in a free form style of creation that seems to always know where it is headed," she said.

Sister Edith is a member of the American Craft Council, International Registry of Religious Women Artists, American-Hungarian Folklore Centrum, Craftsmen's Guild of Pittsburgh, Handweavers Guild of Pittsburgh, and the director of the Penn View Arts Center in Pittsburgh.

Gallery spokesperson Crede Calhoun described Sister Eidth's work: "Her work balances rich traditional ideas and techniques of the past, with exciting media and graphic processes. Sister Edith creates with her work, worlds and places where perhaps we can find or realize our inner connection to the sacred earth. In these frantic times, her presence and her exciting works may help us to understand the spiritual and divine nature of our lives here among God's creation. With her bold use of dramatic colors, and her fragmented assembly of various media, she reveals and creates many beautiful aspects of nature in a unique and contemporary presentation. Each work is like a prayer and an offering to the sacred and holy spirit of the earth and the Creator," he said.

Sister Edith said that her art works express themselves. "They contain jubilant colors, lines, upward movement as they sing and dance in complete harmony. In art, solitude, and music, I discover my soul," she stated.

The convent to which she belongs sprawls across several acres outside of Pittsburgh, Pa. "Religious and celibate devotion to Jesus and God is not a growth market right now. Not many younger women last long, and most of the Sisters have been with the Order of the Divine Redeemer for many years. At one time, the Order operated several hospitals, schools, and convents. Now we have consolidated everything down to this last outpost of our faith," she said.

At 67 years old, Sister Edith is the fourth youngest of 45 nuns, and the average age of her fellow sisters is 80.

Sister Edith has had many shows including exhibits at Pittsburgh Center for the Arts; Wheeling, W.Va., Artisan Center; and the Cleveland Hungarian Heritage Society. She holds several degrees, including a master of fine arts degree from Carnegie Mellon University.

"Her gentle wit and quick smile endear her to all who meet her. Many folks are quite surprised to find that the creator of such dramatic, contemporary and powerful works is a Catholic nun. Most of Sister Edith's works are far from traditional. Each piece demands attention and speaks to your heart without the need for words. Her example of service above self, and her devotion to the sacred creativity of art, is a much needed role model for the comfort to be found in simple living and healthy artistic endeavors," stated Gallery spokesperson Crede Calhoun.

In addition to her personal artwork, Sister Edith conducts arts workshops in painting, printmaking, weaving, lacemaking, clay, batik, calligraphy, drawing, and stained glass. These activities take place at the Penn View Art Center located on the grounds of the convent. A portion of the proceeds helps to support the many elderly nuns and daily expenses of the convent.

The public is invited to meet Sister Edith at the show opening reception on Saturday, July 25, from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the Windrush Gallery.

The Gallery is in its fifth year of operation, and features shows of original art by regional and nationally acclaimed artists, as well as permanent displays of original crafts, jewelry, and pottery. The Windrush is located on Morris Avenue in Friendsville. For information, persons may call 301-746-4083. Gallery hours are Thursday, Friday, Saturday, and Sunday, 10 a.m.-5 p.m.

Crellin Church To Host Revival, Rev. Brostowski

Crellin Assembly of God will be hosting Evangelist Gayle Brostowski for several services, beginning this Sunday, July 26, and continuing through Wednesday evening, July 29. Services on Sunday will begin at 10:45 a.m. and 6 p.m., and the services on Monday through Wednesday will begin at 7 p.m.

Evangelist Brostowski, a native and resident of Scranton, Pa., is an ordained Assemblies of God minister, and has traveled throughout the northeast corridor of the United States as a full-time evangelist since June of 1994. Prior to this, she served for nine years in youth ministry as an assistant pastor at Assembly of God churches in Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, and New York.

"Believing there is hope and encouragement found in Jesus Christ, she comes to the local church preaching the life changing message that God has laid upon her heart. This message consists of the Power of the Word, the Wind of the Spirit, and the Glory of God's Presence," stated Pastor David Snodgrass.

Crellin Assembly of God is now entering its 22nd week of Friday night revival services. "Every Friday at 7 p.m., we gather to worship our Lord, to pray, and to believe in God for the miraculous. Great things are happening," Pastor Snodgrass said.

For more information concerning the church and/or the revival, persons may call the church office at 301-334-3867.

Local Social Workers Assist With State Plan

Two local social workers recently participated on a statewide panel of experts to assist the Governor's Council on Child Abuse and Neglect Prevention. Lucia Ayers and Susan Athey-Oxford were the two local representatives taking part in the discussion, the purpose of which was to help the council develop a strategic plan to be presented to Governor Parris Glendening this fall.

Dr. Charles Shubin, pediatrician and child advocate (nationally known as a leader in child abuse prevention), led the 30-member contingent. Dr. Linda Thompson, the governor's special secretary, addressed the panel, asserting that the members were conducting "pioneering work" that will help communities accept the responsibility of making decisions "to achieve better results and to offer the hope that change is possible."

The plan is to move through several refinement stages before being presented to the governor, according to a report from Athey-Oxford. The purpose of the plan, in part, is to help improve the condition of children and families, to create partnerships between local communities and the state government, and to collaborate on intervention methods.

Locally, the issue of child abuse prevention has been promoted with the recent development of the Family Violence Coalition and the Personal Safety Initiative Project. For more information on local projects, persons may visit the coalition's website at <http://www.gcnet.net/fvc> or call Lisa Thayer Welch, coalition chairperson, at 301-334-1974.

Patients Awaiting Organ Transplants Now Exceed 2,000

In just two months, nearly 90 Marylanders were added to the national organ transplant waiting list, bringing the number of patients in Maryland awaiting a life-saving organ transplant to 2,071. Nationally, that number exceeds 57,000 people waiting for a kidney, liver, pancreas, heart, lung, or intestine. Each day approximately 10-11 people in the U.S. die while waiting for an organ transplant.

"Health care technology keeps improving, especially in three critical areas. First, it identifies more patients who can benefit from a transplant. Second, it keeps people alive longer as they wait for transplants. Third, it has improved the success rate for transplant surgery. As a result, demand for transplants increases as more success stories get communicated to potential patients," said Marion Borowiecki, CEO of the Transplant Resource Center of Maryland.

"Efforts are under way to narrow the gap between organs available for transplantation and patients awaiting an organ transplant. The new Maryland legislation, the William H. Amoss Organ and Tissue Donation Act of 1998, will generate more calls from hospitals about potential donors, provide OPO (organ procurement organization) or OPO-trained requesters, and offer all Marylanders the option of organ and tissue donation," said Borowiecki.

"TRC is also hiring more highly trained coordinators, increasing its hospital development efforts, and directly contacting top administrators at major donor potential hospitals," said Karen Kennedy, TRC Clinical Services director.

"In addition, there is more positive publicity about the benefits of organ and tissue donation. As a result, more people are signing a donor card or checking yes on their license and telling their family and friends. More Marylanders are committed to being a Hero For Life should they die unexpectedly," said Joseph O'Donnell, TRC director of Public Relations, Planning and Development.

The Transplant Resource Center of Maryland is the not-for-profit health service provider of organs and tissues to the citizens of Maryland. Incorporated in 1990, the TRC provides human organ and tissue recovery services, hospital donor-program development to 43 hospitals, and community education in most Maryland counties.

To become an organ and tissue donor, one can either sign a uniform donor card and carry it in a wallet or purse, or check yes on a driver's license. More important is telling one's family, as loved ones will ultimately be asked to make that decision at the time of death.

"One organ donor can save up to seven lives. One tissue donor can improve the lives of 50 more people," said Kennedy.

For further information, or a free donor card, persons may contact the Transplant Resource Center of Maryland, 800-641-HERO [4376].

The Garrett County Crime Solvers organization is currently seeking information about the theft of a dump truck that occurred this past winter.

On or about Feb. 16, someone took a 1992 Chevy one-ton, red cab, black steel flatbed dump truck from the parking lot of Glotfelty Enterprises. "Glotfelty Enterprises" is written on both sides of the truck, and there is a half-moon shaped dent on top of the cab on the driver's side.

Persons who have information about this or any other unsolved crimes are urged to contact Crime Solvers at 301-334-1975. Callers do not have to give their names nor do they have to appear in court. Rewards of up to $1,000 are available to persons who provide tips that lead to arrests.

Former Delegate Bolden Hopes To Unseat Edwards

Former District 1A Delegate DeCorsey Bolden, Oakland, has filed to regain his seat, currently held by his immediate predecessor, George Edwards. Bolden is the only Republican challenger to Del. Edwards, while Lawson "Buddy" Duckworth also announced his filing this week as the only Democrat in the race for the delegate seat.

District 1A consists of all of Garrett County and the George's Creek area of Allegany County.

Bolden, who has been involved in numerous local organizations, released the following statement with his announcement:

"I previously served in the House for 12 years and my campaign and efforts will be directed toward creative legislative leadership. For too long it appears that Garrett and Allegany counties have been left out of the spiraling economic growth enjoyed by many other regions of our nation. It's time we got caught up.

"Oh yea, we've built prisons (which I opposed, the only unelected politician to do so), golf courses, and football stadiums, but we can do better. We need industrial manufacturing jobs that pay good wages and provide good benefits. In spite of the competition this is not impossible, particularly with the excellent and willing workforce available in these two counties.

"Garrett County unfortunately lost the Bausch & Lomb plant, manufacturer of sunglasses (the world's capital in Mtn. Lake Park), to San Antonio, Texas. This should not happen to our workers. Not one elected official visited Rochester, N.Y., the home office, to try to persuade or accommodate this company, and the knowledge of their leaving was known two years ahead of the move. It certainly seems to me that something could have been done in the way of waivers of taxes or reduced price of utilities.

"When elected I will work feverishly toward making our region a mecca for business cooperation. I respectfully ask for your vote in the Republican Primary September 15, 1998, for the good of the counties and the people."

Welcome!

Father Rescues Toddler Son After Fall Into Lake

A father's quick action saved his 2-year-old son's life after the boy tumbled from a dock into Deep Creek Lake this past Thursday.

Douglas White of Latrobe, Pa., was standing on the dock with his son at the Rock Lodge Road vacation property when the boy fell into the lake. Although he was wearing a personal flotation device (PFD), it was not secured properly and came off the boy's body. White pulled his son from the 70-degree water less than two minutes after the fall, and immediately began CPR.

While White was rescuing the boy, someone from shore called 911. Southern Rescue Squad, the Deep Creek Lake rescue team, a lifeguard from Deep Creek Lake State Park, a Department of Natural Resources park ranger, and a Natural Resources Police officer responded to the scene. Southern Rescue transported the boy to Garrett Memorial Hospital, where he was breathing and in stable condition. Pittsburgh Children's Hospital was contacted to send a helicopter to transport the boy to that facility for further observation.

DNR rangers handled the investigation, and the case was closed.

PRE-NATAL CARE IS IMPORTANT

When a woman knows she is to become a mother, she should immediately consult a physician. His examination includes a study of her blood and its pressure, a urinalysis for disclosing possible kidney inflammation or diabetes, and a physical examination to insure a safe birth.

He will advise the proper diet and prescribe the necessary vitamins and minerals which helps both mother and the coming baby. We welcome prospective mothers and appreciate the opportunity to serve.

The Bright Touch

How beautifully these lovely lilies transform an otherwise plain, drab fence. The fence was performing its task very well, but the owners knew that God's handiwork would provide a bright touch.

How true this is in our own lives. So many of us go through each day doing our jobs and functioning satisfactorily, but where is that spring to our step and the gleam in our eyes when we smile? Where is that special touch that brightens each day?

God's love adds brightness to the spirit...the love that makes all the difference between a mediocre day and a marvelous day. Furthermore, we brighten the lives of those we meet. The love of God is contagious.

Plant the touch of God in your life. Visit His sanctuary each Sabbath and feel His spirit enter yours. You will then have that bright touch for others and live each day to the fullest. Remember, God is the bright touch in your life.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

LIVING IN THE HOUSE YOU BUILT

July 26, 1998

Background Scripture:
Proverbs 28:1-13
Devotional Reading:
Matthew 7:15-27

William B. Silverman tells an old rabbinic story about Rabbi Zusya, who, before his death, wept as he said, "In the coming world God will not ask me: 'Why were you not as Moses?' because I am not Moses. God will not ask me 'Why were you not as Isaiah?' because I am not Isaiah." "Why then," asked one of his disciples, "do you weep?" Rabbi Zusya sighed as he answered. "It is because God will ask me: 'Why were you not Zusya?' Have I lived up to the best in me? What shall I answer?"

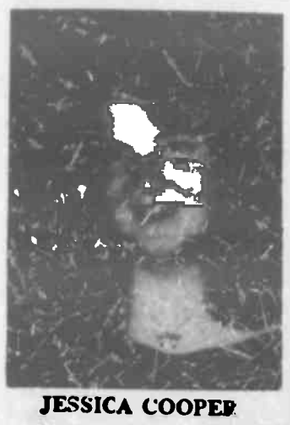
Some of us assume that we do not have much, if anything, to live up to. But each of us was created with a "best" in us that God expects us to live up to. Are you the best you that you can be? It is really a matter of integrity for us to be true to that inner gift, the most precious thing that any of us can ever possess.

This can only occur when we value our integrity more than we value riches. Yet, despite what we may say, we often believe deep down that money, power and fame are the things that really count—and we live accordingly. The late Prof. W.E. Hocking believed that we cannot have a sound society unless we have a sufficient number of persons who cannot be bought. He called them "unpurchaseable men."

THE PRICE TAG

Do you believe that there are people like that today? I do, but I know that lots of people believe that "Everyone has his price." Much of our economic and political life seems founded on that principle. "It's just a matter of finding the right price," I've been told.

The sage of the Book of Proverbs tells us, "Better is a poor man who walks in his integrity than a rich man who is perverse in his way" (28:6). If we give lip service to our integrity but feel we can't possibly pass up the money, we have been bought. It seems reasonable. "Think of your family's welfare." "Everybody does it, what makes you so special?" "Look at it as good business."



"A rich man," says the sage, "is wise in his own eyes..." (28:11). Greed tends to make us arrogant. When we badly want something other than our integrity, we persuade ourselves that we are above the rules. We become secretive—other people just wouldn't understand it as we do.

A WAY BACK

The sage says, "He who conceals his transgressions will not prosper, but he who confesses and forsakes them will obtain mercy" (29:13). Often we conceal our transgressions from ourselves first. Once we have been successful in that, we can conceal them from anyone else—except God. He sees both what we are and what we might have been. Fortunately, there is always a way back to God for the person who sells out: confession and repentance.

Another rabbinic story tells about a good man who wanted to do something good for someone, so, observing the miserable conditions in which a carpenter and his family were living, he called the man and commissioned him to build a beautiful house. "I want this to be an ideal cottage. Use only the best materials, employ the best work

Pair Of Garrett County Students Earn GCC Foundation Scholarships

JESSICA COOPER

JEFFREY McDANIEL

Two recent Garrett County high school graduates have been awarded scholarships by the Garrett Community College Foundation, according to advancement officer Bretta Reinhard.

Jessica Hope Cooper, daughter of Doris Cooper of Accident, is the first recipient of the Edward and Hazel Hinebaugh scholarship. A 1998 Northern High School graduate, she plans to become an occupational therapist. Cooper will be following a family tradition in attending GCC, because her mother was in the first class of students to graduate from the college.

Cooper was named to the honor roll at Northern and was selected to Who's Who Among American High School Students. Her school activities included membership in the chess club, craft club, first aid and athletic trainer's club, and serving on the senior memory committee. She is a member of the Bittinger 4-H Club and the Bittinger Lutheran Church, and her interests include swimming, working with children, and collecting Coca-Cola memorabilia.

The Edward and Hazel Hinebaugh Scholarship was established last year by the GCC Foundation as a result of a contribution from Edward Hinebaugh, a native of Garrett County who now resides in Florida. At the time of the scholarship's endowment, Hinebaugh stated that he "wanted to give something back to his home community, of which he has wonderful memories."

Jeffrey Lee McDaniel, son of Lynn McDaniel of Oakland and Les McDaniel of Mtn. Lake Park, has received the Ronald Hugh Sisler Memorial Scholarship and will enter GCC in the fall to study business management. A 1998 graduate of Southern High School, McDaniel played varsity soccer and worked in the school store. In addition to soccer, he enjoys camping, fishing, and hiking, and he is a member of the Arsenal Football Association.

Upon completion of his education, McDaniel plans to have his own sporting goods business in the area, following a family tradition of small business ownership.

ATTEND TEEN CONFERENCE - Garrett County 4-H members were represented at the recent Maryland 4-H Teen Focus Conference, held on the campus of the University of Maryland in College Park, as Autumn Rizer, pictured left, a member of the Grantsville 4-H Club, and Sarah Pysell of the Country Kids Club were in attendance. The conference is planned and conducted by members of the State Teen Council, on which Autumn and Sarah serve as the county's representatives. The conference program included classes, guest speakers, tours of the campus, a "bowl-a-thon," leadership workshops, a talent show, and a dance. Local youth interested in learning more about the Teen Focus activities may telephone the Extension office at 301-334-6960.

The week of July 26, the ADA will celebrate eight years of helping individuals with disabilities achieve independence goals and improve quality of life. Locally, the Potomac Highlands Center for Independent Living will be conducting radio interviews and advocating for support of the law from the community. Persons who wish to participate in the observance are asked to contact the Center for Independent Living at 301-784-1774.

Glimpse of The Past . . .

OAKLAND 100 YEARS AGO - Not many of the "original" downtown Oakland buildings remain today, but anyone familiar with the town would know almost immediately that this is a shot of Second Street looking north, with the corner of Second and Alder located in the right foreground. The photo, which is from the files of the Garrett County Historical Society Museum, was taken in the 1890s, when the streets were dirt, the sidewalks were wooden, and the primary mode of travel was horse and buggy. The photograph is published here courtesy of the society and The Republican.

Music's Role In Wellbeing Course Set At Penn Alps

Music as essential for personal and societal well-being is the focus of an Allegany College of Maryland course to be held Friday, Aug. 7, at Penn Alps in Grantsville.

"Beyond Relaxation: Music, Health and Self Care—Looking for a 'Sound' Healhh" is a joint presentation of AC's Center for Continuing Education and the Music at Penn Alps series.

"The day-long presentation, a professional development opportunity for psychologists, professional counselors, and social workers, promises to be as entertaining as it is informative," stated an AC spokesperson.

Toward its view of music as fundamental to wellbeing, the course presents an overview of music history and symbolism, including music-related experiences that aid in restoring health. "It demonstrates how integration of our physical, energetic, and spiritual selves can help us to work more effectively, spontaneously, and creatively with our clients," the spokesperson said.

Instructor Nancy Roldan draws on her expertise as a performer, teacher, and healing professional. She's given concerts, lectures, and workshops in the United States and abroad, is on the faculty at the Peabody Conservatory, where she earned master's and doctoral degrees, and holds a professional degree and national certification in massage therapy.

Guided by her interest and extensive work in developing healthful piano technique and body awareness and her experience helping musicians heal from injury, Roldan continues to expand her specialized work by concentrating on the mechanical problems of performers.

The course has been approved for Maryland-licensed psychologists, professional counselors, and social workers, with reciprocal credit available for West Virginia-licensed social workers. Other participants earn CE credit from the college.

For more information, persons may call Kerin Horton of AC's Institute for Professional Development and Extended Learning. Her number is 301-784-5243. To register, persons may contact the CE Registration Office at 301-784-5341.

COVER STORY

Mall terror is all wet in new Fox disaster flick

By Suzanne Gill
©TVData Features Syndicate

Shannon Sturges

Last month, Fox changed the title of its $5.5 million made-for-TV thriller about a flooded shopping center from Disaster at the Mall to Terror in the Mall. It didn't help.

The film, airing Wednesday, July 29, features Rob Estes (Melrose Place) and Shannon Sturges (Savannah), 396,000 gallons of water and a two-story waterproof set, specially constructed on the world's third-largest sound stage – which happens to be named for Marlene Dietrich and located in Berlin.

It's "wetter than Titanic," jokes Sturges, who suffered sinus and ear infections, hypothermia and a painful stubbed toe during filming.

The cast's other marquee player is David Soul (Starsky and Hutch), who left TV acting and the United States behind in the early 1990s. Soul now lives in London and has a thriving career as a European recording artist and West End stage actor. The most mature actor in the cast, he gives the film's best performance.

To ensure plenty of suspense, the plot combines a hostage situation with the worst flood since Noah. On the eve of the opening of a new mid-American mall, a huge storm causes an old dam to collapse, engulfing the valley below – and most importantly, the mall – in a lake 10 feet deep and rising.

Viewers learn the water has forced subterranean methane gas above ground. The gas is collecting near the building's emergency generators, and if they kick on, the whole place will explode.

Sturges' character, a doctor who is married to the local sheriff, is trapped in the mall with a handful of others, including Estes and Soul.

Adding to the panic, the group learns from a radio message that one of its number is an escaped criminal.

It should be hair-raising, but it's all too improbable to be taken seriously.

How can a viewer suspend disbelief while questions keep bobbing to the surface like so many inflatable pool toys? For instance, why isn't the order to evacuate the valley given sooner? Why would anyone try to go shopping in a mall that hasn't opened yet? Why aren't the people in the mall electrocuted by water coming into contact with power sources? Why is there a loaded harpoon gun on display in the sporting goods store?

There does seem to be an answer to at least one question: Why set the movie in a mall in the first place?

"Frankly, you can't have a hit on Fox without a large women's audience," says Gary Hoffman, who heads up Fox's TV movie and miniseries division. Was it Hoffman's theory that put a remake of The Exorcist and a comedy titled Dumb and Dumber: The Early Years in the works as well?

To help bankroll Terror in the Mall, Fox took on a German production partner in exchange for the right to broadcast Terror in Europe later this year.

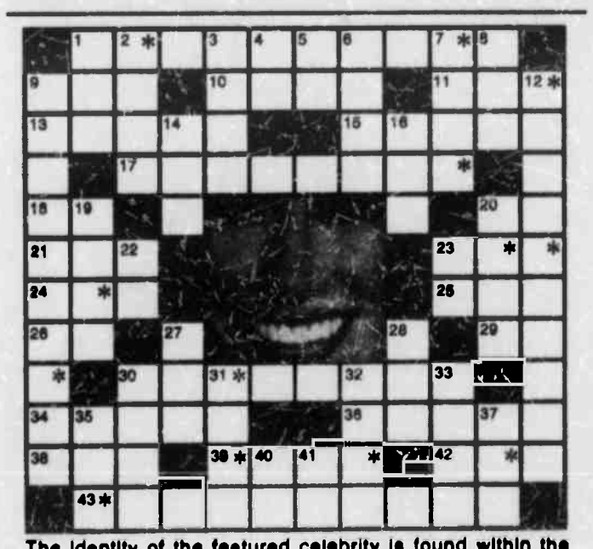
Yet from the foreign location to the custom two-story set to the prune-fingered actors, it seems an awful lot of trouble to go to for a movie that sinks like a stone.



TRIVIA

Leo, the MGM lion, uttered his first on-screen roar July 31, 1928, at the New York premiere of White Shadows on the South Seas.

TRIVIA

Actress Jan Miner played Madge the Manicurist in commercials for 26 years (1965-91), making Madge TV's most enduring ed character.

Diefenbaker

Q: We are having an argument over Diefenbaker, the wolf-dog in Due South. My kids say he is deaf, but I say not. Who is right? –M. in Brooks, Minn.

A: The kids are. Dief's eardrums burst when he dove into frigid waters to rescue Constable Benton Fraser (Paul Gross), his human companion. He has taught himself to read lips.

Fraser occasionally has accused Dief of hearing what he wants to hear, but an episode called "Mounty on the Bounty" cleared up the issue with a scene shot from Dief's perspective, in which the people's voices were muted but subtitles appeared as Dief read the lips of those speaking.

Q: What happened to the actor who played Lamont on Sanford and Son? –Shawn in Alliance, Ohio.

A: After his last TV acting job in 1982's The New Odd Couple, Demond Wilson left show business to become a minister. In 1994, he founded the Restoration House of America, which provides vocational training and spiritual guidance to former prison inmates.

Q: I recall seeing a movie on TV starring George Hamilton and Sandra Dee, but I can't find it in any movie guides. Did these two make a movie together or am I simply bonkers? –"Joramool" via e-mail.

A: The two co-starred in 1967's Doctor, You've Got to Be Kidding.

Q: Who played the prince in the recent Disney TV adaptation of Cinderella? Is he Latino? –T.H. via e-mail.

A Newcomer Paolo Montalban, a Filipino actor and singer, was working as a chorus member and understudy in the recent Broadway revival of The King and I when Disney scouts spotted him and cast him opposite Brandy in the smash ABC musical special.

Q: What can you tell me about South Park creator Trey Parker? I know he was in Newsies and the group EYC (Express Yourself Clearly), but has he done anything besides South Park? Where may I write to him? –Rachel Lawton, Saint John, New Brunswick, Canada.

A: The South Park creator would rush to point out that he is a different Trey Parker from the guy who was in Newsies and the now-defunct EYC.

The older and cooler Parker, 29, stars with fellow South Park creator Matt Stone this summer in BASEketball, and both will collaborate next year on South Park: The Movie.

Write to him c/o South Park, Comedy Central, 1775 Broadway, New York, NY 10019

TRIVIA

Actor Richard Gere attended the University of Massachusetts on a gymnastics scholarship. He dropped out after two years to pursue acting.

The music of Richard Wagner (1813-83) is banned by the Israeli Philharmonic because its themes were closely linked with the Nazi cause.

Perhaps the longest TV series title ever was Your Kaiser Dealer Presents Kaiser-Frazer "Adventures in Mystery" Starring Betty Furness in "Byline."

Rumor has Humphrey Bogart as the model for the Gerber baby, but the child in the 1928 drawing was a girl, Ann Turner. That year, Bogart was 29.

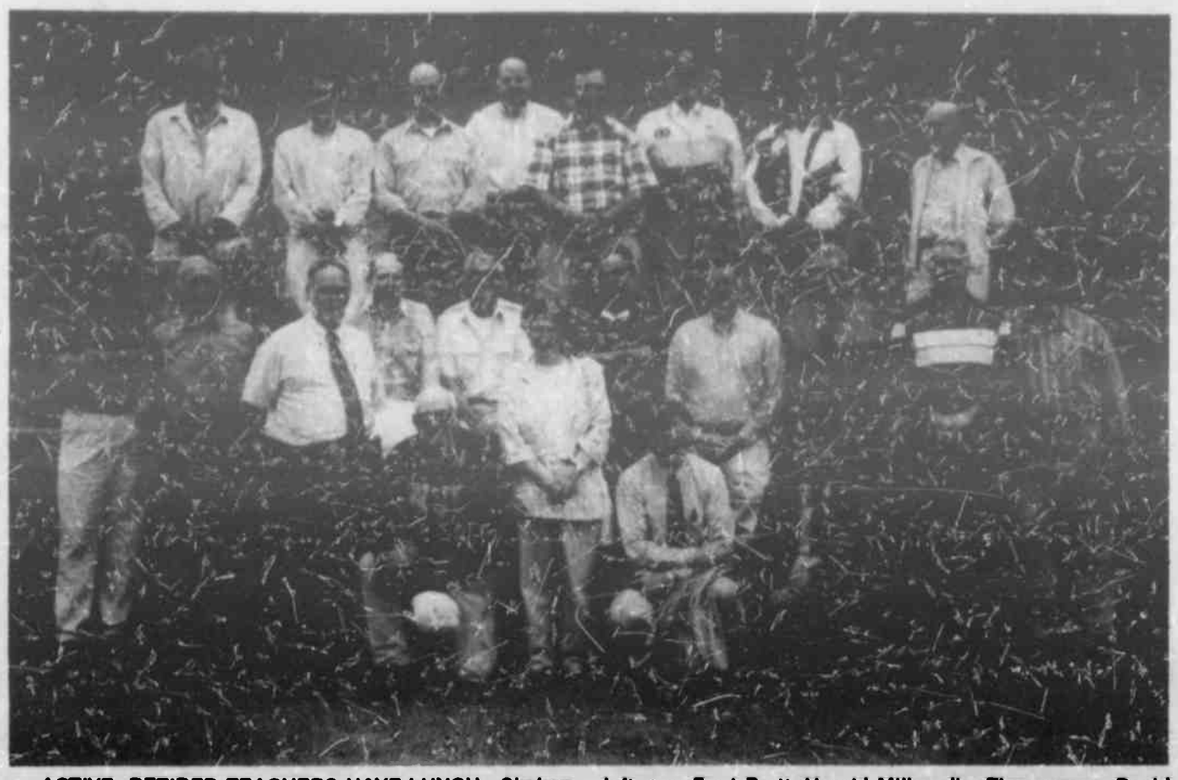
New Horticulture Courses Offered In Fall By GCC

New horticulture courses for persons working in the "green industry" or desiring to have knowledge and skills related to growing plants for their own personal benefit are being offered by Garrett Community College this fall.

According to Willie Lantz, instructor of agriculture at GCC, these courses will be beneficial to persons in the landscape business and those employed with nurseries, greenhouses, golf courses, and lawn care businesses, as well as to individual home owners who have flower and vegetable gardens.

Lawn and Landscape Installation and Maintenance (HORT 133) will meet Monday and Wednesday mornings from 9 to 10 a.m., with a lab on Tuesday from 9 to 11 a.m. This course develops skills in planting, pruning, fertilizing, and selecting trees and shrubs, mulching and controlling weeds in beds and ground covers, solving drainage problems, and maintaining turf areas. It also covers job scheduling, estimating, and bedding.



Woody Ornamentals (HORT 102) will be given on Mondays and Wednesdays from 10:10 to 11:40 a.m., with a lab on Wednesdays from 2 to 4 p.m. In this course students learn to identify various plant materials and to apply them to gardens, landscapes, golf courses, woodlands, and highways. They also learn to select appropriate plant materials for particular situations and to make decisions concerning the preservation or removal of native plants as they occur in the existing landscape. Ground covers, vines, shrubs, and trees are included.

Both of these courses will be taught by Ralph Sheaffer, landscape contractor, who has a master's degree in agriculture education with an emphasis in horticulture.

A third course, Introduction to Plant Science (BOTN 101), is scheduled for Tuesday and Thursday from 3 to 4:30 p.m., with a lab Thursday mornings from 10 to noon. This course gives a general introduction to plant growth and development with emphasis on physiology, morphology, genetics, and ecology of higher plants. Students will learn to identify, use, adapt, and manage grain and forage crops. This course will be taught by Lantz.

It is now possible for students in the Agricultural Management program at GCC to complete the two-year degree with an emphasis in horticulture, and receive a certificate from the Institute of Applied Agriculture at the University of Maryland, College Park.

Interested persons who desire further information may call Lantz at 301-387-3021. Students may register for these courses at the Student Assistance Center weekdays from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Extended hours until 6:30 will be in effect Mondays through Thursdays beginning August 31 and continuing until September 15. Friday hours are 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Fall semester classes at GCC will start September 9.

Maryland Forests Association Sets Annual Meeting

Sustainable forestry, or the management of the forest resource to meet the needs of the present without compromising the needs of future generations, must by necessity be a partnership of forest industry, government, the nonindustrial private forest landowner, and the environmental community, according to a spokesperson for the Maryland Forests Association (MFA).

In order to work toward common ground, MFA has assembled a discussion panel to present four views of sustainable forestry at its 1998 annual meeting, September 18 and 19 at the Holiday Inn, Solomons. Panelists will be Thomas C. Norris, CEO of the P.H. Glatfelter Company, a pulp and paper company headquartered in Spring Grove, Pa.; John R. Griffin, secretary of the Maryland Department of Natural Resources; Robert H. Eaton, a private nonindustrial forest landowner from Port Tobacco; and Thomas W. Horton, award-winning author and environmental columnist with the Baltimore Sun.

Following the Saturday morning panel discussion there will be presentations on the Northeast Decision Model (NED) and Geographic Information Systems (GIS). The NED is a computer program, developed by the U.S. Forest Service, designed to help landowners manage their land by providing exposure to and explanations of a wide range of forest practices used to produce a variety of benefits from forest land. The program guides the user through the process of selecting forest stewardship goals by offering a great deal of basic information about forests and their management. The program uses the goals selected by the user and indicates where incompatibilities between the goals may occur, makes recommendations on how to manage a forest for specific goals, and describes the conditions that must be created or enhanced to accomplish them.

GIS is application of spatial data to improve the efficiency of forest and land management businesses.

Attendees will also find out what types of data products are available through Maryland's Technology Toolbox, how to obtain them, and where to obtain training.

The morning's discussions will close with a slide presentation by R. Neil Sampson, "Harvesting with Sustainability in Mind." Sampson, president of The Sampson Group, will use visual examples to discuss sustainable forestry, timber harvesting, and public perception.

The weekend will begin Friday, Sept. 18, with the annual awards banquet followed by "Shays, Peaveys, and Wood Hicks—The Early Days of Logging," a presentation by historical reenactor Richard Pawling of History Alive!, and will conclude the next afternoon with the MFA business meeting. The entire event is open to the public. Preregistration is required.

MFA is a statewide citizen's organization. Since 1976, MFA has worked to promote its goal of forest conservation and the maintenance of a healthy and productive forest land base. Farther information is available at MFA's website at http://mdforests.org. Registration materials may be obtained by calling the MFA office at 301-895-5369; or by writing to MFA at P.O. Box 599, Grantsville, MD 21536, or via e-mail at mfa@hereintown.net.

Antiques

Q. When my parents were traveling long ago, they brought back a pair of wall hangings from China. The hangings are made entirely of iron and have an back. When they're hung, the color of the wall becomes the background. The "picture" depicts some kind of flowers and branches. What can you tell me about these?

A. Hammered-iron wall hangings called "tieluas," date back to 17th century China. They were meant to be hung on white walls of a scholar's study. The black-on-white effect resembled ink paintings.

Tieluas became popular souvenirs for travelers to China. They are still being made.

Q. How did a woman sit in a chair while wearing a bustle? I'm in a play, and the authentic costume seems to dictate that I perch on the edge of the chair.

A. Comfort was not the main interest of furniture designers or dressmakers in the 1880s.

Most bustles were large steel cages tied to the waist under the dress. The wearer could not lean against a chair back.

Some bustles were designed to fold up so the wearer could lean back in the chair. Other bustles were made of soft material such as horsehair that acted like a lumpy pillow.

Q. I have a Skipper doll from the 1970s. If you twist her arms, she gets taller and her breasts get bigger. I don't have the original box or clothing, but I wonder if this unusual doll might have some value.

A. Mattel introduced the Growing Up Skipper doll in 1975. She was advertised as "two dolls in one." If her arm was twisted, she turned from a girl into a taller teenager. The 2-centimeter growth in her bustline created quite a stir.

The mint-in-box value for Growing Up Skipper is $65. Yours would sell for less.

Home Tips

DISHWASHER WOES – We recently had to replace our dishwasher. It had a good life and lasted 12 years. We were very pleased with the brand we had, so we replaced it with the new, modern version of the same model.

To my dismay, some well-meaning person changed the configuration of the one large silverware basket to one that, to me, was very dysfunctional.

Since my old machine was headed for the junkyard, I kept its basket, put it in the new machine and then proceeded to nail the new baskets to the inside of the cupboard under the kitchen sink, giving me storage for small items like rubber gloves and scouring pads. Lynn K., Amesia, N.Y.

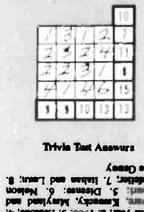
SAFE TOES – Our queen-size bed has three rollers on each side. I often hit my toes on the center one, and I have finally found the perfect solution.



Take the bottom from foam holders for soda cans. Have someone hold the bed up and slip the foam over the wheel. It sure saves a lot of sore toes. Adele C., Fond du Lac, Wis.

CLEAN HANDS – Having arthritis in my back, I have to apply menthol cream to relieve the pain. It is difficult to remove all the cream from your hands, so you get a burning feeling when touching sensitive parts of the body.

To limit this, I use a 1 1/2-by-1-inch paint trim pad with an 8-inch-long handle. Jim D., Vero Beach, Fla.

LOSING HIS LOAD, and subsequently flipping his rig at Keyser's Ridge last Friday at 5:45 a.m., was Ervin F. Nicholson, Mill Run, Pa. The incident caused U.S. Rt. 219 to be blocked with logs and his overturned tractor and trailer for several hours. Nicholson, who is a driver for Bowers Lumber Co., Deer Park, was rounding the turn from U.S. Rt. 40 onto 219 south when a spring shackle on the trailer apparently broke, causing the load to shift and flipping the vehicle. He was not injured in the mishap, which could not be said for the yield sign in the foreground of the photo above. Among those responding to the scene were the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad and the Grantsville Volunteer Fire Department. Photos by Doug Beitzel.

GCC Forms Team Effort To Provide Bachelor's Degree

A collaborative effort of Garrett Community College, Bowie State University (BSU), and the Maryland National Guard will make it possible for GCC graduates of associate degree career programs to pursue a Bachelor of Science in Technology degree in Garrett County.

GCC President Dr. Steve Herman and BSU President Dr. Nathanael Pollard Jr. signed the memorandum of agreement in a Tuesday morning ceremony on the McHenry campus. BSU will provide the instruction on GCC's McHenry campus and at the National Guard Armory in Oakland through a combination of in-person and interactive video courses.

Distance education will be an integral part of the degree program. BSU will initiate interactive video courses offered via compressed video technology using the Interactive Video Network and via fiber-optic technology of the Maryland Interactive Distance Learning Network. GCC's campus houses dedicated labs for both networks, and courses will also be offered via the Maryland National Guard compressed video network at the Oakland Armory.

Under the agreement, GCC's graduates of career programs will be able to transfer 60 credits to BSU where they will earn an additional 60 credits through the distance learning network. GCC will provide lower level courses of the BACHELOR'S PROGRAM COMING TO COUNTY - Garrett Community College got a jump-start on the 21st century this week as college president Dr. Steven Herman, left, and Dr. Nathanael Pollard Jr., president of Bowie State University, signed an agreement making it possible for GCC graduates of associate degree career programs to earn a B.S. in Technology degree from BSU without leaving Garrett County. The new program will utilize the latest in the cutting edge technologies of compressed video and fiber-optics to connect the two institutions, seperated by over 150 miles, via live interactive video. The program could begin as early as this fall if there is sufficient interest, and persons who would like further information should contact GCC's Admissions Office at 301-387-3010.

Potomac Named An American Heritage River

Vice President Al Gore announced Monday that the Potomac River has been designated as an American Heritage River, which means communities along the river will be able to seek federal resources and expertise in restoring and protecting the waterway. The announcement was met with enthusiasm among elected officials, most of whom had endorsed the nomination of the river to the heritage status.

"This is a great day for the Potomac and for all those who care about its future," said Senator Paul Sarbanes. "This will enable towns and communities along the river to continue the economic and environmental renaissance of our 'Nation's River,' which has been so closely tied to the 350 years of America's history, commerce, recreation, and culture."

The North Branch of the Potomac runs along the Commissioners Updated On Staff Hirings, Improvements, Progress

The Board of Garrett County Commissioners this past Tuesday hosted the monthly staff meeting with county leaders and heard a variety of updates from about 19 spokespersons. News of hirings, transfers, improvements, and other items were discussed during the 90-minute session.

GCC

Dr. Stephen Herman, president of Garrett Community College, told the commissioners of the latest development in the college's offerings to residents, which is a link-up with Bowie University. This new relationship will give local residents the opportunity to earn a four-year college degree via use of interactive classroom technology to be housed in the National Guard Armory in Oakland. (See seperate story/photo.)

Herman also announced that enrollment at the college is running ahead of last year thus far, although the final numbers will not be known until classes get started in September. The construction of three pole buildings is under way near the college campus. These will house the adventure sports program, agriculture, and a fishery.

Herman said the college now owns two ostrich eggs, which cost $1,000 each. The birds are expected to hatch in the near future and will be raised as part of a new program.

Education Board

Dr. Brenda McCartney, assistant superintendent of Garrett County schools, told the commissioners of staff changes at two schools. Linda Buckel, former principal of Kitzmiller Elementary School, is moving to the Grantsville Elementary School. Taking over the principalship at Kitzmiller will be Sheila Miller, who will also continue to teach there.

Dr. Donald Forester has been appointed as the director of elementary education. Forester was in attendance at the meeting to be introduced to the commissioners and county staff colleagues.

McCartney said the Broad Ford Elementary

BOE Approves Hiring Of New Key Personnel

Several vacancies at the Garrett County Board of Education were filled last Thursday, when board members voted to approve the hiring recommendations made by Dr. Wendell Teets, school superintendent. The positions filled were directos of curriculum and instruction preK-5, and two elementary school principals.

Dr. Donald Forrester will assume the responsibilities of director of curriculum and instruction preK-5. Formerly a school principal, Dr. Forrester is retired from the state school system. He has been employed as a substitute teacher in Garrett County and has worked for Frostburg State University.

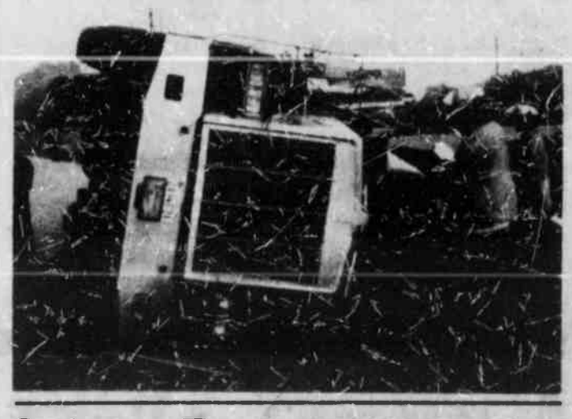
Linda Buckel was approved by the board of education to be principal at Grantsville Elementary School. She will assume the office vacated by Dale Garlitz, who resigned recently. Buckel has served as principal of Kitzmiller Elementary School for two years and is a 20-plus-year veteran of the Garrett County school system.

Sheila Miller, reading specialist and former classroom teacher, will replace Buckel as principal at Kitzmiller Elementary School. This will be the first time Miller has held the office of principal.

In other action, the board approved the hiring of a teacher and an assistant for the newly developed Alternative School Program.

Oakland's SOS Micro-Brew Fest Plans Under Way

A micro-brewery festival is being planned by the Save Oakland Station (SOS) organization to help raise money for the purchase of the town's historic railroad station house. The Garrett County commissioners last week signed a resolution allowing the consumption of alcoholic beverages for one day at the county's airport, located near McHenry, where the festival is to take place on Sept. 12.



Oakland mayor Asa McCain and SOS chairman Dave Saba met with the commissioners several weeks ago to discuss the event, which will be titled "Planes, Trains, and Automobiles." The festival is to feature micro-brewed beer tasting for guests over age 21. Participants will pay an admission price to enter the beer-tasting area, where they will be able to sample the products of about 20 breweries, organizers hope.

Other highlights of the day are to include displays by a local vintage automobile club, as well as several family-oriented activities.

When speaking with the commissioners, McCain noted that the beer tasting portion of the event will be a social affair, similar to wine-tasting festivals held in other parts of the state.

"It's not going to be another Oktoberfest, when everyone buys mugs of beer," he said. "The micro-brewery tasters will each be given a cup to try the different types of beer. This is

Sarbanes To Visit Overlook North Site

Senator Paul Sarbanes will tour the site for Overlook North, the Garrett County Community Action housing complex being built along High Street near Southern High School. The senator will be visiting on Tuesday, Aug. 4. He also plans to go to the Community Action Center in Oakland to present a check from the Appalachian Regional Commission. The money is to help with the loan fund for Microworks, the county's new micro-enterprise program.

Duane Yoder, executive director of Community Action, told the commissioners this week that the Overlook North building project had lost some $500,000 of expected funds, but that Sarbanes has worked with others to recuperate those losses.

"We are very grateful for the work the senator has done for the project," Yoder said Tuesday. "His support for Overlook was essential to its financing."

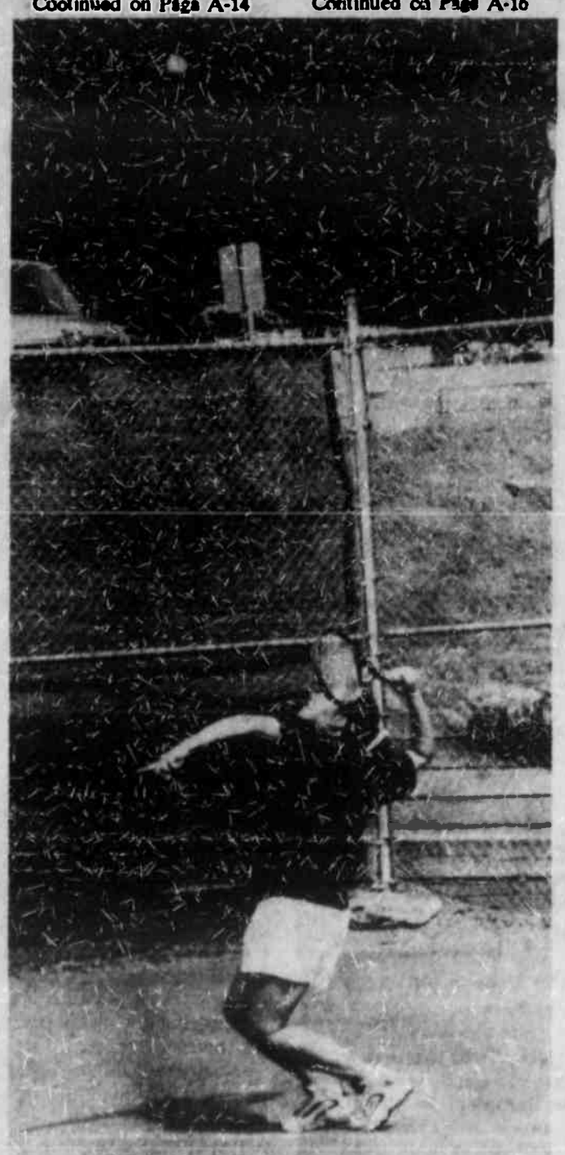
Oakland Man Burned Trying To Light Brush



An Oakland man sustained second-degree burns to both legs and his right arm and first-degree burns to his face Saturday night when he used gasoline to attempt to light a brush pile near Accident, according to the Garrett County Sheriff's Office.

Richard E. Kitzmiller, 29, was attempting to burn the brush at 803 Sale Barn Road when the 9 p.m. mishap occurred. Kitzmiller poured gasoline on the fire to light it, and when he brought his lighter in contact with the brush a fire flared up and burned his legs, arm, and face. He fell to the ground and with the assistance of Leo James Landers, 20, a resident of the Sale Barn Road address who was burning brush with Kitzmiller, was able to roll and put out the fire on his body.

The Accident Volunteer Fire Department and the Northern Garrett Rescue Squad were called to the scene, and Maryland State Police Helicopter Trooper 5 was summoned to fly Kitzmiller to Cumberland Memorial Hospital. Kitzmiller remained hospitalized for several days, but has since been released.

Blacktop Scam Still Operating In Local Area

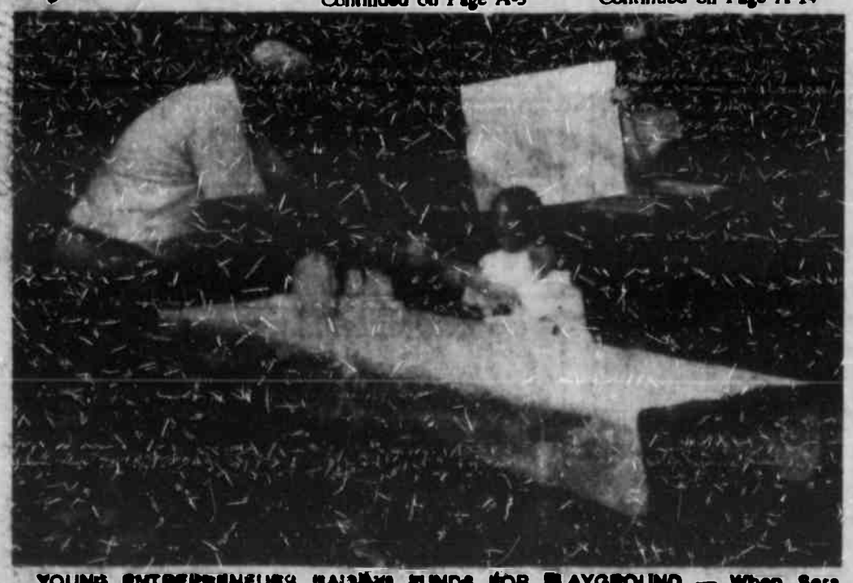
Garrett County Sheriff P.R. "Dick" Sanders repeated a warning to county residents this week regarding a blacktop scam that has been attempted in various locations around the county over the past month.

"Individuals representing themselves as paving experts are approaching citizens to pave their driveways with leftover paving material," Sheriff Sanders stated. "If the citizen agrees, then the paving or sealing is done with very shoddy results, and a very expensive bill is presented to the citizen. These individuals apparently do not have the proper licensing to conduct business in Garrett County.

"In order to protect yourself if someone approaches you to pave or seal your driveway," the sheriff continued, "get a written estimate before any work is done. Also, the pavers must have an MHIC (Maryland Home Improvement Contractor) number displayed on their vehicle and their documentation in order to conduct business in Maryland. If you cannot obtain either of these two items, then we suggest you do not do business with them."

Persons who come into contact with paving contractors not meeting the above criteria are encouraged to contact the Garrett County Sheriff's Office immediately at 301-334-1911.

Meredith Dean-Joseph To Give Jazz Concert



A concert by jazz singer Meredith Dean-Joseph will be the next Garrett Lakes Arts Festival (GLAF) presentation. Her show is slated for July 31 at 8 p.m. in the Garrett Community College auditorium. This presentation is being sponsored by the Wisp Resort Hotel.

Ms. Joseph, from Morgantown, W.Va., began singing in church at the age of 4 and continued singing throughout her high school and college years, appearing in musicals such as Kiss Me Kate, Anything Goes, South Pacific, and Mame. After graduating with a degree in psychology, she began appearing with the John Angotti Band and was centerstage at the West Virginia Italian Heritage Music Festival in 1995.

Since that time she has appeared in subsequent Italian Heritage Festivals, the Forest Festival, the West Virginia Wine and Jazz Festival, and the East Coast Jazz Festival in Washington, D.C. She has also performed at the Greenbrier Hotel Resort, the Governor's Mansion, the Royal Ball at Nemacolin Woodlands, and at the "Joy to the World" concert at the Cultural Center in Charleston, W.Va.

YOUNG ENTREPRENEURS RAISING FUNDS FOR PLAYGROUND — When Sara Eastman and Mariah Sines (seated left to right) found out that the purchase of playground equipment at their school, Yough Glades Elementary, was not to be funded this year, they decided to strike out on their own. The two girls have so far staged a show for ticket-paying family members, which brought in $3.25, and then moved to bigger things last week with a bona fide lemonade stand. This effort garnered an impressive $88.54 toward their cause. Pictured in the back holding a sign is Ashley Shaffer, who also helped out. The girls will continue to hold fund-raisers in their quest to furnish their playground. Plans are tentatively under way for a bake sale. Concert At Penn Alps To Feature Four-Hands Piano

Dana Muller and Gary Steigerwalt

Those who have seen the film Good Will Hunting have heard the four-hands piano artistry of Dana Muller and Gary Steigerwalt, who will be coming to the Great Hall of Penn Alps on Saturday, August 1, at 7:30 p.m. as part of the Music at Penn Alps series.

Muller and Steigerwalt's interpretation of Franz Schubert's work may be heard on the soundtrack of the film, which was released by Miramax, and on the artists' two disc series on the Centaur label dedicated to Schubert's four-hand works. Another of their recordings of four-hand works by early twentieth-century European composers was hailed "an outstanding disc" by Fanfare.

The duo has been performing the unique chamber music of four-hand piano repertoire for over a decade, creating programs that encompass the historical and stylistic gamut of the genre. They have appeared extensively in the Northeast as well as in Louisiana, Oklahoma, and Texas.

In addition to presenting the complete four-hand works of Beethoven at the Beethoven Festival, Oyster Bay, Long Island, Muller and Steigerwalt have participated as four-hand recitalists at numerous summer festivals, including the Bethlehem (Pa.) Musikfest, the Seenars Festival, and Musicorda Festival in Massachusetts. Orchestra appearances include the Pennsylvania Sinfonia for the North American premiere of Jan Mul's Concerto for Piano.

The husband-wife team, who first performed together publicly at their wedding, now reside in Massachusetts, where Steigerwalt is an associate professor on the music faculty of Mount Holyoke College. Muller is a member of the music faculty at Amherst College.

The performance by Steigerwalt and Muller at Penn Alps will feature two pieces by Franz Schubert, Fantasy in F Minor, Opus 103/D.940 and Variations on a Theme from Herold's, John Corigliano's Gazebo Dances and Rhapsodie Espangole by Maurice Ravel. The concert is sponsored by the Penn Alps Restaurant and Crafts Shop.

Tickets for the music series are available at Main Street Books, Frostburg; the Book Mark'et, Oakland; the Book Center, Cumberland; Main Street Books, Keyser, W.Va.; and the Penn Alps Crafts Shop. Music Lover passes for multi-ticket discounts are available through Spruce Forest Artisan Village.

The next concert scheduled in the series will be presented by the Cygnus Piano Quartet on August 8. For more information and ticket reservations, persons may call Spruce Forest at 301-895-3332.

Alternative School Program Involves Multiple Agencies

An alternative school program is currently taking shape through the joint efforts of several Garrett County agencies. Information on the proposed plans for the curriculum being developed was presented to the Garrett County Board of Education at the July board meeting by Wilda Massi, director of pupil services.

The educational program, that will target high school students who have been recommended for expulsion, will pull together the efforts of the board of education, the bus contractors, the Office for Children, Youth, and Families, the Department of Social Services, the Department of Juvenile Justice, and the Garrett County Health Department.

The alternative school program will focus on a number of objectives, including reducing the county's high school drop-out rate, enabling students facing expulsion to continue to earn credits toward graduation, reducing community concerns regarding students who have been removed from day school, and limiting the need for referrals to other agencies.

Massi explained that the program would held at Southern High School, coinciding as far as possible with the regular day school calendar. One teacher and one assistant would staff the program, which would provide all core academic subjects, she said.

Interagency involvement would permit inclusion of behavior management and social skills training. The curriculum would provide opportunities for students to enhance life skills. "This will truly be a collaborative effort," Massi said.

Currently, funding for this alternative school program plan has been granted for one year. "I went to the local management board to ask for financial help. The board approved a grant for $50,000 for one year. Bob Stephens, who's on the LMB, was a great help to me in getting this approved," Massi said.

The program plans include evaluation criteria. Data will be reviewed to determine the success of the program by following up on students who return to their regular education programs at their respective schools; by compiling the number of disciplinary referrals of students in the alternative program; and by comparing the long-term recidivism rate, Massi stated.

GROCERY SHOPPING VIA HELICOPTER? While it appears such might be the case, in reality the West Virginia University Hospital's HealthNet "chopper," which was en route to Garrett County Memorial Hospital, had to make an emergency landing in the Oakland Food Lion parking lot early Monday morning. Heavy fog made it impossible for the pilot to see the landing site at the hospital, but the lights at Food Lion made the parking lot a safe spot to set down. The Oakland Volunteer Fire Department was called to assist in the landing, which was accomplished without incident. A Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad ambulance transported the patient — an infant — from Garrett Memorial to the helicopter, which then flew the child to Morgantown.

Police Report Three-Vehicle Mishap On I-68

A three-vehicle mishap Sunday afternoon on Interstate 68, east of Old Frostburg Road, resulted in the medical transport of four persons.

According to a report filed with Maryland State Police, Barrack W, McHenry, Kitty Valenti, 54, Medina, Ohio, was driving eastbound on I-68 at 3:28 p.m. when a vehicle driven by Albert McKinzie, 83, Frostburg, cut across her travel lane.

When Valenti tried to change lanes to avoid a collision, her vehicle struck a vehicle driven by Martha Weaver, 35, Wallace, W.Va. Northern Rescue Squad, and Eastern Garrett and Frostburg VFDs responded to the scene. Valenti and three passengers, all from Athens, Ohio, were taken to Cumberland Memorial Hospital. Valenti was admitted for treatment and the others were treated and released.

Police reported that McKinzie said he had fallen asleep. He was charged with negligent driving that resulted in the collision of two other vehicles.

Headlights Fail

A driver was injured in a two-vehicle accident on Route 669 Saturday night. Police reported that Faye C. Fisher, 68, Meyersdale, Pa., was northbound on Route 669 south of Locker Lane at 9:15 p.m when her headlights became inoperable. She allegedly continued to drive her car.

At the same time, Adam L. Maust, 16, Salisbury, Pa., was southbound on Route 669 and attempted to turn left onto Locher Lane. He reportedly did not see the Fisher vehicle. Maust's vehicle collided with the vehicle driven by Fisher.

Northern Rescue Squad and Grantsville VFD responded to the scene, and Fisher was transported to Meyersdale Hospital for treatment.

Gun, Drugs Found

A traffic stop on Route 40 near Keysers Ridge Saturday night resulted in the arrest of the driver on drug and weapon violations.

Police said David M. Riggin, 22, Uniontown, Pa., was arrested after being stopped at 11 p.m. The police found a .357 magnum revolver, suspected marijuana, and drug paraphernalia in the vehicle.

Riggin was taken to the Garrett County Jail and has since been released on $1,500 bond.

Bloodmobile To Make Two Visits

There will be two visits of the American Red Cross bloodmobile in Garrett County next week, as donors will be welcomed at Zion Lutheran Church in Accident on Monday and at the Kitzmiller fire hall next Friday, noon to 6 p.m. both days. Regional blood inventory levels remain critically low, according to the ARC, and all blood types are needed.

In order to be eligible to donate blood, a person must be at least 17 years of age, weigh a minimum of 105 pounds, be in generally good health, and must not have donated within the prior 56 days. Donor identification is required, so donors should bring their Red Cross donor card or driver's license to the bloodmobile.

Persons desiring more information may telephone 1-800-54BLOOD.

GGBA Members View Plans For Rt. 219 North

At this week's monthly meeting of the Greater Grantsville Business Association, members had the opportunity to review and discuss four alternate upgrade plans under consideration for the northern section of Route 219, which runs from Interstate 68 to the Pennsylvania border.

David Moe, president of the Garret County Chamber of Commerce, explained the plans and answered questions raised by group members. Moe underscored the importance of the involvement of the local business owners in the road project.

The maps delineate possible courses for expansion of Route 219, which intersects Route 40 in Grantsville. Major concerns voiced by GGBA members included the need to maintain access to the local businesses, limiting the amount of destruction to private property, and preservation of historic and natural sites.

Among the suggested routes on the maps was an overlay of the existing stretch of roadway with additional lanes. A new highway that would run to the east of the Hill Top area, across Meadow Mountain was also mapped out. Another alternative included a cloverleaf at the intersection of Routes 40 and 219.

Moe emphasized that no firm plans exist at this time and that all maps depict concepts only. Copies of the maps are on display in the Grantsville town office, and Moe encouraged all residents and business people to review them and comment on the proposals. Comments should be made in writing and may be given to town mayor Fred Holliday or sent to the State Highway Administration, Moe said.

In Loving Memorial of

Evelyn Fern Georg

God saw she was getting tired
and a cure was not to be,
So He put His arms around her
and whispered, "Come with me."
With tear-filled eyes
we watched her suffer and fade away

Although we loved her deeply,
we could not make her stay.
A golden heart stopped beating,
hard-working hands put to rest.
God broke our hearts to prove to us
He only takes the best.

MSP McHenry Barrack Wins Award, Praise

A letter received this week by Sgt. Wayne Paugh at Maryland State Police, Barrack W, McHenry, applauded Garrett County's success in the recent safety belt use campaign. The Maryland Committeee for Safety Belt Use Inc. and the State Highway Administration (SHA) not only praised the efforts of those involved in the campaign, but named Barrack W as a winner of a Maryland Pacesetter award.

Paugh said the recent campaign combined efforts of state police and Garrett County Sheriff's Office. "There were two surveys involved, which were conducted by the police. The survey was to determine the percentage of safety belt use. We had 80% compliance," Paugh stated.

Law enforcement officers in Garrett County have been focusing on compliance with the safety belt laws in order to reduce the severity of injuries resulting from motor vehicle accidents. "We have not had any fatalities on the highways in Garrett County this year," noted Paugh.

The Maryland Pacesetter award was granted to Barrack W for promoting the importance of safety belt use. "As a safety advocate, you make a significant contribution to your community. Your involvement and commitment are crucial to making Maryland's roadways a safer place for all of us," said Barbara Beckett, spokeswoman for the Maryland Committee for Safety Belt Use.

DOMESTIC VIOLENCE PREVENTION PROGRAM AWARDED — A plaque for outstanding achievement was presented this month from the Maryland attorney general's and lieutenant governor's Family Violence Council to officers of Garrett County's family violence prevention program. The award wee presented at the World Trade Center at the Inner Harbor. Accepting the plaque were Brenda Arnold, victim advocate; Lisa Thayer Welch, state's attorney; Lt. Larry Gnegy of the Garrett County Sheriff's Office and coordinator of the local program; Sheriff Dick Sanders; and Linda Spasail, the newly appointed executive director of the Domestic Violence/Sexual Assault Resource Center (or Dove Center). The Garrett County commissioners congratulated the officers this week during the monthly staff meeting. Pictured left to right are Major Gary Berkebile (chief deputy of the sheriff's office), Commissioners Wayne Johnson and Wayne Wilt, Gnegy, Arnold, Commissioner Gary Fratz, and the sheriff. The plaque is signed by Joseph Curran, Maryland's attorney general; and Lieutenant Governor Kathleen Kennedy Townsend.

Woman Sent To Jail For Writing Worthless Checks

A Barton woman will spend two years in the Maryland Department of Corrections for writing a bad check to a local car dealership. Elizabeth Ruth Ross, 21, was sentenced last week by Garrett County Circuit Court Judge James Sherbin.

Ross apparently wrote a check in August 1996 for over $20,000 and then drove away from the dealership in a new truck. She did not, however, have the funds in her checking account. The defendant had entered a guilty plea to the charge in December, and sentencing was then postponed until similar cases in Allegany County were completed. She was sentenced in that county to five years in jail for bad checks, forgery, and related charges, and apparently has numerous additional charges pending.

The two year term ordered by Sherbin is to run consecutively to the five years Ross is currently serving.

A Mountain Lake Park woman pleaded guilty in circuit court last week to the charge of marijuana possession. Sandra L. Craver, 29, was arrested in May by the Garrett County Narcotics Task Force after officers reportedly located marijuana in her home.

Sherbin accepted Craver's plea and ordered a pre-sentence investigation. He revoked bail and sent the defendant to the local jail pending the sentence hearing. As a first-time offender, Craver faces up to five years in jail and a fine of up to $15,000.

Burglary and theft charges against Terry A. Tasker, 35, Oakland, were dismissed by order of Lisa Thayer Welch, state's attorney. Welch explained that new information had come to the attention of law enforcement agencies as recently as last week and the case is being re-opened by the Garrett County Sheriff's Office for additional investigation.

The commissioners have held discussions with Gary Mullich, general services director, and the county attorney to determine the county's liabilities and responsibilities in connection with the county-owned airport. They voted unanimously to sign the resolution to allow the consumption of the different beers on the day of the event.

All proceeds of the festival will go toward SOS's effort to purchase the Oakland train station.

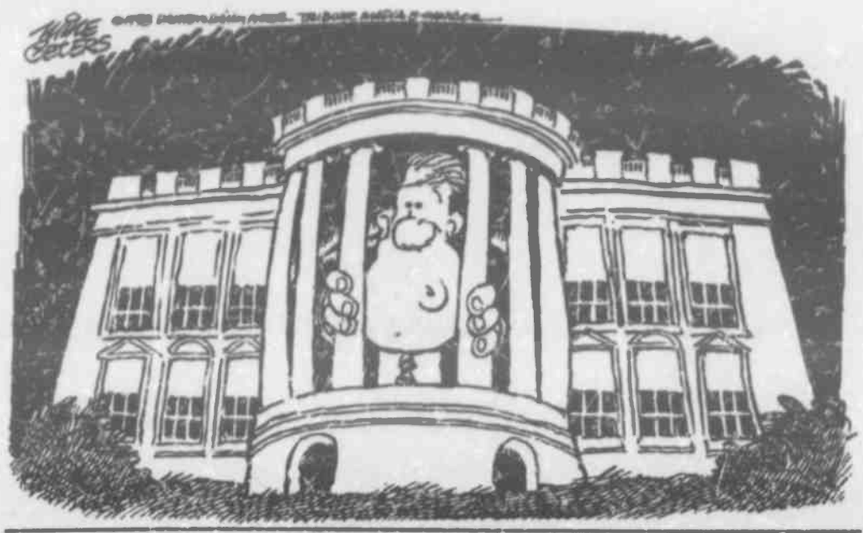
Valuing the Arts...

Several months ago we utilized this column to urge the Garrett County Board of Commissioners to include in the county budget, for the first time, some funding for the Garrett County Arts Council. To our utter delight, the commissioners responded favorably by earmarking $3,500 for the council for the current fiscal year. It is not a huge sum, but it was a courageous first step by the commissioners and a sign that they do recognize the value of the arts, even if only from an economic standpoint. So we extend our appreciation to the commissioners for this decision.

Then just this morning we were shocked to learn that our congressman, Roscoe Bartlett, voted in support of legislation to restore $98 million to the National Endowment for the Arts in the FY '99 federal budget. Rep. Bartlett has been outspoken against the NEA's liberal allocations of grants for some highly objectionable forms of art, but he nonetheless voted "aye" to maintain the agency. Although we haven't had time to learn why Bartlett voted the way he did, we also wish to thank him for his support.

Sadly, in our fast-paced, highly technological society, the valuing of the arts has signicantly diminished in this century. The arts are considered simply a pastime activity, or something one does just for entertainment. The talents of artistic people are not valued nearly as highly as the intellectual abilities of the scientist. The artist is considered by many as the oddball in our society. When cuts have to be made in education budgets, the arts are the first to go.



The great mistake, the great oversight, here is the failure to realize the absolute correlation between studying the arts with proficiency in reading, writing, math, and the sciences. It is a fact that children who study music, for example, perform better in math. The ancient Greeks, among many other earlier cultures, understood this. They realized that a working knowledge in the fine arts — music, drama, poetry, dance, painting, sculpture, literature, and architecture — was crucial for advanced perceptual and conceptual development.

Writer, lecturer, and former actress Alexandra York, who is the founding president of American Renaissance for the Twenty-First Century, said it this way: "Why should the teaching of fine arts become the fourth 'R'? Because to teach art is to teach life.... Students of art become students of life. Once they experience the arduous bliss of creating art, some will pursue it as a profession, of course. But the purpose of art study is not to make artists of our young people; it is to help them become complete human beings."

She explains that art teaches people to observe reality ("In order to paint a tree, a student really has to look at it."), make judgments, be aware of the human condition, contemplate and express values, think critically, and unite reason and emotion.

She also points out that, unlike many things, art is something that can be created and enjoyed throughout life. "Our bodies will age, and our physical prowess will diminish, but our minds and our imagination need never grow old. Practical knowledge of the arts can keep us forever active mentally and emotionally. We can forever learn, grow, and advance — the hallmarks of youth."

With the new millennium, we hope there truly is a renaissance of the arts in our society, particularly in how the arts are understood, valued, and appreciated.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

How did the black bears get here?

In 1986 Delegate Edwards sponsored HB 1614 which became law to protect the black bear in the state of Maryland. In two more years the sportsmen saw an increase in the black bear populations. We found out that Pennsylvania Fish and Game started transporting their problem bears to the southwest corner of Pennsylvania.

I see a need for the sportsmen and farmers to know this, and the public has a right to know who created this problem.

To the Editor:

In my opinion nobody should smoke, but since people do, I'm writing this letter to inform you about the serious dangers of smoking. Smoking could ruin your health, appearance, and your enjoyment of life. I strongly recommend that you read the following information.

It's hard to believe, but each year in the U.S. alone, smoking kills 390,000 people. For instance, smoking causes lung cancer, oral cancer, kidney cancer, stomach cancer, and many more harmful cancers that you probably have never heard of before. As a result of smoking, your risk of having a heart attack is increased by 50%. In addition, tobacco contains over 100 different poisons and over 2,500 known chemicals. It's hard to imagine, but it's for real!

There is no doubt that smoking can ruin your enjoyment of life. For instance, second-hand smoking can kill your best friend. Just picture what it would be like living your whole life without your best friend. It would be terrible! If you smoke and you get emphysema, you would have to lug around a heavy oxygen tank. Sounds like fun, huh? Well, it isn't. Obviously, smoking causes you to have yellow teeth, bad breath, and it makes you smell like smoke. Smoking kills taste buds, too. Wouldn't it be miserable not being able to enjoy life because of smoking?

Your appearance isn't everything, but it is important. As a result of using tobacco products, you can ruin your gums. You could even get hairy black tongue! Smoking also leads to bloodshot eyes. Smoking wrinkles the skin and makes you look older than you really are.

In any event, after reading this, you should look at smoking from a different angle. As you can see, smoking really does ruin your health, appearance, and your enjoyment of life.

Sincerely,
Nicole Treasler

To the Editor:

Your editorial "Too many hours?..." was excellent! Volunteers are often unsung heros and heroines! My family and I have been recipients many times through the years of our rescue squads and we are deeply grateful to not only Garrett County squads but to those in W.Va. and Pa.

We truly understand "volunteerism" whether it be fire fighters, rescue squads, or the lesser publicized ones. It takes a very special type of person to be a "committed volunteer."

I was thrilled to read also of the very special awards to Garrett County-reared natives! It is so heartening to learn of such success!

I have been so pleased to know of George Falter's work via G.C./Care Inc. concerning the "Super Highway" plans for our area. He is such a "diligent volunteer" to garner the facts and present them so very well. May God bless you George and Conrad Adler and all the folks who are really working to try to prevent more assault taking up hundreds of acres, with miles more of cemented highways in our beautiful Garrett County! After they are here it is too late to cry. When will we all learn what "park" really is?

Having been a dedicated "volunteer for the disadvantaged," primarily the mentally ill for over 40 years, I have been particularly distressed this weekend over the horrible "capitol carnage." Again, an untreated paranoid schizophrenic person is apparently the culprit, as was the horrible President Reagan/Mr. Brady tragedy many years ago. Will we never learn from history? Will we ever remember? Will we ever treat ill human beings equally? Will we ever try to learn and or educate ourselves concerning our less fortunate "brain disordered human beings" who cannot help themselves any more than the cerebral palsy, mentally retarded or any other disabled person? "If they have the proper medication and it is properly administered daily, they don't get out of control!"

We have all the rest of the population to blame for not caring about the mentally ill, who dismiss them as less human than others and not worthy of the real care they need, through no fault of their own! When will we wake up and be a truly Christian nation? When will we truly care and not discriminate? There is a law against discrimination. Will that be the course of action made necessary? Garrett County has to decide — soon!

This is my opinion.

Thank you,
Louise V. Harvey

To the Editor:

In regard to an article in Newsweek from July 27, 1998, "Nursing-Home Verdicts: There's Guilt All Around," yes, families do feel guilty when we have to put loved ones in a nursing home, even when they're represented to be rehabilitative care.

This was the case with my mother who had a stroke and was given intensive therapy, with good result, in a special facility. She then was transferred to a nursing home where the balance of her 100 days of therapy would be given in a less intensive mode. The problem was that the therapy billed to Medicare wasn't given and mother was forced to walk on a paralyzed leg that needed a brace, according to the diagnosis of the home's own therapists.

No brace was fitted or provided and they broke mother's ankle. And, this was just one evidence of abuse and neglect that we observed by attending her daily ourselves. We moved her to another facility and determined that we would not pay for her last days of care in the original facility, but we did not sue.

The institution filed collection proceedings against the family and the estate and still we did not sue.

Why? Because elder care is big business, "projected to grow by 400% in the next 30 years," according to this article, and these facilities will get paid in one way or another. Any large settlement would simply have been tacked on to the bills of succeeding residents, diminishing their assets at a more rapid pace than occurs now.

The Newsweek story focuses on the feelings of guilt of the family and the guilt of poor care by the nursing homes as evidenced by the number of successful lawsuits being filed against nursing homes. Plaintiffs' attorneys see this as a growth industry for them, as well. One firm in Tampa has huge billboards posted inviting families to sue.

We wrote letters, involved our U.S. senator, and finally negotiated a settlement, part of which was an agreement to provide better care and more adequate staffing within the facility. We have no way to monitor that this in fact has happened, but we did not agree to absolve the facility of its responsibility for Mother's injury.

Lawsuits only add cost to all goods and services. Settlements do not make the pain that a loved one has endured go away, nor do they relieve the guilt of the family for having turned to such a facility. Lawsuits just cost money and make the lawyers rich. Why else would the law firm in Tampa take to billboard advertising for so specific a claim?

Linda C. Irvin-Craig

SEASON FOR PICNICS

The other day I was visiting somebody in town. I parked my car along the street. As soon as I got out of my car, I could smell the happy smoke of the barbecue grill. The fragrance was shared with everybody on the block. I confess, it made me hungry.

Summer is the season for picnics. The defining holidays of summer—Memorial Day, Independence Day, and Labor Day—beg for picnics, but a picnic is in order anytime during this season. It can be the backyard picnic centered upon the grill. It can be the romantic picnic spread upon a red-and-white checked cloth with a river valley for a view.

Picnics can be as simple as peanut butter and jelly sandwiches and as elaborate as fried chicken with all the salads of summer— macaroni, potato, cucumber, tomato—along with a pot of baked peas and plenty of iced tea and lemonade to wash it down.

We have already had our share of picnics this year. The softball picnic celebrated the achievement of the girls who had batted and fielded so well this year. Our second daughter's team was undefeated.

That was a hamburger and hot dog picnic in a state park. There were a dozen pasta salads, each surprisingly different. I discovered that some of the girls I had watched play were daughters of people with whom—more than 25 years ago—I had gone to school.

There was lots of conversation too, most of which began with softball, but often ended on the far corners of the conversational map. One fascinating chat came near the end of the picnic with a man who is a new neighbor and to whom I had often waved, but whom I had never met.

We talked about local politics, and made our way eventually to the year 2000 computer problem. He told me about people he knew, and knew of, who were preparing what seemed to me rather drastic steps in preparation for the impending calamity, at least as they expect it.

Another picnic was an annual affair held by a neighbor in the other direction. The food was more lavish, with some of the guests bringing pork and beef roasts to be cooked on the grill. Someone else had brought a fabulous crab dip. I felt a little chintzy as I set down the bowl of cole slaw I had made, but it did go awfully well with the pork.

Volleyball and horse shoes provided the core physical entertainment at that picnic, though a number of people went swimming and even boating in the pond next door.

Many family reunions take shape as picnics. My mother's barn was site of one such family gathering. Tables were set up the entire length of the barn and were covered with a bounty of delicious food. Some of the family danced to the strains of a local blue grass group, while others allowed the music to serve as background for their hearkening back to good old days.

In this surfeit of picnics there are still some to come. Most notably our Sunday school and church picnic is ahead of us. As pastor I will probably man the grill again.

There is a picnic grounds which I pass on my to-ing and fro-ing. It is maintained by a Lions Club. Over the years of my life I have passed it occasionally when the Lions were holding one of their famous chicken barbecues. Most of the time, however, it sits empty. The Lions care for this little place so well—pavilion well maintained and the grass always mowed—that it invites picnickers to stop.

As a child it was a kind of fantasy to me to stop there. As an adult I sometimes pack a picnic when I know I shall be going that way. I stop there, and eat my meal, physically alone but spiritually surrounded by all the picnickers who have ever stopped there and all the picnickers who have ever revelled in eating a meal out of doors.

VENUSIANS 1, MARTIANS 0

by Melodee Hill

I recently noticed that author John Gray, who wrote Men Are From Mars, Women Are From Venus, has a new book on the best seller list. The book's title (which I would gratuitously plug if only I could remember what it was) would suggest that perhaps it deals with more of the same subject matter as the first. I vaguely remember thinking, "Hmm, this book sounds like more of the same," which is why I can say I think it deals with more of the same. Unfortunately, I haven't read either of these popular books, so I don't actually know what they are about, but I'm guessing they are about the differences between men and women and how to make those differences work (or at least not be so much trouble). I have an observation that might help enlighten you, but remember the saying about getting what you pay for!

There are certain situations when men are thinking, "When and how often can I use my tool?" and in many of the same situations women are thinking, "How soon can we get this over with?" Men are also thinking, "I can probably take a nap as soon as this is over" while the women are anxious for more of the same. Of course I'm referring to those ubiquitous household do-it-yourself projects. What were you thinking of?

Anyway, most (some, I don't want to generalize or exaggerate every single time) men love to have tools. Even if they hardly ever get used or the men, in fact, don't even know how to use them, they just "gotta have 'em." A lot (some, for the millionth time!) of jobs around the house don't really require any tool and certainly not the handy dandy gadget with 30 functions and multi-channel capability. Sometimes certain men will put off a job if the right tool is not sitting out on the counter where they left it last time. "Sorry, honey I can't find my ratcheting, 3/4 reflective spanner or my autographed Bob Vila level with the voice-activated micrometer, I guess I'll just have to hang that picture some other time." You'll have the kid's graduation party before his first grade picture gets hung on the wall.

Hypothetically speaking, let's take the case of a small towel rack that hangs above the bathtub. Let's suppose this towel bar (that could be used to hold wash cloths) is starting to hang out of the wall. The normal position for such a towel bar would be hanging from the wall but when the screws get loose, it hangs out of the wall and threatens to fall into the bathtub. Hopefully no one's head is relaxing peacefully under it when gravity takes over.

Well, one of the people from Venus just casually mentions to the other person, who hypothetically happens to be from Mars, that the towel bar is loose and needs to be screwed back into the wall. The Martian immediately starts talking about drills, extension cords, Phillips and flatheads. A few weeks later (the only time anyone ever remembered this towel bar was when they were dripping wet in the shower and very few people have their tool belts on then) the Venusian, who did not happen to be in the shower, put a few drops of super glue on each screw and tightened them into the wall using only (gasp!) a Venusian fingernail.

And what exactly does this prove? Not really much of anything, except that I read a lot of Dagwood and Blondie cartoons when I was growing up. Forget Maggie and Jiggs or Andy Capp—they had bigger problems than leaky faucets. I watched TV, too, but I can't recall that the Cleavers or the Nelsons ever had to "fix" their perfect houses. Also, you can get advice about anything from anybody practically any time!

New Component For Adventure Sports Presented To GCC Board

The Adventure Sports (AVS) Program at Garrett Community College, one of the college's fastest growing programs that has attracted national and international attention, will add a new component next spring to enhance the business skills of its students while providing equipment to meet the AVS program's specialized needs. The Adventure Education Center was publicly unveiled during a recent open meeting of the GCC board of trustees by Mike Logsdon, founder and director of the AVS program at GCC.

The center, to be housed in the college's new signature programs building, will provide a three-pronged approach of equipment rental, retail sales, and the training of guides. Its goal will be the preparation of the best possible pool of job applicants for adventure sports-oriented employers, including suppliers, outfitters, and guiding services.

"The Adventure Education Center will enable us to expand our preparation of AVS students for the real worlds of guiding adventuresports expeditions and the management of businesses that support those activities," Logsdon said recently. "It will offer our students a unique opportunity to put into practice what they are learning, making them more attractive to potential employers."

Building on the AVS trademark of experiential education, the Adventure Education Center will contain an equipment rental center and a retail adventure sports specialty equipment store, both scheduled to open in the center's first year and be staffed and maintained by AVS students under the supervision of Logsdon and fellow AVS professors. A third component of the center, The Adventure Education Guide Service, is slated to get under way the following year.

"The rental and retail store programs are designed to meet the equipment needs of our own Adventure Sports student body," Logsdon said. "We are not going to be competing with local adventure sports equipment providers for the public's business.

"The rental program will make the specialized equipment needed for our activities available to the students only," Logsdon continued. "The only exception to this policy will be if there's a specialized piece of equipment, such as snowshoes, that's not available for public rental through any local businesses." He went on to point out that making such specialized equipment available could build interest in the full range of outdoor recreation activities Garrett County has to offer. "If such equipment is eventually provided by local vendors, then we would phase out the public rental of that equipment and maintain it strictly for our own students."

The rental program would also provide affordable equipment for students to frequently practice the many outdoor skills they learn in the AVS program, according to Logadon, as well as hands-on experience in the management of the business end of the facility and in the maintenance and upkeep of the equipment.

The retail operation would operate under much the same principle as the rental program. "The AVS store would provide specialized equipment that our students need for our activities. The main offering would be the highly specialized garments they would need for extreme cold-weather camping, as well as a small selection of specialty equipment and gear that they would have a hard time getting locally. We have to order much of our equipment from Wyoming, and if we maintained our own stock we'd be able to meet the equipment needs of our students as well as providing them with the retail and business management experience many AVS businesses are looking for."

The Adventure Education Guide Service will provide two functions: guide services for individuals or groups desiring such services, and the hauds-ou training of student leaders who will have the opportunity to plan, direct, and guide the expeditions. "We prepare our students to lead outings in the wilderness," Logsdon commented, "and it only makes sense to have them as ready as possible to step into those positions upon graduation. Client enjoyment and, more importantly, client safety depend on it.

"To give an example of how the Adventure Education Guide Service would work, let's say we had a student who was gung-ho in the field of orienteering; we would have the student plan and lead a half-day or full-day guided orienteering experience, teaching interested members of the public the basics of orienteering. This would give the student practical experience in a range of areas connected with adventure sports outings, including planning, guiding, logistics, and risk management, just to name a few."

The GCC board of trustees showed its support for Logsdon's proposal by voting to fund the center with a loan to get the program started. "The board agreed with Professor Logsdon that the Adventure Sports Education Center would be extremely worthwhile in providing AVS students with real-world experience," said Michelle Quinn, dean of administration. "They provided $42,000 in seed money for the center, which will be paid back to the college over the next three to five years." Logsdon said that the money to pay back the college would come from the center itself, primarily through the funds generated by the rental equipment facility.

NEW OFFICERS

The board of trustees elected new officers for the 1998-1999 session. Douglas Sites was elected chairman to replace Charles "Bus" Bender, and Rob Michael was elected vice-chairman, which had been Sites's position this past year. Both Sites and Michaels are Oakland-area residents, and both men are graduates of Garrett Community College.

ENROLLMENT REPORT

The enrollment figures for the fall semester stand as follows: as of July 29 the headcount was 461 students, compared to 341 students on July 15 of last year. The full-time equivalency number stood at 179 as of this July 15, compared to 139 on the same date last year. These figures were seen as good news by the board, which had expected a slight dropoff in enrollment figures as the wave of students that had enrolled as a result of the Bausch & Lomb plant closing for a large part graduated this May.

Oakland Man Is Injured In One-Vehicle Accident

An Oakland man who apparently fell asleep at the wheel was injured when his vehicle ran off Garrett Highway early Friday morning and into a ditch.

Fratz Announces Candidacy For Commissioner

Gary E. Fratz recently announced his Democratic candidacy for the position of county commissioner in the Second District of Garrett County, an office he currently holds. Fratz was selected by Governor Glendening to fill the vacated position in July 1997 and has recently expressed his desire to continue in his position of "proudly serving the people of Garrett County."

As a life-long resident of Garrett County, Fratz spent his youth helping with the family-owned farm supply business near Accident. After high school, he attended the University of Maryland, followed by serving three years in the United States Army, two of which he spent stationed in Germany. After his discharge from the military, he returned to Garrett County to work for the family business. Fratz later began work for Harbison Walker Refractories as a production supervisor and retired after 24 years of service with the company. Following his retirement, he has spent his time operating a beef cattle and crop farm south of Accident.

Fratz has been married to his wife Kathleen for 40 years and they have four children and nine grandchildren. The couple has recently assumed the responsibility of raising a niece and nephew following the death of their father, Wayne Fratz, in 1996.

Fratz has been an active member of the community. He is a life-long member and former congregational president of Zion Lutheran Church, a 10-year member of the Board of Trustees of Garrett Community College, a 35-year member and past president of the Garrett County Farm Bureau. He served on the Garret County Fair Board for 25 years and is a member of the Accident Volunteer Fire Department, former president of the Northern High School Parent Teacher Association, and a past member of the Tri County Council. He presently serves on the Garrett County Development Corporation.

During his current role as Garrett County commissioner, Fratz says he has gained extensive experience serving on the Maryland Association of County Legislative Committee in Annapolis where he represented the people of Garrett County. "Mr. Fratz worked diligently to represent the residents of Garrett County with the primary focus of improving the economy of Garrett County by attracting new service and manufacturing employers to Garrett County. He has expressed his desire to continue to serve the residents of the county," stated a campaign spokesperson.

Kathleen Fratz is serving as his campaign treasurer.

DNR Expanding Efforts In Dealing With Black Bears

The Wildlife and Heritage Division (WHD) of the Maryland Department of Natural Resources is planning to expand its efforts to assist western Maryland residents that have chronic black bear problems. According to WHD, state wildlife specialists will be experimenting with new techniques to reduce problem bear situations in selected instances throughout Garrett County for the remainder of 1998, and will determine a course of action for 1999 based on an evaluation of this year's techniques.

One technique that will be employed will be aversion conditioning in instances where bears have developed a routine of nuisance behavior and previous recommendations by WHD have not minimized the problems. Aversion conditioning is an effort to change a problem bear's behavior and can involve trapping, spraying with pepper spray, shooting bears with rubber buckshot, or shooting shell crackers at bears. These techniques have been utilized by other states with bear problems, and some states report these techniques to be very successful.

"A bear is a creature of habit," said Steve Bittner, WHD forest game biologist. "If a bear becomes accustomed to getting into trash for food, for instance, it will continue to feed around garbage until it learns otherwise. If a habitual garbage raiding bear is trapped, pepper sprayed, shot at by trained professionals, etc., it is hoped that the bear will remember this unpleasant experience and not return or do what caused the unpleasantness.

"Some people may think that rubber buckshot and pepper spray are inhumane ways to treat a bear," Bittner continued, "but inflicting pain in response to a particular behavior has proven to be successful in changing the unwanted behavior. Discussions with biologists from other states indicate that this aversion therapy can be extremely beneficial in changing bear behavior."

As the summer continues black bears will continue to present a challenge to WHD staff, Bittner added. Nuisance bear complaints have been received in all of western Maryland, although the majority of activity occurs in Garrett County. Sows with cubs are foraging throughout their summer range, and reports of sows and cubs have been received from as far east as Frederick County.

"Bear activity has not been out of the ordinary so far this summer," said Bittner, who added that WHD has received many reports of bears, with garbage raiding bears seeming to be the leading complaint once again. "DNR has been working with a refuse company to develop ways to minimize bear/garbage problems around Deep Creek Lake since late spring, and it is hoped that a strategy will be worked out in the near future," he concluded.

Fund-Raiser Set To Benefit Young Leukemia Patient

Pleasant View Baptist Church, located two miles south of Oakland on Route 219, will be hosting a craft/bake/yard sale to benefit Becky Diller on Friday, Aug. 7, from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m., and Saturday, Aug. 8, from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. Donations of crafts for the fund-raising sale are being accepted by the event organizers, who are listed at the end of this article.

The young leukemia patient recently underwent a bone marrow transplant and is still recovering at the Children's Hospital of Pittsburgh. "Becky's doing pretty well," her father John said in a telephone interview on Tuesday. "She's been improving since she was released from the Intensive Care Unit a few days ago. She was on a respirator in the ICU for four days after fluid built up on her heart and lungs. The doctors said that this was probably a side effect of the chemotherapy drugs.

"The bone marrow transplant seems to be working well," Diller continued, "and her immune system counts are improving. She was down for a bit, and it can get hard at times to keep her spirits up because of pains in her stomach, but Becky's a real fighter. She just started talking again a few days ago, and is alert and aware, and loves her presents."

Diller added that his daughter could be released from the hospital in a month at best, but it may well be longer before she comes home to Garrett County. "We'd like to thank everyone for their prayers and support," he said. "We are very grateful for everything that's being done for Becky."

For further information on the fund-raising event, or to donate craft items for sale, interested persons may contact Bobbie and Gary Beckman at 301-334-3029, or the Pleasant View Baptist Church at 301-334-8515.

Split With Bridgeport Gives Oakland Pen-Mar Season Title

A doubleheader split with third-place Bridgeport ended the Pen-Mar League regular season for the Oakland Oaks this week, and the local team finished atop the league's standings for the third consecutive year by amassing an impressive 20-8 record.

The Oaks' mark was earned the old-fashioned way, according to Coach Terry Helbig. "We set 20 wins as our goal at the beginning of the season and achieved that goal," he said. "The league has been so competitive, we knew it would be tough all season, and there was no game that could have been won with less than a 100 percent effort." This weekend the opening games of the Pen-Mar playoffs loom ahead for Helbig's crew, which finished two games ahead of second-place Fairmont, the defending post-season champs.

Oakland demolished Bridgeport in Sunday's opener at Alderson-Broaddus College in Philippi, W.Va., by a score of 16-6.

At Alderson Broaddus College

Game 1

Oakland	110	080	6-16	5	1
Bridgeport	010	023	0- 6	5	5

Justin Foutz and Alan Sebold; Garan, Richards (5), Harrison (7) and Fernandez

Game 2

Oakland	000	001	1-2	5	0
Bridgeport	010	000	2-3	5	0

Kaenar, Fitzwater (7) and Fitzwater, Finch (7); Jeremy Richards and Woodman.

HR - David Fragale (Bridgeport; Ernie Galusky (Oakland).

The Oaks were up by a 2-1 margin when they went on an eight-run tear in the fifth inning. Bridgeport countered with a pair of runs in the bottom of the inning, then added three more runs in the sixth inning to pull within four runs. Oakland put the hosts away with a six-run seventh inning, and Justin Foutz shut out Bridgeport in the bottom of the inning to ice the victory.

Foutz went the distance to pick up the win and clinch an undefeated 7-0 regular season mark. At the plate the Oaks' balanced attack was led by Aaron Taylor and Jimmy Pamepinto, each of whom drove in three runs on three singles, and Jeremy Fitzwater, who doubled and singled to drive in three runs as well. Ryan Folk doubled and singled to add an RBI. Bridgeport was led by Koly, whose three hits included a double as he drove in a pair of runs. Starting pitcher Jeff Geran took the loss.

The nightcap was a closely fought contest that went down to the wire as Bridgeport won a 3-2 squeaker.

Bridgeport opened the scoring with a run in the leadoff inning, then both teams were shut down until Oakland scored a run in each of the sixth and seventh innings to go up 2-1. In the bottom of the seventh inning, down by a run with baserunners on second and third, a Bridgeport batter hit a ball that went into foul territory before leaving the infield; however, the ball hit the grass lip of the outer edge of the basepath and caromed back into the infield where it was properly counted as a single. The Bridgeport runner on third, who had broken for the plate immediately, scored the game's tying run. The other runner advanced to third base and subsequently scored on a fielding error.

Oaks' pitcher Mark Keener gave up only a pair of hits in the first six innings before being lifted in favor of Fitzwater. Ernie Galusky belted a solo homer and a single, and Taylor added an RBI single for Oakland. Bridgeport was paced by a complete-game effort by pitcher Richards, a member of the rotation at Ohio University. David Fragle cracked a one-run home run and a single for the victors.

Consistency Key To Oaks' Success, Says Coach Helbig

The Oakland Oaks enter the Pen-Mar League playoffs this weekend seeded number one, and head coach Terry Helbig credits the consistency of a core cadre of players who have played in every game of the team's league-leading 20-8 regular season. Helbig himself was singled out by league president John Culp, who this week said, "I congratulate all of the managers and teams for an outstanding effort this season. Special congratulations to Terry Helbig, who has been with the Pen-Mar League for 25 years."

The modest coach gave credit for the Oaks' fine season to his ballplayers as he said, "We're in first place primarily because of five players, Ryan Folk, Ernie Galusky, Alan Sebold, Jeremy Fitzwater, and Jinuny Pamepinto, who haven't missed a game all year," Helbig's sluggers helped form a "taurderers' row" for the Oaks, as opposing pitchers had to deal with the first four consecutively, with Folk leading off, followed by Galusky, Sebold, and cleanup hitter and league batting champ Fitzwater, while Pamepinto batted ninth.

Folk, a graduate of Northern High School, "is recognized as one of the best centerfielders in the league and is a very aggressive baserunner," Helbig said. This fall the Grantsville native will enter his senior season under Coach Phil Caruso at Frostburg State University.

Third-year Oak Galusky "is the best second baseman in the league," Helbig commented. "Ernie makes big league plays at second base, is very intelligent, and is a great hitter to boot." A native of Masontown, W.Va., and a graduate of Preston High School, Galusky begins his senior year at Davis and Elkins College this fall.

Power-hitting catcher Sebold, of Grantsville, "is one of the leading hitters in the league," said Helbig, "and the best defensive catcher without question." The NHS grad, who graduated from FSU this spring, was two-time Bobcat MVP and drew the attention of major-league scouts throughout his high school and college careers.

Batting fourth was Fitzwater, "one of the most versatile players on the team and perhaps in the league," Helbig commented. "We played him at shortstop, pitcher, and catcher, and he was just outstanding at each position." Winner of the 1998 Pen-Mar League batting title, the Oakland native and Southern High School graduate just completed his career for Coach Ed Wildeson and the Lakers of Garrett Community College.

Pamepinto "is an all-around athlete," said Helbig. "At GCC he played basketball for two years, no baseball, but he is a solid rightfielder for us and has worked hard to develop into a fine hitter." The Oakland native and SHS graduate will enter his senior year at FSU this fall.

The Oaks' coach also had praise for several other team standouts, chief among them being the multi-talented Joey DiSimone and undefeated pitcher Justin Foutz.

"Joey can play any position we need him to fill," Helbig said, "and batted fifth for most of the year." Another Oakland native and SHS graduate, DiSimone was awarded the Skip Cook Memorial Award as the best baseball player in the area for his senior-year performance under Rams' Coach Jim Bosley.

Foutz went 7-0 for the season, accounting for over a third of Oakland's victory total. The Keyser, W.Va., native "is one of the hardest working kids I've ever seen," said Helbig. "His work ethic complements his 91-mile-an-hour fastball." Foutz starts his freshman year at Potomac State College this fall.

Other mainstays of Oakland's pitching rotation included Howie Lewis, "a solid starter," who formerly attended GCC and now hurls for Davis and Elkins; five-year Oaks veteran and "solid pitcher" Kent Taylor; and Mark Keener, "a basketball player at Wayneaburg College in Pennsylvania who has played for us for three years."

Helbig concluded by saying, "We work closely with the American Legion program of Coach Bosley and Coach Phil Carr, who are some of the best baseball teachers around. This allows some of our players to play for both the Oaks and the Legion team, and get in approximately 50 games a summer against top-flight competition. That means extra work for the pitchers and extra hitting time for the batters, and the extra work really pays off.

"Still," Helbig concluded, "the pool of baseball talent consistently produced at all levels all over Garrett County is truly amazing."

Pen-Mar Playoffs Begin Saturday; Oaks Top Seed

The Pen-Mar Baseball League playoffs kick off this weekend and continue the following weekend. The Oakland Oaks, holders of the league's top regular season record with a 20-8 mark, will be one of the field of competitors looking to knock off defending champs Fairmont, who came in second for the season with an 18-10 record.

The first round of playoff games gets under way at 1 p.m. on Saturday, Aug. 1, as Morgantown hosts Cumberland at Valley View Field, and Hyndman visits Bridgeport at Frank Loria Field at the same time.

The second round follows that same afternoon at 3:30 p.m. as the winner of the Cumberland/Morgantown game goes up against the Oakland Oaks at Valley View for the first game of a best of three series. At the same time, the winner of the Hyndman/Bridgeport contest takes on Fairmont in the first game of a best of three series.

The action of Sunday, Aug. 2, begins at 2 p.m., when the second game of the Cumberland/Morgantown winner versus Oakland series kicks off at Donahue Field in south Cumberland. This game will immediately be followed by another game between the two teams if the series has to go to three games. Also at 2 p.m., at Rozier Field in Fairmont the second game of the Hyndman/Bridgeport winner versus Fairmont contest will get under way. That match-up will immediately be followed by another game between the two teams if the series has to go to three games.

The two teams that emerge victorious from the first round will meet next weekend for the best of three championship series at a location yet to be determined. A single game kicks off the series at 2 p.m. on Saturday, Aug. 8, and on Sunday, Aug. 9, the second game will also get under way at 2 p.m. Sunday's match-up could stretch into a doubleheader if the two teams split their first two contests against each other.

The playoffs promise to provide high-quality competition and many exciting moments, according to Pen-Mar League president John Culp. "This is the most balanced league we've experienced in my 11 years as president [and] I genuinely believe any of the six teams in the playoffs could win the championship. I congratulate all of the managers and teams for an outstanding effort this season," said Culp.

Ram Football Physicals Set

All student athletes who plan to participate in the football program at Southern High School for the 1998 season should report to the school gymnasium on Thursday, Aug. 13, for physicals and to receive equipment, according to Tom Woods, head coach.

Incoming seniors should report at 5:30 p.m., followed by juniors at 6, sophomores at 6:30, and freshmen at 7. Team physician Dr. Dan Miller and his staff will conduct free physicals for all athletes. Prospects must bring with them a physical form that has the parental side completed. Those players who miss this opportunity will have to secure their own physicals before being permitted to begin practice.

To Hold Wiffle Ball Tournament

The Terra Alta Yout League will sponsor a wiffl ball tournament for adult on Saturday, Aug. 15, at the Terra Alta Park. The entry fee is $10 per person, and participants must be at least 18 years old. There is a 12-person limit for the teams.

For more information, persons may contact Steve Sypolt at 304-789-6333 or Ima Thomas at 304-789-2629.

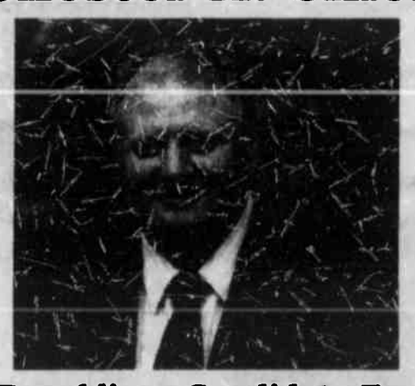
Baby Bottle Tooth Decay

Your baby and toddler are not immune to tooth decay. In fact, this is one of the most vulnerable times for cavity development with your child. We have seen 3-year old children requiring thousands of dollars worth of dental treatment.

As a parent, your habits will go a long way in determining early cavity formation.

High risk habits for cavity formation include:
1. Sleeping with the baby bottle containing anything but water.
2. Prolonged "comforting" nighttime nursing.
3. Dipping the pacifier in honey or sweets.

Remember, you will care for your child more than anyone. You must instruct grandparents and other caregivers with proper habits.



Proper daily feeding habits, daily cleaning, fluoride, and regular visits with your dentist will help to keep your child smiling and pain free.

I believe the taxpayers are being cheated when we see these personalized marked police cars. By being unmarked the sheriff's car in itself becomes a deterrent to crime and wrong doers. SANDY DOUGLASS MEMORIAL INVITATIONAL REGATTA IS SAILED IN LIGHT AIR

By Dan Muse

A regatta is always an occasion for sailboat racers, but the Sandy Douglass Invitational Regatta is, for us, the major event of the year. Sandy Douglass was, of course, the designer and first builder of the Flying Scot, who established his manufacturing facility here in Garrett County. Sandy died a few years ago, but we all remember him.

An invitational regatta is one in which racing sailors are invited from off our lake to come and compete; we had 10 visiting boats and they did quite well.

The air was light on Saturday for the first race and it blew from every direction. In fact, the Scots popped their spinnakers right after the start of the first race on a leg that was supposed to be to windward. The regatta was scheduled for five races, three on Saturday and two on Sunday, but with the light air they were only able to sail two races on Saturday.

There was a protest arising from an incident in the second race. When a sailboat protests one or more other boats in a race they fly a red flag from their shroud, inform the protested boat(s) by hailing them, and inform the race committee immediately after the race. Then the affected skippers fill out a standard protest form, on which they write out their account of what happened in the incident. After all racing is finished for that day, a hearing is held by a pre-appointed committee, at which both versions of the incident are heard from the participants, as well as any witnesses.

This protest involved rights at a leeward mark. The rules state that if an inside boat has an overlap when the first boat reaches an imaginary two-boat length circle around the mark, then the first boat must give the overlapped inside boat room to round the mark, including room to jibe if necessary. (Thus, of course, letting the inside boat get ahead.) An overlap is when the bow of the boat behind is ahead of an imaginary line from the transom of the boat ahead.

Since both the overlap condition and the two-boat length demarcation are subject to eyeball estimates, under moving conditions there are often differences of opinion out on the water during a race. The rules state further that the burden of proof is on the boat claiming the overlap, so that if there is no impartial witness to the event, the inside boat tries to round inside at his peril. When I find myself in that inside position with an overlap, I ask for room; if denied, I go outside. Good sporting sailors will give room when it's due.

In this case, the boat skippered by MacMillan was ahead, with boats skippered by Harry Carpenter and Tom Johnson both claiming inside room. MacMillan claimed to have hailed the other boats that they did not have an overlap at the two-boat length circle, but they came inside and contact was made. It happened there was an impartial witness supporting MacMillan's version, so that Johnson and Carpenter were disqualified.

There was a tie for first place in the A Fleet between our local champion John Meredith and Graham Hall. This tie was resolved in Hall's favor. John Meredith has a sailing family; his niece, Meredith Dodd, with her grandmother, Barbara Meredith, won the B Fleet and his other niece, Ashley Dodd, crewed for Graham Hall. And losing to Graham Hall is an honor. Hall is a nationally known racing sailor who has served as the U.S. Olympic Sailboat Racing Team's coach and is the author of many books and articles on sailing.

Last week Harry Carpenter finished 10th in the Flying Scot Nationals, a very respectable result. It is interesting to note that the theme of the Flying Scot National Regatta this year was honoring Don Hott, who has sailed in all 40 years of national regattas... since their inception. Don and his wife Charlotte are from Keyser, W.Va., and sail regularly in Deep Creek, racing out of the Deerhaven Yacht Club.

Murphy Wins A Pair At Track In Pennsylvania

Local cart racer Jeremy Murphy captured a pair of first places in two different divisions of racing Friday night at the Outlaws Race Track in nearby Pennsylvania. In the gas and oil class, Murphy won his heat race and, from the pole position, coasted to victory in the feature.

Murphy then won both heat races in the alcohol class and ran second in the main event until lap 17 of 20, when he took the lead from another Garrett County racer, Cody Hardesty. Hardesty, who also won both of his heat races, finished second behind Murphy in the main avent. The two are tied for most features won so far this season at the Outlaws track.

Among other local racers, Mike Sloan placed sixth in the alcohol class main event, Jason Miller won his heat race in the gas and oil division and was running second in the main event when he threw a chain for the second week in a row, and Steve Cowgill finished among the top 10 in the gas and oil feature.

At Masontown Speedway on Saturday, Bryson Sanders won a main event and Jeff Skipper placed third.

Cumberland Raceway

Bo Feathers of Winchester, Va., scored his first Cumberland Raceway win and Scott Rhodes clinched the track's points championship in the 20-lap Price Budweiser Late Model feature on Sunday at the fifth annual Allegany County Fair Races.

Cumberland's Gary Kimmell put the Biederlack Semi-late Ford in Victory Lane for the third time this year, and the Potomac Video Pure Stock winner was Cumberland's Bill VanMeter with his first win this year.

In the 24-car Late Model feature, Feathers, from the pole, led for six laps before Bob Salathe passed him on lap 7. With only one yellow in the race, Salathe, Feathers, and Dave Groves were lapping cars.

On lap 20 going into the third turn, Salathe, in lapped traffic, went low. Feathers took the high groove and passed him for the lead and the win. Salathe was second, followed by Groves, Chris Harr and Rhodes.

Rhodes came from 18th to finish fifth and clinch the track championship for the first time ever at Cumberland since this was the last points race for the Late Models. Behind Rhodes were Dave Troutman, Eric Zembower, Todd Ritchey, Tommy Armel, and Jeff Thomas. Heat winners were Hart, Troutman and Groves.

Rhodes also won the consolation race that had Doug Timmons go upside down out of turn 4. He was not injured, but was finished for the night.

In the Semi-late feature there was a seven-car pileup on lap 4. On the restart Bill Buchanan, in his first start this year, took the lead and led for five laps before hitting the wall on the backstretch. That gave the lead to Allen Buckley.

On lap 7 Kimmell, who started 11th, passed Buckley for the lead and the win. Buckley was second, followed by Brian Lowery, Bob Gordon, John Hedge, Roger Lowery, Lester Beal, Mark Fost, John Crowfis Jr., and David Riley. Heats went to Gordon and Jim Deneen.

In the 25-car Pure Stock feature, Matt Sponaugle led for four laps before he ran over a wheel that came off Bob Lewis' car in turn 4 and was out of the race. Brian Duffy assumed the lead and the win, only to lose it after the race when he was protested and refused to have his engine checked. This gave the win to Bill VanMeter, who was followed by Tom Humberson, Stanley Price, Barry Weyandt, Greg Smith, Ralph King, Rodney Youmans, Rick Wright, Jason Black, and Scott Wolford. Heats went to Jim Zehn, King, and Price.

The Tri-State Racing Photos Hard Charger award was presented to Roger Lowery.

Tim Senic, who won the second heat, was second in the feature for his best of the year.

In the Late Models Mike Hawkins padded his points lead with a heat win and his third feature win of the year. Chris Smith, who moved up from Semi-Lates, had a great night as he finished second in his heat and second in the feature. Newcomer Jeff Thomas won the second heat and was running second in the feature when a tangle with third running Tim Harsh on lap 10 relegated him to the School has been completely re-carpeted, and that the Southern High School connecting corridor is nearly finished. The Crellin Head Start building is to be completed by late August, and the Grantsville school is being re-roofed. Swan Meadow School has a new media center, located in the center of the school.

McCartney said the staff has been busy this summer with a variety of workshops, and also reported that a physics camp for first and second graders was successfully completed recently.

Social Services

Henry Brown, director of the local Department of Social Services, reported that his staff is discussing ways to expand its services into the Grantsville area. He also reported that the Family Violence Coalition is currently in need of a coordinator and a search is under way.

The department is currently working with the Office for Children, Youth, and Families (OCYF) and Community Action to maintain the local focus on reducing and eliminating family violence. He said early intervention is proving to the be most effective tool in stemming family tensions. His office also recently hosted a week-long training workshop on the gathering of child sexual abuse evidence.

Library

Martha Makosky, the new director of the Ruth Enlow Library, attended the meeting for the first time, introducing herself to those present. She reviewed her background, noting that she grew up in Johnstown, Pa., and worked in Carroll County for 27 years before moving to Garrett.

She said she has noticed that the local library staff has impressed her with its public service attitude.

"This is not something you can tell people to do — they have to want to be helpful, and these people truly do. This is something really going for us."

She also said that the local library system is in need of an update.

"It's time to automate," she said, noting that the staff is now taking "pre-automation steps" and that the system should be fully automated in six months.

Community Action

Senator Paul Sarbanes will be visiting Garrett County next week, according to Duane Yoder, director of Garrett County Community Action. Yoder told the commissioners that Sarbanes will be on site at the Overlook North construction area, located along High Street near Southern High School, on Tuesday, Aug. 4 (see separate story). Yoder said Sarbanes was crucial in securing funding for the development, which is replacing the razed Highview Apartments.

Yoder also reported that he recently met with Brad Frantz, director of the local emergency management office, to begin discussions about funds from the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) that are to be used for flood control and damage repair. He said he is working with Frantz to come up with a strategy addressing problems in Crellin and Shallmar.

He also reported that there are 20 people enrolled with the Microworks program, a new project initiated this winter. Mikal McCartney is the director of the program, which is for the benefit of persons who are trying to establish their own businesses. Yoder said he is pleased with how well the project is progressing.

Soil Conservation

Shaun Sanders, director of the Soil Conservation District, reported that the newly enacted Water Quality Improvement Act is in some fashion going to affect property owners, especially those who raise animals. Sanders said it will basically limit expansion to a degree.

The commissioners asked Sanders if the new regulations will be too costly for operators of smaller farms, and Sanders said that although the regulations might cause some extra expense, he does not think they will put anyone out of business.

Environmental Health

Steve Sherrard, director of the Environmental Health Office, reported that his office has received a "new wrinkle" in the food permitting program, in that the state leaders are urging local offices to conduct more inspections of food preparation techniques and sites. He explained that this means his staff is to pay more attention to such events as church dinners or other non-profit food events.

"This is all a result of the food poisoning outbreak last year in eastern Maryland," Sherrard said. He noted that while permits are not required, all food preparers are urged to contact his office before serving meals. A representative will come to the site and go over food safety measures.

"So far, everyone has been very nice about it," Sherrard said. "They don't mind our help, and we're happy to offer it."

Planning, Zoning

John Nelson, director of the Garrett County Office of Planning and Zoning, reported that plans for an indoor recreation facility at Garrett Community College are being discussed. He said he has been in contact with the YMCA and other similar organizations to discuss various options.

Nelson also reported that officials of the State Highway Administration will be meeting today, July 30, and again on Aug. 12 to discuss the elimination of some of the alternatives offered as part of the proposed Oakland bypass. He said the officials are planning to narrow the options down to three or four.

Once a plan is decided upon, the construction of the proposed bypass will take about six years, according to various reports.

CSA

The newly formed Core Service Agency, or CSA, has received non-profit status from the Internal Revenue Service, as reported by David Dabé, CSA chairman. The mission of the CSA is to plan, develop, and manage mental health services in Garrett County. Dube said a survey is being completed currently to help the CSA determine the needs of the community.

Extension Service

Alice Hevner, director of the county extension office, reported that the fourth annual Farm Safety Day Camp held recently was "very successful." Over 70 youngsters took part in the events of the day, which focused on safety issues. The county health department helps host the event, as does the Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

Health Department

Edward Dressman, interim health officer for the county health department, reported that the staff is working on moving all administrative offices out to the GW Plaza site in Mountain Lake Park. He said they hope to be moved and in place before a new health officer is hired.

Dressman also reported that the health department will soon be able to issue birth certificates locally. Currently, persons must either send for them or travel downstate to obtain them. In the near future, the local agency will be authorized to issue any Maryland birth certificate for persons born after 1952.

Because the local health department has been downsized from a $6 million to a $3.8 million agency, Dressman said there is an abundance of abandoned office equipment and furniture. County offices in need of equipment should contact the health department or Gary Mullich, director of general services, to inquire about available items.

Economic Development

James Hinebaugh, director of the economic development office, reported that he attended the first Western Maryland Partnership Coalition meeting. The group's intent is to market all of Western Maryland as a package, and to work together toward that aim. He said the initial meeting was successful.

Simon Pearce has signed the lease for the former Bausch & Lomb building, Hinebaugh reported, and hopes to have a permanent staff member in the facility by late summer.

Hinebaugh reported that both FCSI and GRIC received money from the adjustment loan fund, which will allow both companies to hire more employees. GRIC will bring in a new coordinator, and FCSI plans to bring in about 45 more people, Hinebaugh said. More information on this development will be released soon.

General Services

Gary Mullich, general services director, told the commissioners that the halfway mark on the construction of the visitors center has been reached, and that the contractors are still planning to have the building finished by the time of the Autumn Glory Festival in October.

Chamber of Commerce

An adventure sports brochure outlining all area sports opportunities is now being printed, according to Diane Wolfe of the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce. The production of the brochure has been a cooperative effort of the county's economic development office, the Maryland Department of Natural Resources, the Adventure-sports Institute, and the chamber.

The Autumn Glory Festival brochure is being printed as well, Wolfe said. The annual event is slated for Oct. 8-11.

The chamber will participate in a regional booth with Allegany and Washington county tourism offices at the Rocky Gap Music Festival this weekend.

Wolfe said Garrett County's 800 number received over 1,600 calls for information from March through May. She also reported that AAA's Car and Travel Magazine published a story about Deep Creek Lake in the July/August issue.

rear and a disappointing 12th place finish. Robbie Scott came from ninth to finish third. Ron Cleavenger was in the pit for the first time this year, while Jeff Yeager was driving his own car this week.

The 4-Cylinders ran third this week with Tommy Simpson holding off pointa leader Jeff Pennington for the win. From the outside pole Tommy led laps 1 through 6 when Jeff got by and led laps 7 and 8. Tommy then retook the lead and went on to the win. Heats went to Simpson and Pennington.

Shane Quattro led the 23-car Pure Stock field to the green and, after a nine-lap struggle with Danny Bismark, won his fifth feature of the year. Danny dropped out on lap 10 and Mike Simpson, who had been running third from the green, took up the chase but couldn't make the pass. Shane, Danny and Jay Martin won the three heats.

The UMP Modifieds finished out the night of action with Shawn Davis from the pole leading all 15 laps for the win over Brent Trimble and points leader Dave Definbaugh. This was Shawn's fifth win in five appearances. Heats went to Shawn and Louie Krushansky.

This Saturday is regular racing with gates opening at 5 p.m. and racing at 7 p.m.

Wind Of Hope Helps Residents Restore, Recover

Following the devastating tornados that hit the southwestern Pennsylvania and western Maryland areas May 31 and June 2, the Wind of Hope Restoration Committee was formed in West Salisbury, Pa. Through this group, volunteers reach out to those who need emotional or economic support in recovering from the effects of the storms.

The organization's mission is "to strengthen area-wide disaster relief services through and among local, state, federal, and voluntary agencies." The purpose of the group is to provide help to affected tornado survivors in developing a recovery plan for tornado-caused, unmet needs and in receiving adequate assistance for recovery. "We are helping people find the assistance that they need. We help them with insurance claims and if they believe the insurance company has not treated them fairly, we will help them file with the insurance commission," explained office secretary Caroline Tice.

"Wind of Hope volunteers also educate citizens on avoiding rip-offs by unlicensed or deceitful business people," she said. A teacher at Northern Middle School, Tice has worked full time for the Wind of Hope committee since it was formed in June. Scores of volunteers are seeking out those in need and assisting the over 400 clients who have applied for help.

"Some people will not ask for help because they have always handled their own problems. But this may be more than they can take care of," Tice said She also explained the "hidden" problem of emotional damage from such a disaster. "Our real concern is what will happen a year or 18 months from now. Typically, about 18 months after a disaster like this the suicide rate will climb. For us that would be Christmas time," she noted.

Some of the emotional problems facing survivors are beginning to come to light at this time, she explained. "We have cases of children who are beginning to have flashbacks. We have some elderly people who will not leave their homes and there is one woman who constantly watches the weather channel now," Tice related.

Case workers are seeking those who may need some emotional support. "We're working with Somerset MH/MR (Mental Health/Mental Retardation). We have 15 to 18 mental health workers in the field. They are focusing on single parents, elderly, and children," Tice said. She noted that individuals in these groups often lack sufficient emotional support systems.

Wind of Hope has not limited its efforts to residents of Pennsylvania. "We have helped people from West Virginia, Garrett County, and Frostburg. It has been difficult for the areas that were not declared 'disaster areas' because they don't qualify for FEMA (Federal Emergency Management Agency) assistance," Tice said.

Accident resident and town council member Pastor Randy Nairn of St. Paul's Lutheran Church (Accident) volunteers on the restoration committee. A member of Lutheran Disaster Response Committee, Pastor Nairn described his work on behalf of Wind of Hope.

"We are helping the people who have 'slipped through the cracks' and have needs that remain unmet," Pastor Nairn said. After the case workers have interviewed people in need, they present the requests for assistance to the committee for decisions on the kind and manner of relief or support that can be given.

The assistance granted may be in the form of building supplies, clothing, or other items. All applications to the committee are numbered and do not identify the applicant. "The cases are presented without names to assure confidentiality," Pastor Nairn explained.

The Wind of Hope committee membership draws from a number of church communities, including Lutheran, Brethren, Roman Catholic, United Methodist, Mennonite, and United Church of Christ. Others working with these church-affiliated representatives include members of the Salisbury Lions Club, the Salisbury-Elk Lick Chamber of Commerce, the YMCA, Habitat for Humanity, and the Salvation Army.

Headquartered on Route 669 in West Salisbury, the committee's office is open Monday-Friday from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., and on evenings by appointment. To get further information, to volunteer, or to make donations, persons may call 814-662-4615.

COMMUNITY RECOVERING - In the aftermath of tornadoes that struck the region two months ago, it may have seemed to residents of the nearby Pennsylvania communities of Salisbury and Pocahontas that recovering from such devastation was beyond their strength. But the spirit of the community triumphed. Efforts are under way to rebuild homes and businesses and to deal with the emotional suffering that follows such a crisis. The altar and sounds of rebuilding abound. The K&B Pizzeria in the photo above left has reopened its doors to the people of the community. The scaffolding along the side of the brick home in the photo above right is evidence of the ongoing repair work to roof and walls. The damaged being repaired can be seen in the photo below right, which was taken just after the tornado. It was taken inside that same home, from the top of the attic stairs. The photo below left shows workers putting the finishing touches on restoration projects. It is an example of the rebuilding going on all over the community. The Wind of Hope Committee is providing continuous support and assistance for physical and spiritual recovery.

100 and 200 level required to complete the B.S. in Technology degree. Students will dually register with the two institutions and will pay BSU's tuition and fees, and will apply directly to BSU after meeting that institution's admission requirements. Registration for BSU will be made available at the GCC campus.

Herman called the signing of the agreement "a great moment for Garrett County," and thanked Pollard and General Fretterd of the Maryland National Guard for "having the vision to provide the opportunity for education through distance learning technology."

Pollard thanked his staff and the National Guard and acknowledged that his institution has been a leader in technology. Col. Howard Freedlander of the National Guard credited Fretterd's vision and the Guard's commitment to serving the community, and thanked both college presidents for opening the door to education by forging the partnership.

If their is sufficient interest the program will begin in the fall 1998 semester. Persons interested in further information should contact GCC's Admissions Office at 301-387-3010.

Sarbanes' Visit

The building project involves the demolition of 56 units of rental housing and the construction of 79 owner-occupied and rental units. It also iucludes the development of a child care/family support center. Sarbanes is slated to review the plans and progress of Overlook, and to provide an update on additional funding efforts.

Microworks is an initiative started this year with the purpose of providing financial and technical assistance to persons who wish to start small businesses. Sarbanes is to present a check to Community Action for start-up funds, according to Yoder. The program is operational and made its first loan during the month of July. Mikal McCartney is the coordinator.

Bittinger Joins Race For Central Committee Seat

Michael H. Bittinger, Oakland, has announced his candidacy for a seat on the Republican State Central Committee.

Bittinger is a native of Garrett County and a graduate of Southern High School and the Western Maryland Police Academy. He has been a deputy with the Garrett County Sheriff's Office for over five years, and is currently assigned to the department's road patrol unit as a K-9 handler.

Bittinger attended Fairmont State College in Fairmont, W.Va., prior to joining the sheriff's office, and also served in the U.S. Army as a member of the 82nd Airborne Division and later as a member of the 129th Long Range Surveillance Detachment. During his military career, Bittinger served in the Gulf War and earned military awards, including the Combat Infantrymaa's Badge, Parachutist's Wings, three Army Achievement awards, the Kuwaiti Liberation Medal, and the Southwest Asia Service Medal.

Bittinger is a member and current president of Lodge #99 Fraternal Order of Police and a member of the North American Police Work Dog Association. He also serves on the board of directors for the Tanglewood Property Owners Association and attends St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church. He is a coach in the Oakland Youth Football League and a former coach in the Oakland Little League.

"I enjoy serving the public and working with the people of Garrett County," Bittinger stated as he announced his candidacy. "I feel that it is important that young people get involved with government so we can work to preserve and better what those who have preceded us have worked hard to achieve."

Bittinger has named his wife Rebecca as his campaign treasurer.

Mayor Changes Starting Line For Duck Race

The starting line for the Oakland rubber ducky race Saturday has been relocated. Mayor Asa McCain yesterday announced that the 2 p.m. "splash off" will take place at the end of Water Street.

The original starting point, under the bridge on Third Street, had to be changed as a result of hydrology problems, according to town manager Glenn Tolbert. "We have been working closely with the Department of Natural Resources on this. One of the DNR fisheries and wildlife specialists tested the flow of the Little Youghiogheny River and said it is too low," Tolbert explained. The general course of the race will remain the same as originally planned.

SAVING PRIVATE RYAN

Rated R - Running time: 2:49

After Steven Spielberg's Amistad was released last winter, many people (self included) were aghast that it was not nominated for Best Picture. But now he's got another chance. If Saving Private Ryan is not nominated this year, we will know something is definitely wrong. It is not only a touching story about two different kinds of brotherly love, but one of the most haunting representations of war I have ever seen. This film does for World War II what Platoon and The Deer Hunter did for Vietnam. It takes you there.

Right after the D-Day invasion of Normandy, it is learned by the war department that three brothers named Ryan have all been killed in action. Their mother is to receive all three telegrams in the same day. But there is a fourth brother, Private James Ryan, a paratrooper down behind enemy lines, and a mission is devised to find him and send him home, whatever the cost. Captain John Miller (Tom Hanks) is assigned the task of locating Pvt. Ryan and giving him the news. He assembles 6 of his men, all of whom survived the bloody invasion, and a young corporal named Upham (Jeremy Davies), who has never seen action but speaks fluent French and German, and they set out on their search through occupied France.

The mission is very just and honorable, but to these men, who barely survived the carnage at Normandy, it seems overly risky. Why, they wonder, should they travel into extremely dangerous territory, risking their eight lives, to save one private? Even Capt. Miller, who makes a point of not showing his feelings to his men, says, "This guy had better be worth it." Long before they have met the object of their search, the men develop an animosity for Ryan (Matt Damon), and when a few of them get killed on the way, tensions begin to run extremely high.

High tension is an apt description for this entire film. From the incredibly graphic opening sequence depicting the Normandy invasion, this movie grabs you by the shoulders and shakes you until you rattle. You feel the anxiety of those going headlong into the hail of bullets, the anguish of the wounded, the despair of the men who watch their comrades dying all around them. The hell that is war is depicted with absolutely no punches pulled. The Normandy scene by itself is a masterpiece. But Spielberg doesn't stop there.

The brutal message of this movie matches that of Schindler's List, and Janusz Kaminski's cinema is excellent, interspersing beautiful, sweeping long shots with the blood-soaked battle scenes. The script by Robert Rodat allows us to become one of the tightly knit squad, getting to know each of the eight men, and the use of handheld cameras during many action scenes adds to this adrenaline-pumping experience. The acting is superb by all involved; Hanks may well garner another Best Actor nomination for this, and Davies gives a sensitive portrayal of the outsider who must prove his courage, to himself and everyone else. Damon's part is not really very large, but what he does with it is exquisite. Believe it or not, he actually provides one of the film's few lighthearted moments. Other especially memorable performances are by Giovanni Ribisi as the medic who ultimately ends up treating himself, and Joerg Stadler, a German soldier the men take prisoner. Spielberg has again employed his long-time friend John Williams for the musical score, which is rich and poignant, another possible Oscar pick.

This is one of the best war movies I have ever seen, and yet it is also one of the most violent. It's the kind of film that causes nightmares in parents and flashbacks in veterans. I heartily recommend it to all with the warning that its imagery is profoundly disturbing. But that's how it should be. That is war. ★★★★★

DISTURBING BEHAVIOR

Rated R - Running time: 1:23

I did not expect this movie to be as good as it is. For a teen horror flick with a cast of virtual no-names, it's surprisingly watchable, even at its worst moments.

In the small New England town of Cradle Bay, life seems pretty normal for the teenage population. As we begin, Steve Clark (Jimmy Marsden) and his family are moving there from Chicago, to try to make a fresh start after a family tragedy: Steve's big brother has committed suicide. When school starts at Cradle Bay High, Steve meets Gavin Strick (Nick Stahl), a sloppy-looking semi-loner with a propensity for marijuana and poetic language.

Gavin doesn't seem to have much respect for any of the other kids at school, but he's especially indignant about the Blue Ribbons, a group of straight-laced neatnicks who all wear identical letter jackets and fill their time with fund-raising bake sales and volunteer community service work. Something doesn't seem right about them to Gavin, especially since some used to be among his pothead friends. When he witnesses a double murder by one of them, and the local police ignore the incident, he knows something's wrong. But he has no proof.

What convinces Steve is when Gavin himself becomes a Blue Ribbon, totally changing his outlook and his feelings toward the group. Steve and Gavin's friend Rachel (Katie Holmes) start doing a little detective work and find that their (and Gavin's) worst nightmare is true. Troubled teens are being implanted with electronic devices that make them want to succeed, to do good, to be straight arrows. The schoolteacher who is responsible (Bruce Greenwood) is a former behavioral psychologist who has devised this method of mind control. Unfortunately, it has some messy side effects.

Despite some stereotypical characterizations and miscellaneous flubs, like an English teacher who can't spell "tomorrow," Disturbing Behavior is surprisingly tight, well-acted (especially by Stahl), and well-written. Penned by Scott Rosenberg, author of such films as Things To Do In Denver When You're Dead (1995) and Con Air (1997), and who even helped on Armageddon, the film touches on an interesting ethics question: If such mind control were possible, would it be right to use it, even for "good" purposes? I mean, who wouldn't want their kids to be football stars and honor students, right? But it also shows the inevitable pitfalls of a blind pursuit of scientific progress. The recent cloning issue has aroused similar questions.

The music for this film was supplied by Mark Snow, author of the X-Files theme; perhaps that's why the plot reminded me of an episode from that series. It's hokey at some points (like all high school thrillers), and sprinkled with teenage T&A (a staple), but generally better than most I've seen lately. ★★★½

Town Hall

KITZMILLER

The town meeting was held Monday, July 27.

•Sen. Hafer and Del. Edwards were present. They asked how they might assist the town and stated a willingness to answer questions for officials and residents.

•A resident asked about possible state maintenance for Route 38, which connects Sand Flat Road to Route 135. Del. Edwards said there had been talk of a state-county road swap, but that the state did not want to maintain a road that does not meet state standards.

•There was discussion of a possible policy requiring repairs to damaged or dilapidated properties in town and use of grant funding to cover the cost of enforcement.

•A resident inquired about a countywide storm warning system. The Office of Emergency Management is currently working to acquire an enhanced system that would include early flood warning systems to be installed on waterways.

•Councilwoman Brady asked Sen. Hafer and Del. Edwards about their positions on the increased tax on cigarettes. Sen. Hafer said he thought he could support such a measure. Del. Edwards noted he was not convinced that it would do what it is designed to do. He referred to proximity of other states where purchase of cigarettes would not entail the tax. He said a federal tax would be the best solution.

•Councilwoman Brady said a $2,400 grant has been received to install lighting in the town park.

•The clerk said she has had difficulties in collecting user fees and getting signed applications for pavilion use. The policy was approved to allow 10 days from time of request for pavilion use for payment and application to be made at the town office.

•There was a discussion of the recent homecoming event. It was noted to be the most successful yet.

•The town received a plaque of appreciation from the Civic Club.

•Community Action's request for use of the community building for its Super Pantry program was approved pending approval of Lions Club.

The next meeting will be Monday, August 24.

southeastern border of Garrett County, flowing past Kempton, Shallmar, Kitzmiller, and several other towns. The Jennings Randolf Lake was created by damming the North Branch, which then flows on to Green Spring, W.Va., where it meets the South Branch and becomes the full Potomac, which flows on into Washington, D.C. The nation's capital was carved out of a Potomac swamp in about 1800.

The Board of Garrett County Commissioners was in favor of the designation and penned a letter to that effect several months ago. President Bill Clinton had announced in his 1997 State of the Union Address that he would be naming rivers across the country for the special designation, and the Friends of the Potomac organizations and other civic and public servant groups have lobbied for the honor.

All eight Maryland counties along the shores of the Potomac supported the nomination.

Armed Robbery Nets Pa. Man 18-Month Term

A Salisbury, Pa., was handed an 18-month jail term for participating in an armed robbery of the Grantsville Burger King nearly two years ago. The sentence came in last week's Garrett County District Court proceedings, with Judge Ralph M. Burnett presiding.

Brian Douglas Bittinger, 30, had been arrested by Maryland State Troopers in March for allegedly being an accessory to the November 1996 armed robbery. According to the charging statement, Bittinger, a Burger King employee, knew the individuals who were planning to rob the restaurant and was aware of when they were planning to carry out the robbery. The statement also alleged that Bittinger opened the rear door to allow the perpetrators to gain access to the business.

Suspending half of a three-year sentence for the felony theft conviction, Judge Burnett also placed Bittinger on two years of supervised probation and ordered that he pay $2,495 in restitution to the Burger King restaurant.

In other district court news, charges of second-degree assault and fourth-degree sex offense faced by Jonathan Mitchell Jones, 43, Swanton, were placed on the stet docket. Jones had been arrested by Garrett County sheriff's deputies in June for allegedly assaulting a woman who resided at his residence.

Scott Anthony Schroyer, 19, Oakland, was ordered to complete eight hours of community service after a charge of trespass was placed on the stet docket. Sheriff's deputies had arrested Schroyer in May for allegedly trespassing in the parking lot of Browning's Foodland, reportedly after receiving a warning.

Charles Melvin Culp Jr., 35, Mtn. Lake Park, was found not guilty of a second-degree assault charge stemming from his April arrest by sheriff's deputies for allegedly striking his girlfriend. An additional charge of felony theft, which stemmed from a June arrest by deputies for allegedly taking some of her jewelry, was not prosecuted against Culp.

Tracey Arnold, 25, Oakland, was acquitted of a charge of second-degree assault for allegedly assaulting another woman during an argument. She had been arrested by deputies in May.

Charges of fourth-degree burglary and misdemeanor theft were not prosecuted against Gerald Kenith Thomas, 39, Friendsville.

Timothy Lee Rounds, 21, Swanton, was found in violation of probation which stemmed from a conviction for theft and battery. He was handed six months in jail, and his probation was terminated.

A sentence revision was granted to reflect time served in the case of Willard James Stemple, 38, Accident, who had previously been convicted for second-degree assault and telephone misuse.

A sentence for second-degree assault was revised to a probation before judgment (PBJ) for Jason Anthony Whitaker, 21, Baltimore.

Sentences for marijuana possession were revised to PBJs for Robert Alan Davis, 21, and Nicholas Eugene Panico, 20, both of Morgantown, W.Va.

DWI Hearings

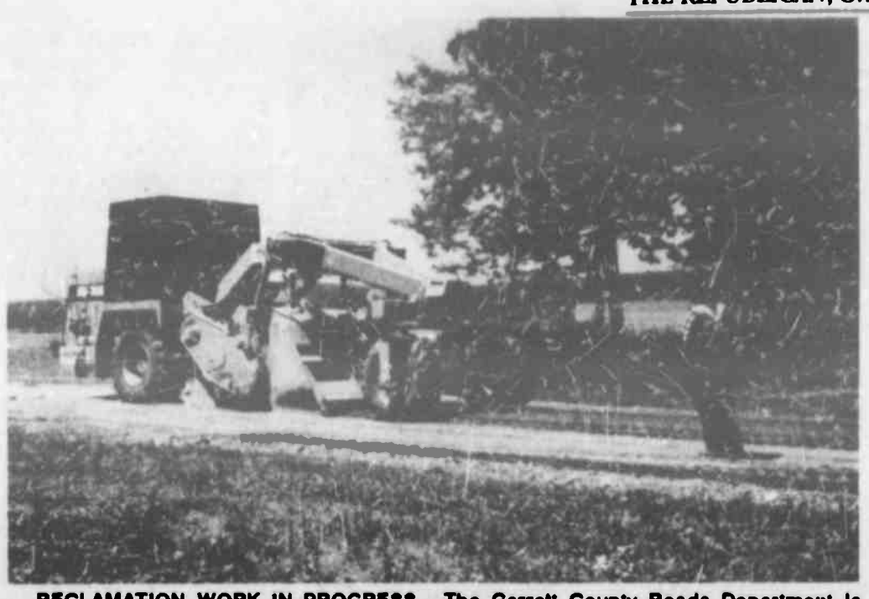
David Joseph Langan, 36, Oakland, pleaded guilty to DWI and was fined $555, handed a 60-day suspended sentence, and placed on two years of supervised probation.

Linda M. Crozier, 51, McHenry, pleaded guilty to driving while intoxicated (DWI) and was fined $255, handed a 60-day sentence with all but 48 hours suspended, placed on one year of supervised probation, and ordered to complete 70 hours of community service.

Christopher Michael Tasker, 26, Oakland, pleaded guilty to DWI and was fined $255, handed a 30-day sentence with all but 7 days suspended, and placed on one year of supervised probation.

Richard Dwayne Landis, 32, Mtn. Lake Park, pleaded guilty to DWI and was fined $155, handed a 30-day suspended sentence, and placed on one year of supervised probation.

Warren Larry Coker, 52, Milwaukee, Wisc., pleaded guilty to DWI and was handed a PBJ, fined $355, handed a 30-day suspended sentence, and placed on one year of supervised probation.



Frederick Ridgely Chesley, 30, Deer Park, pleaded guilty to DWI and was handed a PBJ, fined $355, and placed on 18 months of supervised probation.

James Frederick Davis, 35, Swanton, pleaded guilty to DWI and was fined $155, handed a 30-day suspended sentence, and placed on one year of supervised probation.

Jeffery Lee Gilpin, 21, Bittinger, pleaded guilty to driving under the influence (DUI) and was handed a PBJ, fined $155, handed a 30-day suspended sentence, and placed on one year of supervised probation.

Patricia Ann Alexander, 34, Delaware hometown unspecified, pleaded guilty to DWI and was fined $155, handed a 30-day suspended sentence, placed on one year of supervised probation, and was ordered to complete 30 hours of community service.

Jacqueline Virginia Fazenbaker, 24, Grantsville, pleaded guilty to DWI and was handed a PBJ, fined $100, handed a 30-day suspended sentence, placed on one year of supervised probation, and ordered to complete 30 hours of community service.

RECLAMATION WORK IN PROGRESS - The Garrett County Roads Department is currently in the process of completing full depth reclamation with the machine shown above on several county roads in the Swanton area of Deep Creek Lake, including Turkey Neck, Steiding Church, and Upper and Lower Green Glade roads. Approximately one mile of reclamation is being completed each day, and upon completion of the process, culvert and drainage work will be done and a triple surface treatment will be applied to the roadways. Any public concerns should be addressed to the county's Roads office at 301-334-3988.

Russell Eugene Tasker, 26, Mtn. Lake Park, was found in violation of DWI probation, and a 30-day sentence was reimposed and his probation was terminated.

Ronald Edward Crosby, 36, Oakland, was found in violation of DWI probation, and a 90-day sentence was reimposed with all but 48 hours suspended.

Chad Everett Fike, 25, Friendsville, was granted a sentence revision to reflect a PBJ for a previous DWI conviction.

Tole Painting Free For Seniors, Offered To All

The Mary Browning Senior Center continues to offer Tole Painting classes to all interested persons on a weekly basis. The senior center, located at 104 East Center Street in Oakland, has offered Tole Painting classes each Wednesday morning from 9 a.m. to noon for the past four years.

"Of the various activities offered at the Mary Browning Senior Center, one in particular stands out — Tole Painting," commented Barbara Hornyak, programs coordinator for Community Action/Area Agency on Aging. "This class, taught by Louise Kitzmiller every Wednesday morning since 1994, has a faithful group of students."

Instructor Kitzmiller is a senior aide placed with Area Agency on Aging by the Maryland Department of Aging. She was trained and accredited by Priscilla Hauser, founder of the National Tole Teachers Seminar School. "Tole Painting actually means the painting or decoration of tinware," Hauser stated, "but today we call it tole or decorative painting of any surface, be it wood, glass, tin, or whatever. In decorative painting a pattern is used, and painting is done by a method, step-by-step technique."

The class is free to seniors, and persons under 60 may participate for a minimal fee. The only cost incurred by each student are the materials, including paints, brushes, and an item to paint, that each participant must bring with them to the sessions. Persons interested in further information about the Tole Painting class may call Kitzmiller at 301-334-9431, ext. 178.

Local Students Attending Annual Forestry Workshop

The Garrett County Forestry Board has announced that James Yoder, Grantsville, and Billy Stoner, Oakland, are participating in this year's Awareness Week for Forestry and Natural Resources. The program is being held this week, July 27-31, at the Garrett County Board of Education Hickory Environmental Education Center near Accident.

The week-long workshop is designed to acquaint high school studenta with forestry and natural resources management career opportunities. A variety of lectures, field trips, and meetings gives participants a first-hand iook into the fields of forestry, wildlife biology, fisheriea, recreation, and the physical sciences.

The camp is sponsored by the Maryland Association of Forest Conservancy District Boards, in cooperation with the Department of Natural Reaources Forest Service.

I wonder where it went.
I hardly blinked my eyes and they were grown,
Leaving behind only the fleeting memories
Of childhood which I hold securely
In the archives of my mind.
Where did they go — those precious years
Of golden curls, precocious words,
Smothery hugs and frogs and bugs,
Broken bones, mercurochrome,
Toothless grins, frightful dins?
It's quiet now.
And the house is clean
And there are no broken bikes
Or bathtub rings
Or dusty floors
Or snakes
Or slamming doors
Or jellied rugs...
Or smothery hugs.

Southern States Co-op Locations To Hold Meetings

"Seventy-five years ago, farmers organized Southern States Cooperative to serve their basic agricultural production needs. Through the years, the cooperative has been innovative in providing new products and services to help farmers improve their livelihood," said Carroll Gilbert, the cooperative's director of member relations.

"Southern States: Let's Grow Together," the theme of this year's local annual membership meetings, reflects the regional co-op's "continuing dedication to improving farm inputs and services," added Gilbert.

Election of local board members and Farm Home Advisory Committee (FHAC) members are important features of the annual membership meeting for Southern States Oakland Cooperative and Eglon Farm Service Inc.

At the Oakland Cooperative board, nominees are Troy R. Gnegy, Ed Lipscomb, Ray Miller and Michael Steyer.

The FHAC slate consists of Rachel Miller and Ellen Shillingburg.

Nominees for delegates to District E election meeting later in the year are Troy R. Gnegy, Ed Lipscomb, Ray Miller and Michael Steyer.

At the Eglon cooperative, board nominees are John Allman, John Calcamp and Claude Hartsell.

The FHAC slate consists of nominees being named at the meeting.

Nominees for delegates to District E election meeting later in the year will be taken from the floor.

A taped report from Wayne A. Boutwell, Southern States' president and chief executive officer, will discuss the co-op's supply and marketing operations for the last fiscal year.

Local operating statements and services provided to the agricultural community will be discussed. Local FHAC and board members completing terms will be recognized.

The Oakland meeting is scheduled for 8 p.m., Friday, Aug. 7, in the Lion's Club Pavilion at the Garrett County Fairgrounds in McHenry.

The Eglon meeting is scheduled for 8 p.m., Tuesday, Aug. 4, at the United Methodist Fellowship Center, Aurora, W.Va.

Southern States Cooperative, headquartered in Richmond, Va., operates in six states. The cooperative processes or manufactures and distributes feed, seeds, fertilizers, petroleum products and a wide range of farm supplies and lawn and garden products in West Virginia, North Carolina, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia and Kentucky. It has grain marketing facilities in five of these states. The cooperative's membership totaled about 195,000, and the annual volume was more than $1.2 billion last year.

Maryland Dairy Annual Meeting Set For Nov. 10

Dairy producers, processors, and suppliers will gather in Hagerstown on Tuesday, Nov. 10, to discuss critical issues affecting Maryland's $1 billion dairy industry. The program will be part of the Maryland Dairy Industry Association's (MDIA) 1998 Annual Meeting, slated for the Four Points Hotel on U.S. Route 40 west.

"We will focus on ways to enhance dairy operations for Maryland producers," says MDIA's president Myron Wilhide of Detour. 'It will be a full day of good information for all segments of the dairy industry."

Resource persons scheduled for the MDIA program include noted Cornell University dairy extension specialist Dr. David Galton, whose topic "Profitability in the 21st Century" promises valuable insight and management tips for Maryland producers. He will be joined by Penn State University dairy extension specialist Dr. Larry Hutchinson, presenting latest information on boosting milk production through proper foot care of dairy cows. Dr. Stan Foltz of Maryland Cooperative Extension will lead a panel discussion on grazing and its effects on farmland in the Mid-Atlantic region. Leading suppliers to the dairy industry will be on hand to present new technology to industry participants.

Registration for the MDIA annual meeting opens at 8:30 a.m. on November 10, with meeting and program events scheduled from 10 a.m. through 4 p.m. Luncheon will be served. All events take place at Hagerstown's Four Points Hotel.

Details of the program are available from MDIA headquarters at: MDIA, Suite 1100, 1629 K Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006. Telephone: 202-293-0476.

Extreme Heat, Lack Of Rain Affect Crops

Extreme heat and lack of rain this past week in many areas of Maryland depleted soil moisture and left crop conditions declining. All counties are behind normal rainfall for the month, with eastern counties receiving the least amounts of rain. Rainfall is averaging at least an inch below normal in all counties.

Field corn conditions are 1% very poor, 9% poor, 27% fair, 56% good, and 7% excellent. Soybean conditions are 49% poor, 15% fair, 32% good, and 4% excellent. Corn and soybean development remains ahead of last year and the five-year average. Most farmers finished their second cutting of alfalfa hay last week. Dry conditions helped to accomplish hay harvest.

Cantaloupe and sweet corn made large leaps in harvest progress this week by 26 and 23 points, respectively. Peaches and lima beans made the least amount of harvest progress this week.

Topsoil moisture was 16% very short, 53% short, and 31% adequate. Subsoil moisture was 12% very short, 38% short, and 50% adequate. There were 6 days suitable for field work this week.

Maryland's crop progress for the week which ended July 20, listing the item, and percentages for this week, last week, last year, and the five year average, follows.

Development: field corn, silked 70, 56, 32, 58, dough 21, 13, 2, 11, dent 4, 0, 1, 1; soybeans, bloomed 35, 24, 31, 28, setting pods 30, 23, 8, 5; sorghum, headed 50, 10, 3, 12.

Harvesting progress: winter wheat 99, 97, 99, 98; rye 99, 90, 88, 92; cantaloupe 46, 20, 40, 43; cucumbers 45, 36, 39, 51; lima beans 80, 80, 0, 5; tomatoes 21, 12, 13, 24; peaches 39, 38, 6, 17; potatoes 60, 43, 16, 42; snap beans 46, 34, 46, 47; sweet corn 49, 26, 28, 34; watermelon 26, 15, 13, 23.

Hay harvesting progress: other hay, 2nd cutting 75, 69, 59, 61; 3rd cutting 45, 41, 2, 7; alfalfa hay, 2nd cutting 99, 94, 92, 90; 3rd cutting 27, 22, 13, 24.

Warm Season Grass Tour Set By FSA

by Michael R. Kozier, CED
Garrett County FSA

Do you find your pastures non-productive in mid summer? Do you find that you can't harvest your hay before the Fourth of July? Do you have too much hay to harvest at the same time? Warm season grasses may be the answer to these problems.

Warm season grasses are in most cases native grasses that grow best during the hot "Dog Days of Summer" when few grasses are growing or desirable. In addition warm season grasses still produce hay under drier conditions and are more efficient users of nutrients. They respond well to sludge or manure applications and are heavy users of phosphorus and efficient users of nitrogen.

On Wednesday, Aug. 12, the Allegany Soil Conservation District and the Allegany EQIP Workgroup will be hosting a tour of farms in southwestern Pennsylvania that normally graze and hay warm season grasses. These farms are actively using warm season grasses during the summer slump of fescue and orchard grass. This tour will give you the opportunity to talk directly to landowners who have planted and manage warm season grasses to hear first hand why it works for them.

We will also get to see the partnership developed by various group to assist landowners in establishing warm season grasses and wildlife areas that enhance livestock management objectives.

We will leave the USDA office at 7:30 a.m. and return late afternoon. Lunch and transportation by air-conditioned vans will be provided. We also will have a pick-up point at Keyser's Ridge at 8:30 a.m. Please contact the Allegany Soil Conservation District at 301-777-1747 or the Garrett County FSA Office at 301-334-6954 by August 8 if you plan to attend.

AMTA/PFC Growers Updated On Grain Prices

Current ntarket prices on small grains (wheat, oats and barley) may provide a direct cash payment option for those who have small grains planted for grain, according to Michael R. Kozier, CED, Garrett County FSA.

This program makes price support payments on commodities when the county posted market price falls below the county posted loan rate. All small grains harvested for grain on AMTA farms are eligible.

Two important requirements to be eligible are timely reported small grain acreage and measurement service for farm stored grain. For additional information, those interested may stop by the office or call 301-334-6954.

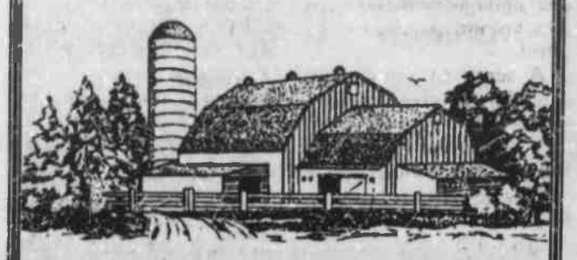
Bill Shockey, Preston Co. Ag Agent

Early blight of tomatoes has been "spotted" in Preston County. Blight is a general term used for diseases that wilt leaves and stems, spot leaves, rot fruit, injure roots, or all of these. Early blight of tomatoes is caused by fungi which have wind-blown spores. When conditions are right for development they grow and infect plants.



Early blight is favored by rainy periods with warmer temperatures. These conditions have been common in Preston County in recent weeks. Early blight first appears as small, irregular, dark brown spots on the leaves. The disease affects lower leaves first, then progressively works upward. The spots enlarge into circular spots with target-like markings. Leaf tissue around the spots turns yellow. When the disease is severe, leaves fall off. If not controlled in the leaf stage, stems and fruit may also be infected. Fruits will develop dark leathery spots near the stem end.

For disease control use only disease-free transplants. If early blight has been "spotted" on your plants, follow a 7-day fungicide spray schedule with chlorothalonil (Daconil 2787), mancozeb, or a copper fungicide. As with use of any pesticide, read and follow label directions. If you have any questions, contact the Preston County Extension Office at 304-329-1391.

Corn Earworm on Sweet Corn

The corn earworm moth count has been low in our area; however, you should be planning a spray schedule of every 6 days when 10 percent of the ears show silk. The spray schedule is very important to the commercial grower. Retail outlets do not want wormy corn. The following insecticides may be used for earworm control: Asana XL, Baythroid, Lannate, Ambush, Pounce, and Warrior. Most of these insecticides have restrictions; therefore, follow label directions very carefully.

Milk Production Drops in Hot Weather

Some producers have experienced a drop in milk production during this hot weather. Also, there has been a drop in the butterfat test. The butterfat loss has caused more than usual concern since there is a good premium on fat content. Often cows will back off on forages during hot weather. The digestion of fiber generates heat in the cow, and it seems that "Mother Nature" has given the cow the ability to recognize that fact. To compensate for the forage, add 1 to 3 pounds of cottonseed hulls to the ration and increase the buffer. My advice is to watch what the cows are doing or not doing in the heat. Watch their patterns of behavior and eating habits. You may be able to adjust your feeding management to return the milk production back to normal.

Grazing Corn?

Here's an idea that you may want to file and keep in mind for next spring. There are some corn varieties that lend to grazing. John Miller, a Missouri dairy farmer, says, "This year I used Baldridge Grazing Maize. The cows really like it. At sixty days it yielded about 4.5 tons of dry matter per acre with a 14 percent protein." The 4.5 tons of dry matter would equal over 20 tons of forage per acre.

NRAES Publications Available From Cooperative Extension Service

The following Northeast Regional Agricultural Engineering Service (NRAES) publications are being highlighted this month for growers and marketers.

Herbaceous Perennials Production: A Guide from Propagation to Marketing

At last a publication about growing perennial plants for commercial production! In Herbaceous Perennials Production: A Guide from Propagation to Marketing, NRAES-93, Dr. Leonard Perry of the University of Vermont Cooperative Extension System has created a book that will interest novice and experienced commercial growers, advanced hobbyists, and floriculture and horticulture students.

Herbaceous Perennials Production is a comprehensive information source that considers the diversity of situations encountered by growers in businesses of all sizes. The 220-page book maintains a focus on production and contains information that until now was available only in piecemeal form. It discusses the basics—such as taxonomy and nomenclature, plant hardiness, the physical needs of crops, and types of irrigation systems—as well as cutting-edge, research-based information about perennial propagation and production. The focus is on nursery and greenhouse production of field or container perennials, but the greenhouse plug and bedding plant methods of production are covered as well.

Key chapters in the book discuss production systems and schedules, propagation (including media, nutrients, environmental requirements, and methods), plug production, transplant and seedling care, nursery and field production, and pest control (including deer and small animals). A chapter about forcing out-of-season bloom includes up-to-date information about research on this topic as well as a table of specific forcing requirements for over 120 perennial species and cultivars. Practical discussions about starting a business, marketing and customer service, setting prices for plants, and designing a production facility are included as well.

The publication also features a lengthy 51-page appendix that details propagation methods and requirements for hundreds of species. Other appendices cover optimum germination conditions for specific perennials and biennials, pests and diseases, and useful calculations and conversions. Thirty-eight figures, 45 tables, a glossary, and a references section supplement the text. This book is sure to be a valuable addition to any grower's bookshelf.

Dr. Leonard Perry has been growing perennials in the United States for 28 years, both in the South and in the North. He has spent summers working in industry and at the renowned Longwood Gardens in Kennett Square, Pa. Since 1981, he has been with the extension system at the University of Vermont, working directly with the industry and region, speaking at meetings locally and internationally, and touring perennial gardens and nurseries worldwide. His research during his tenure in Vermont has covered all aspects of perennial culture, particularly overwintering and hardiness.

Herbaceous Perennials Production: A Guide from Propagation to Marketing, NRAES-93, is available for $27 per copy (plus shipping and handling). The shipping and handling charge is $5 for a single copy within the continental United States.

Guideline for Dairy Manure Management from Barn to Storage

When considering a new or improved dairy manure management system, it is important to predict the costs, risks, savings, and operating changes that may occur. Because there are many options, careful and objective planning is a key to success. Guideline for Dairy Manure Management from Barn to Storage, NRAES-108, is a new publication that concisely reviews information essential to the planning process for dairy farmers and their advisers.

The 36-page guideline covers the following topics: planning the development or improvement of a manure handling system, getting technical information and assistance, and meeting regulations; manure characteristics and production; alternatives for manure management; options for transferring manure from barn to storage; and manure storage types and storage management. Fourteen illustrations and 14 tables are included.

Leadership for the development of Guideline for Dairy Manure Management from Barn to Storage, NRAES-108, was provided by Stanley A. Weeks, subcommittee chair of the Farm Buildings and Equipment Task Force of the Dairy Practices Council. Extension specialists, university members, industry representatives, and regulatory and milk-plant field personnel also provided their assistance and expertise.

Guideline for Dairy Manure Management from Barn to Storage is a joint undertaking by the NRAES and the Dairy Practices Council (DPC). DPC is a nonprofit organization of education, industry, and regulatory personnal concerned with milk quality, sanitation, and regulatory uniformity. This publication is one of 61 approved guidelines directed toward proper and improved sanitation practices in the production/processing of milk and the manufacture of dairy products. DPC approval indicates review by milk inspection agencies of DPC member states and the U.S. Food and Drug Administration.

Guideline for Dairy Manure Management from Barn to Storage, NRAES-108, is available for $7 per copy (plus shipping and handling). Shipping and handling is $3.50 for a single copy within the continental United States.

Guideline for Milking Center Wastewater

All dairy farms produce and then must dispose of wastewater from their milking centers. The amount of wastewater produced and the concentration of contaminants vary greatly from farm to farm, however, and dairy farmers must evaluate their specific conditions to determine the most effective methods of control and treatment. Guideline for Milking Center Wastewater, NRAES-115, can help producers and their advisers plan and assess wastewater reduction and treatment systems. This new 34-page publication outlines the characteristics of milking center wastewater, reviews methods for source control, and outlines a number of current ways to treat the effluent.

The guideline includes 13 illustrations and eight tables. Topics covered include wastewater characteristics and estimating the amount of waste produced; source control of milking center wastewater; the milking center drainage system, including codes and regulations, components, and drainage systems for the milking center; and treatment alternatives, including liquid manure system, short-term storage and land application with manure spreader, settling tanks, grass filter, aerobic lagoon, organic filter bed, septic system, constructed wetlands, stone-filled treatment trench, spray irrigation, lime flocculator treatment, and aerated septic system. Safety and health concerns are also summarized.

This publication was prepared by Peter E. Wright, animal waste specialist, Agricultural and Biological Engineering, Cornell Cooperative Extension; and Robert E. Graves, professor, Agricultural and Biological Engineering, the Pennsylvania State University. Extension specialists, university members, industry representatives, and regulatory and milk-plant field personnel also provided their assistance and expertise.

Guideline for Milking Center Wastewater, NRAES-115, is a joint undertaking by NRAES and the DPC.

Guideline for Milking Center Wastewater, NRAES-115, is available for $7 per copy (plus shipping and handling). Shipping and handling is $3.50 for a single copy within the continental United States.

Deadline To Report Permanent Pasture Coming Up

Michael R. Kozier, CED, Garrett County FSA, asks Garrett and Allegany farmers to note that they have until September 15 to report native and seeded permanent pasture. This is for the 1998 crop year only. For additional information, those interested may call the Allegany County FSA Office at 301-777-1536 or the Garrett County FSA Office at 301-334-6954.

Senate Moves To Aid Farmers

Before adopting a $57.3 billion agriculture spending bill by a 97-2 vote, the Senate last week turned back an attempt to reopen the 1996 farm bill. Instead, senators passed a non-binding resolution that encourages Congress to move forward with trade, tax, regulatory reform and risk management legislation desperately needed by American farmers and ranchers, and agreed to provide $500 million in cash assistance to farmers who have suffered crop disasters.

Debate on the bill centered on numerous amendments to help farmers. A Farm Bureau-opposed measure by Senate Majority Leader Tom Daschle (D-S.D.) that would have raised marketing loan rates was rejected 56-43. The amendment would have removed the 1996 farm bill's ceiling on loan rates, permitting the Agriculture Department to raise 1998 crop loan rates to 85% of the past five-year market price average.

American Farm Bureau Federation President Dean Kleckner said a combination of factors is responsible for the stress many farmers are experiencing. The 1996 act, he said, set agriculture on a seven-year timetable to eliminate price supports for farmers and ranchers.

"This phase-out, combined with low commodity prices and bad weather in many parts of the country, is straining the financial situation of a many producers," Kleckner said in a letter to the Senate. "While Farm Bureau is urging Congress to help farmers by enacting international trade enhancements and risk management tools, we continue to support the farm bill and oppose amendments to alter commodity programs."

An amendment by Sen. Kent Conrad (D-N.D.) providing $500 million in indemnity payments for farmers in some disaster areas passed by voice vote. The payments are considered emergency spending so they are not required to be offset.

A sense of the Senate amendment, offered by Sen. Charles Grassley (R-Iowa) and supported by Farm Bureau, was adopted by a 71-28 vote. The amendment urges congressional passage of fast-track trade negotiating authority, the Farm and Ranch Risk Management Act, full funding for the International Monetary Fund, sanctions reform legislation, normal trade status for China, capital gains and estate tax reforms, regulatory reform and full deductibility of health care insurance for the self-employed.

Notes from Bittinger

by Joan Sussman

MANTA RAY SWIM TEAM

The long season for the Garrett County Manta Ray swimming team ended at the YMCA Championship Meet at Cumberland. The "over the hill" Father Team stunted the competition in the Open Medley Relay.

Four of the fathers of some of the kids put together a winning effort after 25 or more days off from competition swimming. George Collins, McHenry, a butterfly specialist when he was in college, still retains his form. Scott Hollingsworth, Oakland, did the back stroke, and Dave Taylor, Oakland, did a great job with the breast stroke. Finally anchoring the team in the free stroke was Lloyd Sussman, Bittinger. In spite of some embarrassing comments from their daughters, they showed everyone that, just because they may be over 40, it does not mean that they are old and out of shape. They looked good in their racing suits and were excellent in the pool. They steamed over the YMCA team by defeating an experienced adult team, as well as beating the older kids' team. They did Garrett County proud as did the kids on the Manta Ray team.

I heard many people in the spectator area commenting on how good our swimmers are in Garrett County. This happens thanks to the dedication of the coaches.

The older kids are great role models for the younger ones. The one missing piece is a full sized pool in Garrett County. It's past time for that!

Claire, Caitlin, and Meredith Sussman picked up a number of ribbons in the meet. They take after their dad, not me. I can't swim and never really was comfortable in water. But my little "guppies" have really taken to the water. The Sussman family joined all the rest of the families involved with the Manta Ray team at a picnic and party on Sunday afternoon. Everyone enjoyed socializing, a dip in the pool, pizzas, and awards. I am very pleased with my girls on the swim team. They reinforced old friendships with great kids like Julie Holloway, the Hollingsworth kids, and made lots of new friends, especially the Shaffers. They conquered fears, learned about competition, and learned it takes time and hard work to really get good at something. Blue ribbons do not come easy.

THE BIG CATCH

On Sunday afternoon, Elliot and Darryl Glotfelty went fishing in Beachy's pond on Rock Lodge. Before they knew it, Elliot latched on to a 21", 5 lb. 6 oz. large mouth bass. Darryl helped pull it out of the water. The Beachy Pond is one of the oldest SCS ponds that was constructed in the 1940s. The boys were using small casting rods with size 10 hooks. They were fishing alone, but luckily their "Pappy" Dale came along and then he and their parents took them to Johnny's Bait House to register their catch. The 9-year-old twins were quite an attraction, as a group of people admired their big catch.

Upon the arrival home of their "Grandma" Ruth DiPaolo from a ball game, she was elected to filet their catch for them. Grandma has been teaching the boys the "art of fishing" for a year or two and they have become quite accomplished fishermen. Scott Bass, another grandson, has also become a regular fisherman with the twins. Many of you have seen them fishing along Bear Creek. Also admiring the catch were Lenny, Sally, Torrey, and Pam Poholsky, and Cindy Stanton.

THIS AND THAT

Brent Housley spent the weekend camping at Pioneer Park in Somerset with Derek Workman and his parents, Phil and Debbie Workman.

Ellen and Brent Housley visited new arrival, Madeline Keating, in Frostburg. Katie and Byard Beitzel are Madie's proud grandparents.

Rodney and Marci Glotfelty and family recently spent a week vacationing at Chincoteague, Va.

Weekend visitors of Sam and Cindy Stanton and family were Lucretia and Clay Stanton, Grantsville, and Billy Stanton of Columbus, Ohio.

Pam Poholsky, Murrysville, Pa., was a weekend visitor of Lenny, Sally, and Torrey Poholsky. A 12th birthday party for Torrey was celebrated on Friday. The neighborhood boys played ball until the day ran out.

Matthew Bass, Robbie Glotfelty, Torrey Poholsky, and Bryan Weimer camped out at Brent Housley's Sunday evening at Hard-struggle Homestead's Campground. They howled into the wee hours of the morning and consumed one hundred pounds of s'mores. Sorry, Denver and Naomi.

Ruth DiPaolo and guest Betty Wellborne, Accident, accompanied by Lucille Ritter, Cumberland, and her sister, Betty Henry, Michigan, attended the Hospice Drawing at Oakland on Saturday night. Ruth visited with Lucille and Betty on Monday in Cumberland.

Judy and Jack Perkins, Fayettesville, Ark., are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Buckel this week. Ethel Buckel has been on the sick list.

Ruby Orendorf, Cumberland, former resident of Bittinger, is now home from the hospital and is recovering at home. Her sister, Beulah Moon, has been helping out with her sister's care.

Family members gathering at the farm of the late Elwood and Beatrice Glotfelty on Saturday were Mr. and Mrs. Paul Nolder; Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Nolder, Elizabeth, Matthew and Erin; Dr. and Mrs. Mark Nolder, Becca and Katya; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Meyers, Lindsay and Allison, all of Baltimore; Mrs. Bernadette Henson; Mrs. Michelle Caudill, Markayla, and Moriah, St. Alban's, W.Va.; Mr. and Mrs. Dwaine Platter, Adam and Amanda, Smithsburg; and Mrs. Annette Keller, Accident, all guests of Jim and Donna Glotfelty and the Tom Glotfelty family for a picnic supper and hayride.

Sunday dinner guests at the home of Ida Reckner were Mr. and Mrs. Gary Reckner and children Bryce, Lyndsae, Bristol, Tyler, Timmy, Bethany, Kimberly, and Emery, of Sarasota, Florida; Charee Rickner and daughter, Michaele Puliti; Cathy DeBoeser, Kara and Marc, Allentown, Pa.; Lillian Reckner, McHenry; Mr. and Mrs. Julius Carey, Frostburg; Mr. and Mrs. Dwaine Platter, Adam and Amanda, Smithsburg; Tom and Tim Glotfelty, and Jim and Donna Glotfelty. Jim Glotfelty provided a hayride, and Karlaen Carey furnished homemade ice cream.

IN TOURNAMENT

Central Garrett's 11-12-year-old All-Star team is currently competing in the Salisbury tournament. Exiting games on Saturday and Sunday kept fans and parents on the edge of the bleachers. They remain in the winner bracket, with another game scheduled for Tuesday evening. Bittinger players include Jordan Brenneman, Torrey Poholsky, Brent Housely, and Matthew Bass. Lenny Poholsky, Sam Housely, and Ron Brenneman are helping coach the team. What will these folks do when baseball finally ends?

Read. Then Recycle.

Adorable Adoptobles

PHOTOGENIC AND FRIENDLY, this German Shepherd mix is available for adoption at the Garrett County Animal Shelter, located on Sang Run Road just north of the Oakland Golf Club. Miss Taylor Becomes Bride Of Mr. Baker In Double-Ring Event

Barbara Lynn Taylor and Danny Clark Baker were united in marriage June 27, 1998. The double-ring ceremony took place at the McHenry United Methodist Church, with the Reverend Samuel Wachter officiating. Jean Gardner was the pianist, and David K. Martin provided the solo selections.

The bride is the daughter of Robert and Ann Taylor, McHenry. The groom is the son of Clark and Bernice Baker, Oakland.

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted to the altar by her father, the bride wore a gown of white satin designed by Alfred Angelo. The gown featured a sweetheart neckline and princess line bodice embellished with hand beaded embroidery. The back bodice had a key-hole opening accented with pearl drape. The shirred satin skirt was trimmed with schiffli lace, beads, and sequins and featured a full cathedral train.

The bride wore a designer crown style headpiece adorned with tiny pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of white and pink roses, lavender freesia, and ivy. For something old, the bride wore a cameo that belonged to her great-grandmother.

Serving as matron of honor was Suzan O'Brien, McMurray, Pa., sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Quinea Repkey, Heath, Ohio, and Carol Myers, Schwenksville, Pa., both friends of the bride. The flower girl was Samantha Taylor, Mtn. Lake Park, niece of the bride. The matron of honor and bridesmaids each wore satin and lace full-length purple gowns and carried cascade bouquets of pink and white roses and lavender freesia.

Roger Baker, Oakland, served his brother as best man. Groomsmen were Larry Wilt, Terra Alta, and Mike Harvey, Oakland, both friends of the groom.

Lauren O'Brien, niece of the bride, served as guest book attendant. Programs were distributed by Katelyn O'Brien and Kelly Taylor, both nieces of the bride. Candles were lit just prior to the ceremony by Michele and Amy Baker, daughters of the groom.

The reception was held immediately following the ceremony at the Wisp Resort. Music was provided by Sounds Fun Entertainment, McHenry. Photography was provided by Becky Jones, Terra Alta.

The bride is a graduate of Northern High School and Ohio University, with a bachelor's degree in education. She is a 1995 graduate of Frostburg State University with a master's degree in education and a concentration in guidance and counseling. She is employed by the Garrett County Board of Education. The groom is a graduate of Southern High School. He is the owner of Excavating by Dan Baker.

The couple reside in Swanton. They are planning a belated honeymoon to Daytona Beach in February.

Ice Cream Social Set For Aug. 9 At St. Mark's

St. Mark's Lutheran Church, 6 South Second Street in Oakland, will host its annual Ice Cream Social outdoors on Sunday, Aug. 9, at 2 p.m. The community is invited to join the church in recognizing its members who have passed their 80th birthdays. The Men of Accord barbershop quartet will begin the event with a concert in the church sanctuary. The concert is free, and participants may contribute a free-will offering.

Festivities will then move outdoors under a canopy and at tables under the trees for homemade ice cream, cakes, and pies prepared in the kitchens of St. Mark's members specially for this event. Coffee and lemonade will also be served at the two-hour event.

The public is also invited to the 10 a.m. morning worship service, during which the Men of Accord will sing and the elder members of the congregation will be honored. St. Mark's 5 p.m. evening folk service on Saturday, Aug. 8, will be held outdoors under the canopy with special music.

The Men of Accord barbershop quartet, performing on Sunday only, was formed in 1990. They recorded Nothin' Too Serious, a collection of their favorite songs, in 1993, and a second tape is currently being produced. In 1995, they traveled to Reno, Nev., to perform for Red Skelton's 80th birthday party, by invitation of the comedian himself.

Men of Accord members include lead Tom Peterson, who is a member of St. Mark's, an anesthetist with Preston Memorial Hospital and a resident of Oakland; baritone Jack Harvey, a Garrett County native and currently an orthopedic surgeon in Cumberland; tenor Charlie Pitrolla, an elementary school teacher from Fairmont, W.Va.; and bass Ron Leaf, a pharmacist from Cumberland. All four members are married and have children. Their music program for the Ice Cream Social will feature well-known songs, harmony, and humor.

Boating Safety Test Given Each Friday In McHenry

Throughout the summer boating season the Boating Safety Equivalency Test will be given at 9 a.m. each Friday at the McHenry Public Safety Building on Friendsville Road. The free testing sessions are administered by the Maryland Department of Natural Resources Police (NRP), and will conclude on Friday, Sept. 4.

Maryland law specifies that anyone born after July 1, 1972, must successfully complete a boating safety course before operating any motorized vessel in the state of Maryland. This includes all motorized boats, jet skis, Wave Runners, and all other powered vessels and personal watercraft (PWC).

Those who pass the equivalency test will receive a Maryland Certificate of Boating Safety Education card. Anyone who fails the first time may retake the test one more time at a later date; however, anyone who fails a second time must take the Boating Safety Course to receive the card.

Persons interested in more information about this test may call the NRP office at 301-777-7771. For information about scheduled Maryland Boating Safety courses, contact Garrett Community College at 301-387-3070.

Maryland World War II Memorial Is Dedicated

The first Maryland World War II Memorial honoring all of the state's veterans has been officially dedicated. The memorial, which represents the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, Air Force, Coast Guard, and Merchant Marines, is located at the Governor Ritchie Overlook on Maryland Route 450 at the Naval Academy Bridge in Annapolis.

The memorial, which pays homage to Maryland's 530,000 veterans, lists on 22 black granite panels the 6,454 names of the state's soldiers who were killed in action during WWII.

Former United States Senator Robert J. (Bob) Dole was the keynote speaker at the dedication ceremony last Thursday. Dole served as an infantry officer during WWII with the 10th Mountain Division. He was seriously wounded in 1945 during the Italian campaign. Among his military decorations are two Purple Hearts, two Bronze Stars, and the Combat Infantrymen's Badge.

Also present for the dedication ceremony were Governor Parris Glendening, Brigadier General John F. Burke Jr., chairman of the Maryland World War II Memorial Commission; Lieutenant General James F. Fretterd, the adjutant general of Maryland; Fred L. Wineland, chairman of the ceremony; and former governors William Donald Schaefer, Harry Hughes, and Marvin Mandel.

THE VAN-DELLS TO PERFORM AT FAIR — The Van-Delle, a trio of singers and performers who present the sounds of the 50s and 60s, will give two shows during the Garrett County Fair on Tuesday, Aug. 11, at 8 and 9:30 p.m. on the 4-H stage. The group's format consists of two completely different shows, with the first presentation featuring comedy and choreography, and the second highlighting the early days of rock and roll. The members are Stacy Todd, Mark Barnett, and Glen Bowles. The group has produced eight albums in their 16-year history. The gate entry fee of $6 per person allows guests to attend all shows taking place that day. Other events on Tuesday will include Rock-It the Robot, "Master of the Chain Saw" Brian Ruth, and the popular four-wheel truck pull.

New Regulations Noted For Home Canning Entries

At this year's Garrett County Fair, the Ball, Kerr, and Alltrista companies are again providing awards for home canners who use their products. They have announced some new stipulations for eligibility that all participants should note, according to a spokesperson for the Cooperative Extension Service.

The Adult Premium Food Preservation Award conditions require participants' entries to be in Ball jars with Ball two-piece lids or Kerr jars with Kerr two-piece lids. The Pickled Foods Award entries must also satisfy these requirements, and these entries must contain Heinz distilled white or Heinz apple cider vinegar.

Soft Spread Award entries must meet the same requirements as those in the Adult Premium Food Preservation category. In addition, the soft spreads must have been made with 100% Natural Fruit Jell Pectin. The UPC seal from the Fruit Jell package must accompany the product. This is a new requirement.

For more information, persons may contact the extension office at 301-334-6960.

County Fair To Feature Special Events, Contests

The 42nd Annual Garrett County Agriculture Fair, slated for August 9-15, will feature a variety of special events and contests. For information about any of the following activities, persons may call 301-387-6910 after August 3.

Baby Crawl

The annual baby crawl contest will be held on Wednesday, Aug. 12, at 11 a.m. All babies not yet walking are eligible to compete. Each child will be put in his or her own age group.

To enter, each child must be registered by 10:30 a.m. that day and must be accompanied by two persons. Prizes will be given.

Costume Contest

A costume contest will be held for babies up to 2 years old and will take place after the baby crawl competition on Aug. 12. Costumes can be of any variety — funny, beautiful, or creative. Prizes will be awarded.

Apple Peeling Contest

The apple peeling competition will also be on Aug. 12, following the costume contest. Paring knives will be provided to all competitors. The person with the longest peel without a break will be declared the winner. Prizes will be awarded.

Senior Day

Senior Citizen Day will be Friday, Aug. 14. All persons 60 and older will be allowed into the grounds free of charge, and rides will be free to them until 5 p.m.

On that day, dancers from the Frostburg area will perform on the 4-H stage at 1 p.m. A short devotion will be given at the beginning of the show.

Pumpkin Contest

Three prizes will be given for the largest pumpkins by weight. Organizers are hoping to have many pumpkins entered this year. (Pumpkins entered in this contest cannot be entered in the vegetable department.)

Rock-It Robot, Todd Henry To Perform At Fair

The 42nd annual Garrett County Agriculture Fair is slated for August 9-15, with a variety of performers slated to present shows throughout the week. Two featured acts will be "Rock-It The Robot," who will perform several shows on Tuesday and Wednesday (Aug. 11 and 12), and Todd Henry, a country music singer and songwriter, who will perform on Monday, Aug. 10, at 8 and 9:30 p.m. on the 4-H stage.

"Rock-It" is described as "the ultimate corporate mascot for conventions, exhibits, and major trade shows." This character is nine feet tall and is a "high-tech body puppet." A programmable voice computer provides numerous voice and sound effects, and the hands and arms of the robot are built with a complex system of cables and joints, with independently moving fingers. The robot can shake hands and speak simple sentences, and is designed to appeal to children and adults alike.

Todd Henry, a native of Ohio, said he "cut his teeth on the rockin' sounds of Jerry Lee Lewis and Chuck Berry," but country music became his preferred choice. He has performed the fair circuit throughout the midwest for the past three years, and has shared the stage with such country legends as Vince Gill, Diamond Rio, Bryan White, Collin Raye, and others.

The performer is known for providing "upbeat, high energy" performances, suitable for the whole family.

The fairgrounds will open each day of the Aug. 9-15 week at 8 a.m., and persons pay one price of $6 to enter. This covers all entertainment offered that day, as well as entrance to the Gambill Amusements. Various food booths will be manned by numerous local non-profit organizations, and the annual livestock and exhibit competitions will take place throughout the week.

Correction Noted

It was incorrectly reported in a news article in last week's issue of The Republican, submitted by the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce, that the 42nd annual Garrett County Agriculture Fair, slated for Aug. 9-15, is sponsored by the Garrett County Livestock Association. In fact, the fair is sponsored by the Garrett County Fair board of directors and shareholders.

Breathtaking

Scriptures Selected by The American Bible Society Copyright 1998, Keister-Williams Newspaper Services, P. O. Box 8005, Charlottesville, VA 22906

What words can describe the beauty of this delicate butterfly? Perhaps some would describe this living thing of God's creation as awesome or etherial or even spectacular with graphic markings displayed on a palette of brilliant gossamer wings. Others might describe it with one word...breathtaking...for as one gazes upon it, the first reaction is to draw in a deep breath of amazement. How could man even dream of accomplishing such a feat?

How wonderful it is that we can entrust our lives to such a Power so sensitive as to have created the butterfly and yet so wise and powerful that He ordered the universe. May we each take advantage of this opportunity weekly as we worship in God's House and learn more of His power to create a new life of joy and peace within us. Each day you will find that experiencing the beauty of God's power in your life is indeed breathtaking!

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

THE BOTTOM LINE
August 2, 1998

Background Scripture:
Proverbs 8
Devotional Reading:
Psalms 1:1-6

In the Book of Proverbs, there are essentially two voices that speak. Sometimes it is the voice of the "wise man. Sometimes it is the voice of "wisdom" personified as a woman.

Thus in Proverbs 8, it is this winsome woman who is speaking wherever she finds people to listen: "On the heights beside the way, in the paths she takes her stand, beside the gates in front of the town, at the entrance of the portals she cries aloud..." (8:2,3).

The writer tells us a lot in these few lines. Some people then believed—as some do today—that wisdom is really an exclusive attainment of the few, that it is not intended to be possessed by all. In sharp contrast, however, wisdom proclaims her message, not in a secluded spot where only a select few will hear, but at the very crossroads where all may hear and receive the message. "To you, O men, I call, and my cry is to the sons of men" (8:4). Using the term "sons of men" indicates that her call is not only to the people of Israel, but all humanity. The reception to that call may be limited, but the call is not.

This wisdom is straight forward, never devious: "All the words of my mouth are righteous; there is nothing twisted or crooked in them." That is the gap between information or learning and wisdom. Information may often be used for devious purposes and learning may well be perverted to selfish ends, but true wisdom cannot be perverted.

COSMIC WISDOM

Wisdom goes on to poetically proclaim her unique relationship with God: "The Lord created me at the beginning of His work, the first of His acts of old" (8:22). Before the cosmic depths existed, before there were mountains, hills, fields, heavens or even dust, wisdom existed.

Upon reading Proverbs 8 some may become alarmed because it may seem that wisdom purports to have been another divine being present with God at the creation. Some Biblical scholars believe that the Canaanites worshipped a goddess of wisdom. But the writer of Proverbs sees that, what the Canaanites worshipped as a

Garrett Orthopedic Physical Therapy & Rehabilitation

Garrett Orthopedic Physical Therapy & Rehabilitation (GO PT), an outpatient physical therapy clinic, will begin treating patients Monday, August 3, at its Brodak Plaza location.

Founded by three local physical therapists, Tarry Butner, Teresa Reynolds, and Mike Voelkel, who have a combined total of over 40 years of experience, the new practice will offer a full range of rehabilitation services with emphasis on physical therapy. GO PT plans to eventually add occupational therapy, speech therapy, and massage therapy to its services.

Tarry Butner, PT, is certified in mechanical diagnosis and therapy of the spine, making him one of less than 500 therapists in the country with this certification and the only one in Garrett County. His specialty is the treatment of back and neck problems. An Accident resident, Butner is also an inventor of several physical therapy devices which enable patients to more effectively manage their own conditions. His first such invention, a patient-controlled therapy table for low back treatment, was awarded a U.S. patent. Prior to co-founding GO PT, Butner worked at Garrett County Memorial Hospital for five years.

Teresa Reynolds, PT, who earned a master's degree in business administration in 1992, was director of physical therapy at GCMH for nearly for years before joining forces with Butner and Voelkel. A Terra Alta, W.Va., resident, Reynolds was also director of physical therapy at Preston Memorial Hospital for eight years. Her specialties include the hand, sports medicine, and geriatrics.

Mike Voelkel, PT, is certified in therapeutic massage and bodywork, and was director of physical therapy at GCMH from 1992 until 1994. Prior to moving to Accident, he was chief clinical therapist at a pain and rehabilitation center in Baltimore. He teaches at Garrett Community College in the Massage Therapy Program and at Allegheny College in the Physical Therapy Assistant Program. Voelkel's specialties include manual therapy, and osteopathic and craniosacral/myofascial techniques.

GO PT "will be offering services covering a broad spectrum of general orthopedic and neurological patients," Butner said. "We have also hired an athletic trainer to assist in our effort to serve the sports injury population and to assist with general conditionmg programs as we expand services to offer a fitness center.

"Our primary emphasis," Butner continued, "will be on patient education and self-treatment. We believe that actively involving the patient in his or her recovery through home self-treatment is imperative to a successful outcome. GO PT is confident that we will be able to offer a quality rehabilitation service to our patients."

Appointments with GO PT may be made by calling office manager Cindy Shaffer at 301-334-5520.

Oakland Area Blood Donors Give 106 Units

The Western Potomac Chapter of the American Red Cross held a special bloodmobile visit at the American Legion hall in Oakland because of the current shortage of blood supplies, and 116 donors responded to the visit, with 106 units of blood collected. The goal for the visit was 75 units.

"Following several weeks of low donor turnout for many bloodmobile visits and poor collections throughout the region, the Red Cross was amazed at the turnout for this visit," stated Diane Bolt, director of the local ARC blood services. "Exceeding our goal by 31 units is just unheard of at this time of year," she said. "We are so thankful for the support from the Oakland-area community."

Donating blood for the first time at the visit were: Sherry Schwartz, Germantown; Donald Smith, Swanton; Nancy Thomas, Oakland; and Cathy Shomo, Mtn. Lake Park.

The following donors reached gallon milestones: Mary Jo Savage, Oakland, nine gallons; Miriam Schrock, Oakland, eight gallons; Foster Lewis, Crellin, seven gallons; J. Leo McBee, Robert K. Teter, and Robert Gnegy, all of Oakland, six gallons; Homer Slaubaugh and Garry Morfoot, both of Oakland, five gallons; Mary Jo Shaffer, Swanton, and Joe S. Harvey, Oakland, four gallons; Linda Moon, Elizabeth Daniels, and Elma Swartzentruber, Oakland, and Sue E. Myers, two gallons; and Denise Shay and Elmer W. Crone, Mtn. Lake Park, Joseph E. McGinnis, Oakland, Jeffrey D. Beitzel, Bittinger, and Elissa Baumgartner, Thomas, W.Va., all one gallon.

Donations to the canteen were made by Junior Ferguson, Oakland, and Cumberland Coca-Cola Company.

Volunteers assisting with the visit were: Rosalie Baker, Artie Dixon, Don Forrester, Anne Forrester, Joyce Ridder, Tommy Ridder, Elizabeth Huxford, Mary Rodeheaver, Chad Lovett, Pete Porcaro, and Shirley Panther.

Upcoming bloodmobile visits include: Monday, Aug. 3, Zion Lutheran Church, Accident, noon to 6 p.m.; Friday, Aug. 7, Kitzmiller fire hall, noon to 6 p.m.; and Friday, Aug. 21, Oakland Elks Lodge, 11:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Classes Slated By Red Cross

The Western Potomac Chapter of the American Red Cross will sponsor a pair of classes next month, both of which will be held at the Chapter House, 400 Cumberland Street, Cumberland.

A professional rescuer CPR class will be held Tuesday and Thursday, Aug. 18 and 20, from 6 to 10 p.m. The course teaches professional rescuers the skills needed to respond appropriately to respiratory and cardiac emergencies.

A community CPR class will be offered on Tuesday, Aug. 25, also from 6 to 10 p.m. This course includes instruction in adult, child, and infant CPR.

Persons interested in registering for the classes and/or obtaining more information may telephone Charlie Johnson at 301-722-1760, ext. 302, or 1-800-361-9481.

Gnegy Reunion Date Changed

The 30th annual Gnegy Reunion will be held one week earlier this year. Instead of on the fourth Sunday in August, a covered dish lunch will be held the third Sunday, Aug. 16, at 1 p.m. at the Dale Gnegy farm, rain or shine. All friends and relatives are invited to attend.

The farm is located three miles south of Red House along U.S. Rt. 219. Drivers should turn left at Suburban Propane and continue to Bill Roth Road, the first gravel road to the right.

Cooper Named To Who's Who

For the third year, Jessica H. Cooper has received the Who's Who Among American High School Students designation. Only 5% of all high school students receive this award, and only ½ of 1% are honored for two years. Jessica was commended for her "consistent commitment to excellence."

Cooper graduated in June from Northern High School, where she was a merit student. While attending Northern she was a member of the chorus, craft club, chess club, and athlatic training club, and was a teacher's assistant. She was also a member of the Allied Health class and has her CNA (Certified Nursing Assistant) degree. She was in the top 5% of students at Northern doing service learning.

She is a member of the Bittinger 4-H Club, where she has served as president or secretary for the past six years. She is active in church activities.

Jessica will be attending Garrett Community College in the fall, where she has received the Edward and Hazel Hinebaugh Scholarship. She will be pursuing a degree in either physical or occupational therapy.

Jessica resides with her mother Doris along Rock Lodge Road in Accident.

Peck Files To Retain Seat In Orphans' Court

Joseph A. Peck, judge of the Orphans' Court, has filed for re-election as a Republican candidate for that office. "I have served as judge of the Orphans' Court for the past 16 years," Peck said. "I feel I have received much experience as to the execution of the duties of this office in a fair and honest manner, according to the Estates and Trusts Laws of the Annotated Code of Maryland. If I am re-elected to this office, I pledge to continue to serve the citizens and voters of Garrett County to the best of my ability as I have in the past."

Peck was employed by the U.S. Postal Service for 21 years and has served two one-year terms as president of the Woodmen of the World Life Insurance Society, Camp #11, of Crellin. He is also a member of the Crellin Assembly of God Church, where he served as treasurer for 30 years. He has been a member of the American Legion Lodge #71 for over 25 years. He is a veteran, having served from 1941 until 1945 in the HQ and HQ Company of the 14th Infantry Regiment as code clerk and message center chief. He was honorably discharged October 10, 1945, as a staff sergeant. Peck has also been active in many other community, civic, and social activities.

"I wish to thank everyone for their support and will greatly appreciate continued support in the September primary and November elections," Peck said.

Elaine Bateman is serving as Peck's campaign treasurer.

DeWitt Seeking Re-Election For Orphans' Court

Clifford C. DeWitt recently announced his candidacy for a third term as Judge of the Orphans' Court for Garrett County. He was first elected to that office in 1990. In 1994 he was appointed Chief Judge of the Court by Gov. Wm. Donald Schaefer, a position he presently holds.

DeWitt, a lifelong resident of Garrett County, retired in 1990 after serving 30 years in the office of the Clerk of Circuit Court for Garrett County, having held positions of deputy clerk, chief deputy clerk, and 12 years as elected clerk of the court.

DeWitt states that he feels his 30 years of experience in the Circuit Court and the past eight years in the Orphans' Court qualify him to better serve the public of Garrett County in matters brought before that court. The jurisdiction of the Orphans' Court is limited to probate matters and oversees the administration of decedent's estates. Among its other duties, it conducts hearings when disputes arise in the administration of estates. The court meets every Tuesday.

He is a member of the Maryland Association of Judges of the Orphans' Court and attends seminars and educational sessions of that organization in Annapolis.

DeWitt recently completed serving six years as president of the Garrett County Historical Society and was instrumental in the society's purchase of the Professional Building in downtown Oakland to house the society's county museum. He still serves on its board of directors. He is a member of the Crellin Assembly of God Church and has been accompanist for several area gospel quartets. He served as treasurer on Maryland's 350th anniversary celebration in Garrett County and was involved in other civic projects, including the establishment of Snowy Meadows park and ballfield in Crellin. He served two years in the U.S. Army.

DeWitt resides along John DeWitt Lane, west of Oakland. He stated that he "very much appreciates" the support of the voters of Garrett County in past elections and solicits their support for another term on the Orphans' Court. W. Dwight Stover is serving as his campaign treasurer.

Free Maryland Workplace Safety Posters Available

The Maryland Department of Labor, Licensing, and Regulation (DLLR) is reminding Maryland businesses to beware. Contrary to the information contained in mass mailings being sent to employers around the state, workplace labor law posters are available free of charge through the DLLR. Claims that businesses must purchase the posters or face exorbitant fines from Maryland Occupational Safety and Health (MOSH) are misleading, and in many cases, incorrect.

"Business owners have contacted us regarding companies that are selling Labor Law and MOSH Compliance posters ranging from $10 to as much as $50," said John P. O'Connor, DLLR's acting secretary. "These posters have always been free to employers and can be ordered by simply calling our offices."

Mass mailings from these companies contain warnings to business owners that failure to comply with the postings requirements can result in civil or criminal penalties. While Maryland does require employers to post MOSH compliance information, this penalty is not correct. MOSH inspectors will regularly supply these posters to employers during the course of an inspection.

Acting Secretary O'Connor added, "We want all Maryland employers to know that posting certain labor laws is a requirement and that we are here to assist them in meeting those requirements. Workplace safety is an important issue in this state, and we are very proud of the fact that Maryland has the second lowest private sector injury/illness rate in the nation."

DLLR is able to achieve this through the cooperation of employers in ensuring that workplace safety and MOSH compliance information is readily available for all employees, stated O'Connor.

Maryland employers can obtain MOSH Compliance posters at no charge by calling DLLR's Division of Labor and Industry at 410-880-4970.

There's nothing halfway about ABC's summer series Maximum Bob, premiering Tuesday, Aug. 4.

Adapted from an Elmore Leonard novel, Bob stars Beau Bridges as bombastic judge Bob Gibbs.

Behind the camera is Barry Sonnenfeld, director of Men in Black and the 1995 adaptation of Leonard's Get Shorty.

Bob is the kind of show associated with cable TV: It has ribald humor, politically incorrect attitudes and white-trash stereotypes. Yet it throws down the gauntlet to all those who have complained about stale summer reruns and timid networks sticking with safe, threadbare concepts.

"In some ways, this is a cable show," concedes writer-producer Alex Gansa (The X-Files). "At the same time there's something exciting about bringing something like this to a more mainstream audience to see if they respond. "You're not tuning in to watch The Practice or NYPD Blue, but something that is 10 degrees off-center, sometimes more."

Filmed on location in Florida, Bob mixes backwoods culture with a subtropical climate and the gaudy, sun-drenched colors of Miami Vice. But don't expect to see Sonny Crockett in fictional Deep Water, Fla.

Instead, there's public defender Kathy Baker (Liz Vassey), a well-connected city girl looking to turn over a new leaf after leaving her philandering husband.

A lesser woman might be put off by a judge who gives her client the death sentence for drinking a beer. But Kathy decides she'll stay in Deep Water, where the sheriff (Sam Robards) takes tango lessons, a clan of inbred outlaws buys eyeglasses in bulk, and the judge's wife is a psychic ex-mermaid (Kiersten Warren) who's protected by the ghost of a black slave girl (Rae'ven Larrymore Kelly).

Beau Bridges

Among the recurring cast members are William Sanderson (Newhart) as redneck Dickie Crowe and Paul and Peter Allen Vogt as his sons, the Tweedledee and Tweedledum of the Everglades.

If all this sounds like a low-brow Northern Exposure or a melted Fargo, it's supposed to.

"The model for the show is Northern Exposure," Gansa says. "(The show has) a sweetness and, hopefully, an accessibility that's a little different from the novel."

It's a necessary step for the series, according to Bridges.

"I think Maximum Bob, as he's portrayed in the novel, might be hard to take for more than two or three visits," he says. "Yet even in the novel, as nuts as he is, you kind of like him because he's so outspoken."

Some viewers, however, might not know what to make of the judge. One thing's for sure: Bob has orchids in his hothouse.

"Bob collects exotic orchids," Bridges notes, "and he speaks in a lot of analogies that have to do with orchids. It's a great counterpoint to his somewhat gruff attitude about justice. Now I'm totally consumed by orchids (too). I'm going to go home and build a greenhouse."

Like a strangely beautiful flower, Maximum Bob will bloom for a few short weeks. If viewers like it, it may put down roots.

TRIVIA

Beau Bridges (Maximum Bob) was 7 years old when he co-starred with Robert Mitchum and Myrna Loy in The Red Pony (1949).

TRIVIA

Barry Bostwick (Spin City) makes pottery when he wants to unwind. A star of The Rocky Horror Picture Show, he'd like to play Jimmy Stewart someday.

TV-PIPELINE

Wendie Malick

Q: My brother and I are arguing over this: Is the actress who plays Nina on Just Shoot Me the same woman who played Lois in Ace Ventura: Pet Detective? –Tim Althouse, Lancaster, Pa.

A: No, actress-goddess Wendie Malick plays Nina. That was actress-Catwoman wannabe Sean Young as Lois Elaborn in Ace Ventura.

Q: Can you tell me anything about an early '90s Fox series called Shaky Ground? No one else seems to recall it. –Prince Undercore via e-mail.

A: Shaky Ground, which ran for almost seven months during the 1992-93 season, starred Matt Frewer (Max Headroom) as a frustrated quality-control employee at a Los Angeles aeronautics firm. He kept his lip zipped at work but spent his time at home whining to his patient wife (Robin Riker). It was as unpleasant as it sounds, but their teen-age daughter was played by Jennifer Love Hewitt.

Q: Will Players, with Costas Mandylor, return to complete the season? –L. Brown, Macon, Ga.

A: All episodes of Players have aired, and the network season ended in May. The show will not be back this fall.

Q: Is Daniel Roebuck of Nash Bridges the same actor who played on Andy Griffith's show? Where is he from? –M.S., Kallapell, Mont.

A: If you are referring to Griffith's Matlock, then yes. Roebuck, who was born in Bethlehem, Pa., played Cliff Lewis on that long-running series.

Q: What TV shows has Yasmine Bleeth been in besides Ryan's Hope, One Life to Live and Baywatch? –Bryan Hayes, Warrenton, N.C.

A: Bryan, you nailed all her series roles to date, but she also has made guest appearances on a number of shows, including Baywatch Nights (reprising her Baywatch role of Caroline Holden), Boy Meets World, Herman's Head, Veronica's Closet and The Naked Truth.

Q: Can you give me any background information on John M. Jackson, who plays Adm. Chegwidden on JAG? –T.B.M., Portland, Maine.

A: As usual, CBS is skimpy on personal background information, apart from revealing that Jackson's birthday is July 1 and he coaches Pony League baseball in his spare time.

Professionally, the actor who also has worked under the name John Jacks, has made more than 40 TV movies and feature films since his debut in 1981's Back Roads.

He had a recurring role on Wiseguy and has made guest appearances on Northern Exposure, Sisters, Party of Five and Dark Skies, among others.

TRIVIA

Raquel Welch and Teri Garr each had small roles in 1964's Roustabout, starring Elvis Presley and Barbara Stanwyck.

My Three Sons is one of the few shows to change networks and thrive. After six seasons on ABC, it moved to CBS for another seven years.

Dallas star Larry Hagman's only feature directing credit is for 1972's Beware! The Blob. A bomb, it was later tagged "The film that J.R. shot!"
